TAX CUT FOR ALL AND TARIFF REDUCTION FOR CONSUMER IF DEMOCRATS WIN, DAVIS TELLS ENTHUSIASTIC CROWD AT COLISEUM

SAYS G. O. P. FUND LIKELY WILL REACH $12,000,000

Frank P. Walsh Reads to Senate Inquiry Letter From George W. Simmons, Soliciting Bankers.

APPEAL MADE TO BUSINESS MEN

Requests Four Kansas Cityans Be Called to Testify on La Follette's "Slush-Fund" Charges.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Leads, which will take the special Senate investigating committee into a thorough-going investigation of charges of Senator Robert M. La Follette, that a huge "slush fund" is being raised for the support of the Coolidge-Dawes ticket, were presented today to that body by Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, counsel for the independent presidential candidate.

In submitting a batch of correspondence on other data upon which the charges are based, at least in part, Walsh said he would undertake to show that three funds were being collected; "one by the National Committee, the regular fund; one, a fund created by the bankers of the United States and taken care of by them, and the other by the manufacturers and business men."

Walsh also told the committee that La Follette had told him over the long distance telephone that he had "underestimated the amount of the "slush fund" that was being raised to carry this election, when he said that he thought it would be $4,000,000 or $5,000,000."

Likely to Reach $12,000,000.

"From the investigation which we have attempted to make, a very hasty one, indeed," La Follette's counsel added, "we think we have leads which we will present to the committee here to show that $10,000,000 is not too great an estimate, and that it is very likely to reach $12,000,000."

To support the conclusion that three separate funds are being raised, Walsh presented letters written by George W. Simmons, a vice president of the Mechanics & Metals National Bank, New York City, appealing to other bankers, irrespective of party, to contribute to a fund to help the Republican National ticket. He also introduced into evidence a letter of similar import sent to its members by the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia.

Aid Requested of Bankers.

"Senator La Follette has been advised," Walsh said in this connection, "that at a meeting of the National Bankers' Convention in Chicago, a few days ago, a speech was made requesting that all trust companies be requested to give one-twentieth of one per cent of their capital as contributions to fight La Follette in the West. Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia was made chairman of the committee to collect the money."

Besides these letters, Walsh produced a series of four written by Joseph R. Grundy, a yarn manufacturer of Bristol, Pa., and chairman of the ways and means committee of the Republican National Committee. Two of the letters, which contained the most urgent appeals, were written on Oct. 8 and Oct. 10. The other letters, those by Simmons and the Philadelphia Manufacturers' Club—were dated at about the same time.

Walsh told the committee the [illegible] of the letters were very "Significant."

Would Swing Doubtful States.

"They are getting money at this time," he added, "and that is why Senator La Follette says this is more likely to be $10,000,000 or $12,000,000, because we think we are going to show that the people are responding to these letters all over the country."

Calling attention to a passage in one of the Grundy letters, saying that Pennsylvania's 38 electoral votes "may be safe for Coolidge and Dawes, but our money and energy must be given to help carry doubtful states and doubtful Congressional districts," Walsh said: "We propose to show by the correspondence, which has been in-

TENANTS WOULD CAMP ON LAWN AT WHITE HOUSE

Persons Facing Eviction Appeal to President for Army Tents.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Tenants threatened with eviction appealed to President Coolidge today for the loan of army tents and permits to camp on the ellipse back of the White House. Secretary Slemp, who met a delegation formed at a mass meeting last night, told the tenants, who said 2000 of their number had been threatened by landlords since Oct. 1, that it was not necessary for them to interview the President, who was sympathetic and would do all in his power to better their condition.

Slemp referred them to Secretary Weeks, who has charge of army campaign materials and of the public grounds upon which the tenants hope, in case of eviction, to pitch their tents and to the District of Columbia Commissioners.

BETTING ODDS IN FAVOR OF COOLIDGE NOW FIVE TO ONE

New York Concern Offers Even Money Davis Will Not Get 195 Electoral Votes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Betting odds in favor of the election of President Coolidge lengthened further in the financial district today. The larger betting commissioners were offering huge sums at odds of five to one that Coolidge would be elected to succeed himself. J. S. Fried and Company announced that they had a commission to bet $60,000 to $12,000 or at odds of five to one that John W. Davis would not be elected to the presidency.

On Friday the odds were quoted at four to one in favor of Coolidge and earlier in the week they were quoted at three and one-half to one.

The firm also reports it has $5000 to offer at even money that La Follette will not get 60 electoral votes and that Davis will not get 195 electoral votes.

Among the freak bets reported by Fried and Company was one of $2000 on an even basis that Davis will not carry 10 assembly districts in New York state.

NEGRESS SHOOTS HUSBAND IN CROWDED UNION STATION

Woman Fires Five Shots at Man When He Is About to Leave City.

The crowded midway of Union Station was thrown into an uproar at 7:15 last night when Mrs. Mary Phillips, negress, 4188 Enright avenue, fired five shots at her husband, John Phillips, 3103 Laclede avenue, who apparently was planning to go to Joplin. Four of the bullets struck Phillips The shooting occurred at a time when the midway was well filled with travelers and St. Louisans meeting or departing on the many trains around that hour. According to bystanders Mrs. Phillips fired one shot at Phillips and when he fell fired four more shots, three of which struck him in the chest and abdomen. The woman could not give a coherent statement to the police. A ticket to Joplin and $283 in cash were found in Phillips' pockets. Phillips died at the City Hospital.

To Drive 5000 Deer in Canyon.

By the Associated Press.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 18.—Official sanction of a cattleman's offer to drive more than 5000 deer from the overstocked Kaibab Forest across the vast expanse of the Grand Canyon to save the animals from threatened starvation this winter, was given today when Gov. Hunt signed a contract agreeing to terms submitted to undertake the task.

Disappearing Land.

In the Pacific Ocean there are islands which appear and disappear.

Duly charted, the navigator finds them on one voyage. Next time they have gone.

This kind of real estate has no value. It is too uncertain and insecure.

But St. Louis real estate does not appear and disappear. It is certain and secure. It does not increase in quantity, but demand increases; therefore, prices are not likely ever to be lower than they are now.

Today then is the time to read the "Real Estate" columns for best values—the time to make satisfactory selection.

PARISIAN THRONG CHATS AT BIER OF ANATOLE FRANCE

Crowd of 10,000 Breaks Up Into Groups and Continues to Gossip During Funeral Orations.

CAILLAUX IS ONE OF MOURNERS

Rough-Clad Workers of Socialist and Communist Parties and Young Students Follow Hearse.

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT,
Paris Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—On this soft, pale gray autumn afternoon Anatole France was given official burial. His body lay in state on a raised catafalque on the Quai Malaquais before the French Institute, under the statue of Voltaire, where 10,000 people gathered and heard six orators through loud speakers eulogize the subtlest mind and most brilliant pen modern France has produced.

Hidden behind the grandstands was the little bookshop where France spent his youth.

The Institute was an imposing background. Notre Dame showed through the haze to the left, the Seine stretched away to the right and every detail was perfect for the funeral of the man who understood the city in which he was being buried.

No Air of Solemnity.

And the city lived up to what Anatole France would have expected of it. It was in no sense a mourning occasion. There was not the slightest air of solemnity in the great crowd which had only one pre-occupation.

"Where is Caillaux?" they asked, for after his years of banishment to the provinces the former Premier was allowed to return to Paris for France's funeral. He meant it to be his triumphal re-entry into political life, and everyone knew it.

But the interest in him was short lived as soon as he had been spotted, and the crowd fell into groups, gossiping and smoking cigarettes. When the speaker eulogized France the chatter did not cease. If France had been there alive he would have been the first to see how true his Paris ran to form.

Workers Form Procession.

But when the Garde Municipale clattered down the Quai and the cortege followed, several groups of young people, students, fell into uneven lines, their heads held high,

LA FOLLETTE USED "AS SMOKESCREEN"

Radical Movement in Republican Party Made to Cover the Real Issues Speaker Says.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

A greater wave of enthusiasm beat on the eardrums of John W. Davis at the Coliseum last night than at any other meeting he has addressed during the campaign. It was the "Battle of Bunceton" re-enacted, with the difference that the noise-making of the St. Louis audience was concentrated indoors.

There was probably a greater racket at the Stock Yards meeting in Chicago during the candidate's first western tour, but there was more spontaneous, genuine applause at the Coliseum.

The battlefield figure of speech fits the meeting in more ways than one. Davis made a fighting speech—one of the hardest-hitting speeches of his whole campaign. To a large extent it was a mosaic of things he had already said, but into it he injected a "punch" that aroused the audience again and again to vociferous applause. This he managed to do despite the fact that he was manifestly tired after his series of speeches in Chicago the night before and that at East St. Louis yesterday afternoon.

A Fighting Speech.

It was a fighting speech to a crowd that wanted just that sort of speech. To the Eastern newspaper correspondents accompanying Mr. Davis on his tour the crowd was the story. It was unique in their experience of this campaign. Nearly all of Davis' crowds have been enthusiastic, but there has been none quite like this. It was bursting with good will for the candidate.

Cheers and bands volleyed and thundered. Flashlight bombs were exploded in the face of the candidate and the smoke rose and eddied about the ceiling. At one point in the speech it nearly choked the speaker. He paused and took a drink of water while the crowd laughed sympathetically. It was only with an effort that Davis was able to go on.

All the seats in the Coliseum were filled by 7:30, half an hour before the time set for the meeting. By the time Davis began speaking at 9, the place was jammed. The center aisle was packed and crowds were standing in the rear in both galleries. All told, there were more than 11,000 in the hall.

Blast of Cheering.

When Davis entered with his party at 8:30 the crowd got to its feet and let loose as hearty a blast of cheering as he has heard. It lasted for three minutes. There was another tumult of applause when he posed for a flashlight picture at the speaker's stand, and more vocal limbering up when, after a harmony speech by Floyd E. Jacobs of Kansas City, one of the defeated candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, a marching club made a noisy progress through the hall.

Throughout the preliminaries the crowd worked off steam, but there was plenty of it left for the candidate when he was introduced by Judge Henry S. Priest. Cheering and handclapping, pierced by cries of encouragement to Davis, con-

CARL AKELEY EXPLORER, MARRIES MARY LEE JOBE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Carl Akeley, explorer, naturalist and sculptor, and Miss Mary Lee Jobe, almost as widely known as an explorer and mountain climber, were married today in All Souls Church, Grammercy Park.

Akeley, for years an active worker for the American Museum of Natural History, married a year and a half after Mrs. Delia Akely divorced him in Chicago for cruelty. The first Mrs. Akely accompanied him on several of his big game hunting trips and established such a reputation that she was commissioned to get African specimens for the Brooklyn museum after the divorce. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Minot Simons, who was assisted by the Rev. William E. Brooks of Morgantown, W. Va. Mr. and Mrs. Akeley left for a motor and camping trip of several weeks in Eastern Canada.

The bride, a graduate of Bryn Mawr College and Columbia University, was the first person to climb Mount Sir Alexander, one of the highest peaks of the Canadian Rockies. She is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of London and a member of the American Alpine Club, the Canadian Alpine Club, the Club Alpin Francais, the Bryn Mawr College Club and the Daughters of Ohio.

Miss Stillman was attended by Miss Frances Davison, sister of the bridegroom. Fred T. Davison, a brother of the bridegrom, was best man. The bride was given away by her brother, James A. Stillman Jr. The Rev. Endicott Peabody, head master of Groton School, performed the ceremony.

TEXT OF JOHN W. DAVIS' ADDRESS AT COLISEUM

The complete text of John W. Davis' address at the Coliseum last night follows:

I had almost said, having a reminiscent memory of scenes barely four months ago, "Ladies and Gentlemen of the Convention." But one of my friends sitting on the platform here turned and asked whether this did not remind an onlooker of a certain convocation of Democrats held not long since in the city of New York, but I must admit that unto the ears at least there is no very distinguishable difference.

I speak of that great gathering there, however, with a reverence and respect that becomes a beneficiary, for, in addition to having made me its nominee, it conferred upon me an honor never before approached, and which I undertake to say long years will pass before anyone shall come to rival it, for I bear the proud distinction, Judge Priest, that it took longer to nominate me for the presidency than any other man that ever lived. (applause).

A voice: You will win, too, John; you will win.

But unless all the signs of the times are to go for nothing, including the evidence given me tonight by this magnificent and enthusiastic assemblage, it will take no longer to elect me than the fourth day of November, 1924 (applause).

Missouri a Great State.

Missouri is certainly a great state, and every fresh visit that I make to it gives me additional and conclusive evidence of its greatness. Long before I was ever fortunate enough to stand upon its soil, I had learned of its richness of agriculture and of metals and of the things that it brought forth for the comfort and enrichment of its fellow-citizens, and of all the men and women in these United States.

I knew that it was lapped by the Father of Waters and that the great Missouri traversed its territory, and that it had contributed to the long roster of distinguished men in these United States a galaxy of heroes and patriots not surpassed by any of its sisters in the sisterhood of states. And here tonight I have been given an ocular demonstration of the wealth it possesses when it comes to selecting a candidate for its chief executive (applause).

A Painted Reminder.

I am glad to see, ladies and gentlemen, that before the evening is over this hall can fairly be regarded as filled (laughter). Thirty days ago I attended what I believed to be the largest political gathering ever held in these United States (applause), and never until tonight did I believe that, indoors or out, it would be possible to repeat the Battle of Bunceton (great applause); and you rallied there to ratify the choice you had made for the chief executive of your State.

And had I been of your number and witnessed the galaxy of talent from which you had to choose, I think I should have found some embarrassment in making the selection, but, once made, I should have joined you in rejoicing that the Democrats had offered to the people of Missouri a business man in whom all the farmers had confidence and a farmer in whom all the business men had confidence—Dr. Nelson (applause); and that you will elect him on the fourth of November next is, in my judgment, as certain as the revolution of the sun itself (applause). And on that day may I say something further—that day it will be your duty to choose not only the chief executive of your State, but the chief executive of these United States.

A Voice: That will be you!

Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Davis (continuing): I agree with the gentleman about that. (Laughter.) And when I think of the long roll of statesmen that the Democracy has been privileged to furnish to the service of the nation, you must not blame me if I stand with awe in the face of the prospects of taking up the burdens they laid down, and carrying the banner they so gallantly put forward.

When I reflect upon the history of this country in the last 12 years, and realize that in 1912 we little knew the great decision we were making in November of that year, when we called a plain scholar, lately elevated to the governorship of his State, and took him away from his scholastic walks and made him the leader of the nation, we could not divine the long list of beneficial laws, helpful to labor, to agriculture, to business, and to every class of the community that was to issue from his impulse.

We could not see the sturdy diplomacy with which he was to guide this nation through its most troubled days, nor could we envisage, in that plain, frock-coated citizen, the commander-in-chief of the mightiest army that we ever raised, and a man whose voice should be raised for freedom and liberty, and heard around the globe. (Prolonged and loud applause.)

Truly did Judge Priest say that he still lives in the hearts of his countrymen, and that men throughout the ages will warm themselves by the fires that Woodrow Wilson lit (applause). And when you come to make your choice, I ask you to remember the form and structure of your Government and the instruments by which you carry out your will. This is, thanks to Thomas Jefferson, a Government resting upon the consent of the governed, but we make our will effective by and through political parties. We have no other agencies through which we may make our government efficient.

"We'll Send Hawes Back."

And all experience has proven that the affairs of the nation go forward more certainly and safely if the same party rules at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue. And so, when I go to Washington on the fourth of March—as I expect to do (loud applause)—

A voice: You will!

Mr. Davis (continuing): I want you to give me a Democratic Congress and a Democratic Senaate to work with (applause). And I shall expect to be joined—

A voice: We'll send Harry Hawes!

Mr. Davis (continuing): That is exactly what I was coming to, and I do not want any mistake about it, either. I want you to send him and all the other Democrats that you can to keep him and me company. And if I have a Democratic Congress, my friends, there is going to be somewhat of a change in this country (applause).

Four years ago the American people voted for a change and they got it (laughter and applause). And this year, as I believe, they want to vote for another change, and they will get that, too (applause).

And there shall be in the next administration no Albert B. Falls, no Denbys, no Daughertys, no Charles R. Forbeses, no Manningtons, no Jess Smiths, no Gaston B. Means, or anybody of that sort (loud applause). And if Teapot Dome (applause and laughter) is ever recovered, after the Republicans have given it away, it will not slip again out of the hands of the United States (applause).

Legislative Changes.

You will get some legislative changes. You will get, among other things, a reduction in taxation all along the line (applause), And I am not promising to repeal the Democratic income tax and substitute the Mellon bill for it, either (laughter and applause). And I observe that even my Republican friends, who said the Mellon plan was the last and final word in human wisdom, do not dare today to promise you to wipe out the bill the Democrats have passed, and put the Mellon law in its place.

You will get a reduction in the rates of the tariff that take every year a toll of $3,000,000,000 from the American consumer (applause).

And you will get it in a way and fashion that will do no harm to any legitimate business; that will throw no American working men out of work; that will create none of the disasters our Republican friends will have you believe; but you will get it in a law that will be written by the representatives of the people and not by the beneficiaries of the act themselves. (Applause.)

Waterway Development.

You will get another thing. You will get a development of the internal waterways of this country, including the Father of Waters himself (Applause). And, whether it be soldier or private citizen, whether it be postal employe or any other Government servant; whether it be labor; whether it be capital; or whether it be agriculture, you will be served by a Government that does not belong to any class or section, but is the equal servant of you all (applause).

And above all, you will get a Government honest from top to bottom (applause), not only honest among its lesser employes, but honest also among those at the top, who will no longer have friends to favor or enemies to punish at the public expense (applause).

You have not heard, my friends, very much talk in this campaign about the things you will procure by a continuation of the existing regime. There seems to be a vast conspiracy of silence that has settled over the camp of our friends, the Republicans. Now and then a Cabinet officer moves over to the Pacific slope and brandishes his sword at Japan and comes careening across the continent to deliver a message of light and leading in Denver—but suddenly he is called back to Washington and the muffler is put down upon him: (Laughter and applause.)

Occasionally, an ex-Attorney-General emerges from the obscurity into which he has fallen and writes a letter; but the correspondence does not go beyond a single interchange. (Applause). And in Washington there broods a silence vast, pervasive and mysterious, hardly broken by an occasional address upon purely nonpolitical things.

Postal Employes' Pay.

How could a nominee of the Republican party in this year of grace make a speech upon the issues of the moment? Is he to defend his course on the soldiers' bonus? If so, must he not condemn his colleagues of his own party in the House and the Senate?

Is he to defend his course with reference to the postal employes? If so, must he not condemn every member of his party but three in the Senate and six in the House (applause)?

Is he to defend his course on Japanese immigration? If so, almost the entire Congress of the United States must be repudiated.

Is he to claim again the discovery of the World Court? If so, how shall he explain that his own party in the Senate treated with contumely and repudiation the timid recognition he made that he should adhere to it?

What is there in the record of the last 18 months to which the nominee of the Republican party can point with pride, unless he is at the same moment to condemn those who are suing with him for the public favor?

The other day one of the spokesmen of the Republican party expressed the opinion in the City of New York that victory was certain and inevitable, because the Democratic party was probably—and I thank him for the word "probably"—going to be split to pieces in the West and honeycombed in the East.

Split Republicans.

I began to think about that situation a little and to look at the map. And I saw on the far side of the Mississippi—no, on this side of the Mississippi: I have crossed it today, and so I say on this side of the Mississippi River—a State in which two Republican Senators are campaigning, for Mr. La Follette. I saw the great State of Iowa, where the Republican candidate for the Senate was demanding that the Republican nominees should be displaced and new ones chosen in their stead.

Nebraska and Kansas.

I called the State of Nebraska to my attention and observed that the Republican nominee for the Senate was going to vote for La Follette and proposed that his followers should let their consciences be their guide (applause and laughter).

In the State of Kansas there were three candidates for Governor, two of them Republicans and one of them a Democrat—and that such split as happened to exist there was in the Republican party.

And I listened to the Pacific to hear whether that tribune of the people, Hiram Johnson, was recalling any of the language he had used in his primary campaign in the spring of this year, and I wondered, if there was a split on this side of the river, which party it happened to be at the moment that suffered from it.

When I thought of the East that was to be so honeycombed I put myself the question which I ask you tonight: After the election in the State of New York is over, who do you think will look most like a honeycomb, Theodore Roosevelt Jr. or Alfred E. Smith (applause)?

The New Congress.

What prospect is there, my friends, if the Republican party shall be successful on the fourth day of November, what prospect is there of that orderly and efficient government that the people of these United States are entitled to expect? Is it to be hoped that the next Congress, composed of those who have already demonstrated their unwillingness to co-operate with the chief executive, will be any more subservient to his will than they have proved themselves in the past?

What hope is there that the third party will be able to achieve a victory so sweeping as to give it control both of the chief executive and of the Congress, and to what quarter, therefore, must the American people look for that orderly and efficient government they are entitled to demand, unless they turn again to the party which for 130 years has followed democratic ideas and democratic ideals and never has failed them when they called it into power. (Applause.)

To the Business Man.

I put to my business friends tonight the question whether they want stable government in this country and if they do, what avenue for its achievement do they see other than the one I have pointed out. Ah, but they say the Democratic party is not safe. How shall you test its safety? Will you recall its record when you last trusted it with power?

Will labor remember, as Judge Priest has reminded you, that we wrote for all time on the statute books of this country the declaration that the labor of a human being is not a commodity or an article of commerce (applause), that we recognized in the law the right of labor to organize and collectively to bargain for its own advancement (applause), that we curbed the abuse of injunction and other processes and subjected it to regulation for all future time, that we recognized the eight-hour law both in governmental service and in those industries we could regulate, and I put to my laboring friends the question whether such a party is or is not safe to govern this country?

I ask the farmers of this country whether a party which gave them the farm loan credit act, the good roads act, which brought about the parcel post system, which expanded the rural credit system, gave them the grain warehouse act and the grain standard act, whether such a party is safe for agriculture?

I ask the financiers and commerical men of this country whether a party that gave them the financial system they had hungered for for 50 years and built the Federal Reserve system so strong that the cataclysm of the war swept across it without shaking it—whether such a party is safe for business? (Applause.)

And I ask the country to remember that it was under that party and under the leadership it furnished that you fought the greatest war in all American history to a victorious conclusion and poured out reserves of molten gold without one single officer of the Government diverting it to his own personal profit. (Applause.)

I read a reference in your press today from one of your citizens to what he was pleased to call the scandals of the Wilson administration, and I challenge him to name, or for anyone to name, a single officer who held a commission in that great war—whether in the army, the navy or the civil service—on whose fingers there stuck so much as one dollar of dirty money. (Applause.) And if he has discovered any—if he has discovered a single one, he has found more than a partisan Republican Congress was able to do after 51 investigations had been put on foot by them and pressed to a conclusion. (Applause.)

His Reply to Hughes.

Then I read the other night a statement from Secretary Hughes that the Democratic Party had put a mine under American business and exploded it, and the Republicans had been busy ever since in gathering up the debris. Well, I must say, with great respect to the distinguished Secretary of State, that his memory of American history is exceedingly at fault.

Does he recall the fact that the great deflation of which he complains in 1920 began at a time when the Republican Party was in control of both branches of the National Congress? That it was initiated by a resolution offered by a Republican Senator —Senator McCormick — and passed through a Republican Senate, calling on the Federal Reserve Board to state what steps it proposed to take or recommend to meet the existing inflation of credit and of currency, and does he recall that in June of that same year the Republican platform promised to the country a courageous and intelligent deflation of our overexpanded credit and currency, and that the candidate of the Republican Party whose commission he came to hold declared that deflation ought to have begun the day after the Armistice and pledged an earnest and consistent stand upon it when his party came to power?

And will he? In the face of that record, explain or deny all Republican responsibility for the fact that between 1920 and 1922 $5,000,000,000 of credit was contracted in this country? And will he explain that if the Republicans are simply gathering up debris why it was that in the last three years of the administration of Woodrow Wilson 189 banks failed in this country and in the first three and one-half years of the Harding-Coolidge administration 1649 went to the wall? (Applause.)

Republican Defense.

Ah, my friends, reiteration is a poor defense. The memory of the American people is ~~not~~ so short as some gentlemen seem to imagine. It is not a smoke screen of that character that can be thrown up to blind them to the result of the three and one-half last miserable years and invite them to renew it.

Two Republican Wings.

And if that is not sufficient, our friends must find another which they hope will serve. And so they are telling us now that the real contest in this election is not between the Democratic and Republican parties but the real contest is between the two wings into which the Republican party has divided itself. And unless you stay with the old crowd the newcomers will tear down the structure of the Constitution and the United States will lie in ruins at our feet.

They will tell you that Senator La Follette's proposal that Congress shall have the right to overrule a decision of the Supreme Court is the issue—the only issue—the dominant issue in this campaign, and so dangerous to American liberty that there shall be no escape for you unless Calvin Coolidge is sent back to the White House (laughter).

Well, I do not disagree with my Republican friends about that particular proposal. Indeed, I and Judge Priest, and other gentlemen I could name were opposing that proposal when some of the gentlemen who are now so hysterical about it did not seem to think that any such thing had ever happened.

We opposed it in 1912, when a great Republican, Theodore Roosevelt, put it forward in even more drastic form than that that Senator La Follette offers. (Applause.) And we opposed it because we believed that American citizens enjoy certain inalienable rights so holy and so sacred that no Congress and no Legislature dare lay so much as a finger upon them.

Our Guarantees.

We believe that under the Constitution of the United States the humblest citizen in all this land was guaranteed, against any majority, popular or legislative, the freedom of speech, freedom of the person, freedom of assembly, the right of privacy in his home, his office and his person, the right of trial by jury, protection against double jeopardy—and perhaps more sacred than all—the holy right to worship God according to the dictate of his own conscience. (Loud applause.)

And these things we were not willing then and are not willing now to leave in the light grant or the chance denial of any man or set of men. But when I reflect that, in my sober judgment, Senator La Follette is some distance yet from a majority in the electoral college (laughter and applause), that he has far to go to carry two-thirds of both branches of Congress, and that three-fourths of the states are still to be heard from—I cannot lie awake nights for fear that an anarchist with a bomb in one hand and a dagger in the other may spring upon me if I so much as close my eyes. (Laughter and applause.)

Wave of Protest.

I wish to submit to my fellow-countrymen, however, in all soberness, that the great wave of protest which undeniably is sweeping through this land today is not a chance accident. It has its foundations in its source somewhere, and by curious coincidence it takes its rise in the same political party that was rent in twain in 1912, under conditions not dissimilar to these.

Then, as now, corruption had shown its ugly front in high places in the national Government. Then, as now, privilege had been permitted to hold the pen that wrote the national law.

And then, as now, the American people had come to believe that they had little part in the Government of the day, and that those who held power were little disposed to listen to their complaints or to remedy them.

And under similar conditions today, revolt and rebellion have appeared. It is not a light symptom, my friends. It is symptomatic of the fact that there lie before the American people tonight three choices that they must make. They may choose, if they please, to continue on the road of privilege. They may follow those who believe that it is both the right and the duty of the Government to favor a selected few, in order that out of their bounty and advantage they may distribute to their less fortunate fellows. They may follow those who believe that when scandal and corruption break forth in government, it is enough to select the isolated guilty, and, having chosen him, that then the things from which that corruption sprang may be glossed over and forgotten in the popular mind.

They may follow those who believe that there is no such thing in this country as party responsibility for party acts, and that the memories of the American people are so short that they may be readily imposed upon. They may choose, if they will, the philosophy which, at bottom, means Government by the well-born or the rich or the able or the fortunate, over those less fortunate; or they may take the second course and choose those so little content with the administration of our governmental affairs, so disgusted with what has transpired, so determined to find relief, that they are ready and willing to alter the whole form and structure of our Government, and by rash and reckless experiment, to build up castles in the air of their own devising —a new structure in place of the one that has served us so well.

And if the American people do not get now the relief to which their attention and desires are addressed, the day must come when that voice of reckless protest will, like a rising tide, bear us upon its bosom to destinies of which we little dream.

The Third Course.

What then is left? There is a third course, well charted, often trod, every line of which is marked, and along which great mottoes, and great principles guide us to the prosperity we have enjoyed in the past, and to the equal prosperity we may rightfully aspire to in the future.

For, unlike the Republican party, it is the theory of the Democracy that prosperity is not a gift to be given to the chosen few and by them distributed at their will and pleasure among their fellows; but it is the equal gift of an equal government to all American citizens, of whatever rank and class and station. We want an equal prosperity that is passed around (applause). And we want it in pursuit of the fundamental Democratic motto of "Equal rights to all men and special privilege to none (applause).

We would not change the form of this Government, my friends. We should not desert the ancient landmarks; but we would give to the American people an administration free from the double vice of corruption on the one hand and favoritism on the other; and we would give them laws equal in their import and written by the elected representatives of the people, and not by any who derive privilege or advantage under them. That is the motto of the Democracy. (Applause.)

And I submit to all patriotic Americans tonight that it is only along that road that they may find reconciliation and healing for this deep unrest.

When Woodrow Wilson came to power in 1912 and when the democracy again received authority to conduct this Government, the third party subsided, the protest was stilled, and the American people went forward in confidence that, at last, the Government was equal to them all.

And for the democracy I have no higher ambition and no greater hope than that it may, by your voice and your consent, repeat in similar fashion the great service it has rendered in the past (applause).

WELCOME IN ST. LOUIS SHOWS THAT 'MISSOURI'S SAFE,' DAVIS DECLARES

"THE Coliseum meeting was such an impressive, overwhelming demonstration," said John W. Davis after returning to his private car at Union Station last night, "that I was more nearly taken off my feet than I have ever been. The cordiality and enthusiasm of the welcome almost choked me and it was most difficult for me to acknowledge it properly.

"Thirty days ago I thought it would not be possible to equal the 'battle of Bunceton,' but this comes up to that. The police force should be complimented for their scientific arrangements. I feel now I can well afford to put Missouri in the Democratic column—I'm leaving here with the feeling Missouri's safe. I never saw such sportsmanship as that of the defeated Democratic candidates for Governor who were at the meeting."

Davis went to the station directly from the Coliseum. Arriving at the station at 10 p. m., he attracted scarcely any attention in the quick walk from the Market street entrance to his train on track 32. Afterward a small crowd collected at the gate and the Eighteenth street fence, but without getting an opportunity to see the candidate, who retired at 11 p. m. Several railroad men were admitted to shake hands with him. His train left at 11:30 for Nashville, Tenn.

tinued for two or three minutes before he was able to begin speaking.

Scene Impresses Davis.

Davis said that the scene took him back in memory to the Democratic convention at New York. The audience laughed with him and applauded when he added that it took a longer time to nominate him than any other man who had ever lived.

"You will win, too, John. You will win," came a voice from the audience, and there was more applause.

He swung into a prediction of Democratic success in November, and the audience indorsed his words with another tumult. Flags, hats and handkerchiefs were waved. The decorous ones on the platform clapped their hands. Out in the audience there was a vocal din.

Negro Band Plays.

Davis had barely launched into his speech when a negro band came blaring its way through the hall. It was playing "The Gang's All Here," and it continued to play for five minutes while Davis stood smiling, awaiting a chance to go on.

"I am glad to see," he remarked, "that before the evening is over this hall can fairly be regarded as filled. Thirty days ago I attended what I believed to be the largest political gathering ever held in these United States, and never until tonight did I believe that indoors or out it would be possible to repeat the Battle of Bunceton."

Dr. Arthur W. Nelson, who was seated on the platform, smiled his pleasure at the reference to the political meeting and barbecue on his farm.

Davis praised Nelson as a "business man having the confidence of farmers and a farmer having the confidence of business men." There was applause for Nelson—scattering applause, nothing like that which greeted Davis.

It Was a Love Feast.

The meeting was a Democratic love feast. It co-operated with Davis heartily. When Davis, after his appeal for Nelson, remarked that on the same day that the State would choose a Governor it would also help to name the Chief Executive of the United States, a voice boomed out:

"That will be you."

Some thought that the voice said: "That will be you, Jack."

If they caught the interruption correctly it brought a brand-new word into this campaign. Davis is human and friendly, but "Jack," as anybody at the Coliseum last night could see, somehwo doesn't fot. He is and always has been John Davis. The official stenographers didn't get the "Jack," or, if they did, they declined to transcribe it.

Davis pressed on to a theme in the treatment of which he is always at his best—the character and record of Woodrow Wilson. His fine tribute to the dead President evoked a great demonstration.

Friendly Shouts.

Davis was continually interrupted by friendly shouts from his audience. He said that he fully expected to go to Washington on the Fourth of March, and somebody yelled, "You will."

As he started an appeal for a Democratic Congress, a voice cried, "We'll send Harry Hawes."

"That is exactly what I was coming to," Davis said, "and I do not want any mistake about it, either. I want you to send him and all the other Democrats that you can, to keep him and me company."

He promised that if he were elected there would be a change at Washington. There would be no more Albert B. Falls, or Denbys, or Daughertys, or Forbeses, or

PARTY LEADERS SAY DAVIS' SPEECH WILL MAKE VOTES

Remarks on Klan Issue and Labor and Recital of "Creed" and Party Principles Especially Pleasing.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

Irrespective of the effect on Republican voters of the speech of John W. Davis at the monster mass meeting at the Coliseum last night. Democratic party leaders were elated over the success of the gathering and the beneficial effect they expressed confidence it would have on the Democratic campaign in Missouri.

The spontaneity of the enthusiasm which marked the meeting, the largest political meeting in St. Louis this campaign, was taken by the leaders as an indication of an aroused public approval of Davis and as an indication that Davis will poll considerbly more than the normal Democratic strength in St. Louis.

Though there was no direct denunciation of the Ku Klux Klan, the candidate's definite statement of his opposition over a period of many years and the opposition of the Democratic party to any restriction upon the right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience brought prolonged cheers from the audience, and, in the opinion of Congressman Harry B. Hawes and other party leaders in St. Louis, accomplished a solidification of the St. Louis Democracy sufficient to assure virtually the united support of St. Louis Democrats for the ticket.

Recital of "Creed" Pleasing.

His declaration of his "American Creed," reciting the obligations of government to the people under the government, was listened to attentively, and was acclaimed by party leaders as the most concise interpretation of the right of the people ever given.

Davis touched upon the particular points needed by the Democrats to hold in line for the party ticket in the election certain elements of the party which it had been feared might drift to La Follette, and it seemed probable that its effect would be to reduce the vote which La Follette's organization had reason to expect would be drawn by him from the Democrats. The apparently satisfactory mention of the klan issue was particularly pleasing to St. Louis Democrats who feared that some of the anti-klan Democrats would refrain from voting the Democratic ticket in November.

An explanation of the legislation protecting the rights of labor and of capital during the eight years of the Wilson administration and Davis' argument that these demonstrated that the Democratic party was a safe party for labor and for business was pointed to by a number of Democrats after the meeting as unanswerable logic which was certain to have a marked effect on the campaign.

State Chairman's Opinion.

Joshua Barbee, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, said last night that he regarded the meeting as a convincing evidence that the Democratic party and the people were aroused as they had not been in years. "After hearing Mr. Davis," he said, "nobody could doubt that the Democratic party has a candidate who has the confidence of the people. He showed that he understood the problems of the laboring man and of the business man and that the purpose of the Democratic party and his purpose as President would be to administer the Government not in the interest of a protected few but in the interest of all the people. There was not the slightest doubt in my mind of Democratic success in Missouri before the speech. After it, I am convinced that our majority will be materially increased."

Congressman Harry B. Hawes, who for years has been a leader in the fight against centralization of power in Government, against the Ku Klux Klan and for protection of individual rights, expressed the opinion the speech would materially aid the ticket in St. Louis. "It was a wonderful speech," he said. "Mr. Davis set out clearly the Democratic theory of Government, and he set it out in a way which could not be misunderstood. The speech should mean many votes added [illegible] the Democratic total in Missouri. His declaration of belief in [illegible] right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience undoubtedly will appeal to a great mass of the voters in St. Louis."

Strong Speech, Says Priest.

Henry S. Priest, who was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, and who introduced Davis, said "it was old-fashioned Democratic doctrine." "It was a very strong speech," Priest said, "and undoubtedly it will do much good. It was a strong argument delivered as any capable lawyer would deliver his argument to a court. It was clear, concise and understandable to everybody."

George H. Moore, who presided and who also was a candidate for the nomination for Governor, was enthusiastic in his approval. "The speech means that every Democrat who heard it left the hall a crusader for the Democratic cause," he said. "It means that there cannot be defection from the Democratic party in Missouri. Mr. Davis recalled the principles which made men and women Democrats, and the principles which governed their actions in the past will govern them in the future when they are so recalled. Democracy got everything it needed in Missouri in the speech."

Floyd E. Jacobs of Kansas City, also a candidate for the nomination for Governor, expressed pleasure over the meeting. "It was a wonderful exhibition of enthusiasm," Jacobs said. "To me the meeting meant that there can be no question of a united Democracy in Missouri, and the Davis speech contained much thought for the man who is not hide-bound to a party. I have been urging a united front against the Republican party of privilege and I was gratified at the exhibition of support of Democratic principles by the big crowd."

Effect on Labor.

Charles M. Hay expressed the opinion that the attention Davis gave to the labor problem would have a beneficial effect. "Mr. Davis pointed out clearly the action of the Democratic administration to protect the rights of labor by its legislation recognizing the right of collective bargaining and in regulating the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes," Hay said.

"The laboring man cannot think of that and study over it without coming to the conclusion that the only hope for the mass of people who toil is in the Democratic party. If there was any marked tendency of labor to leave the Democratic party Mr. Davis certainly put a most effective check on it."

W. D. Vandiver of Columbia, long a state Democratic leader, praised the speech as "an unanswerable argument to the farmer, the laborer and the business man." "The only class which I can see that would be unmoved by it," Vandiver said, "is the class of protected rich who profit from the Republican party to the injury of the people as a whole."

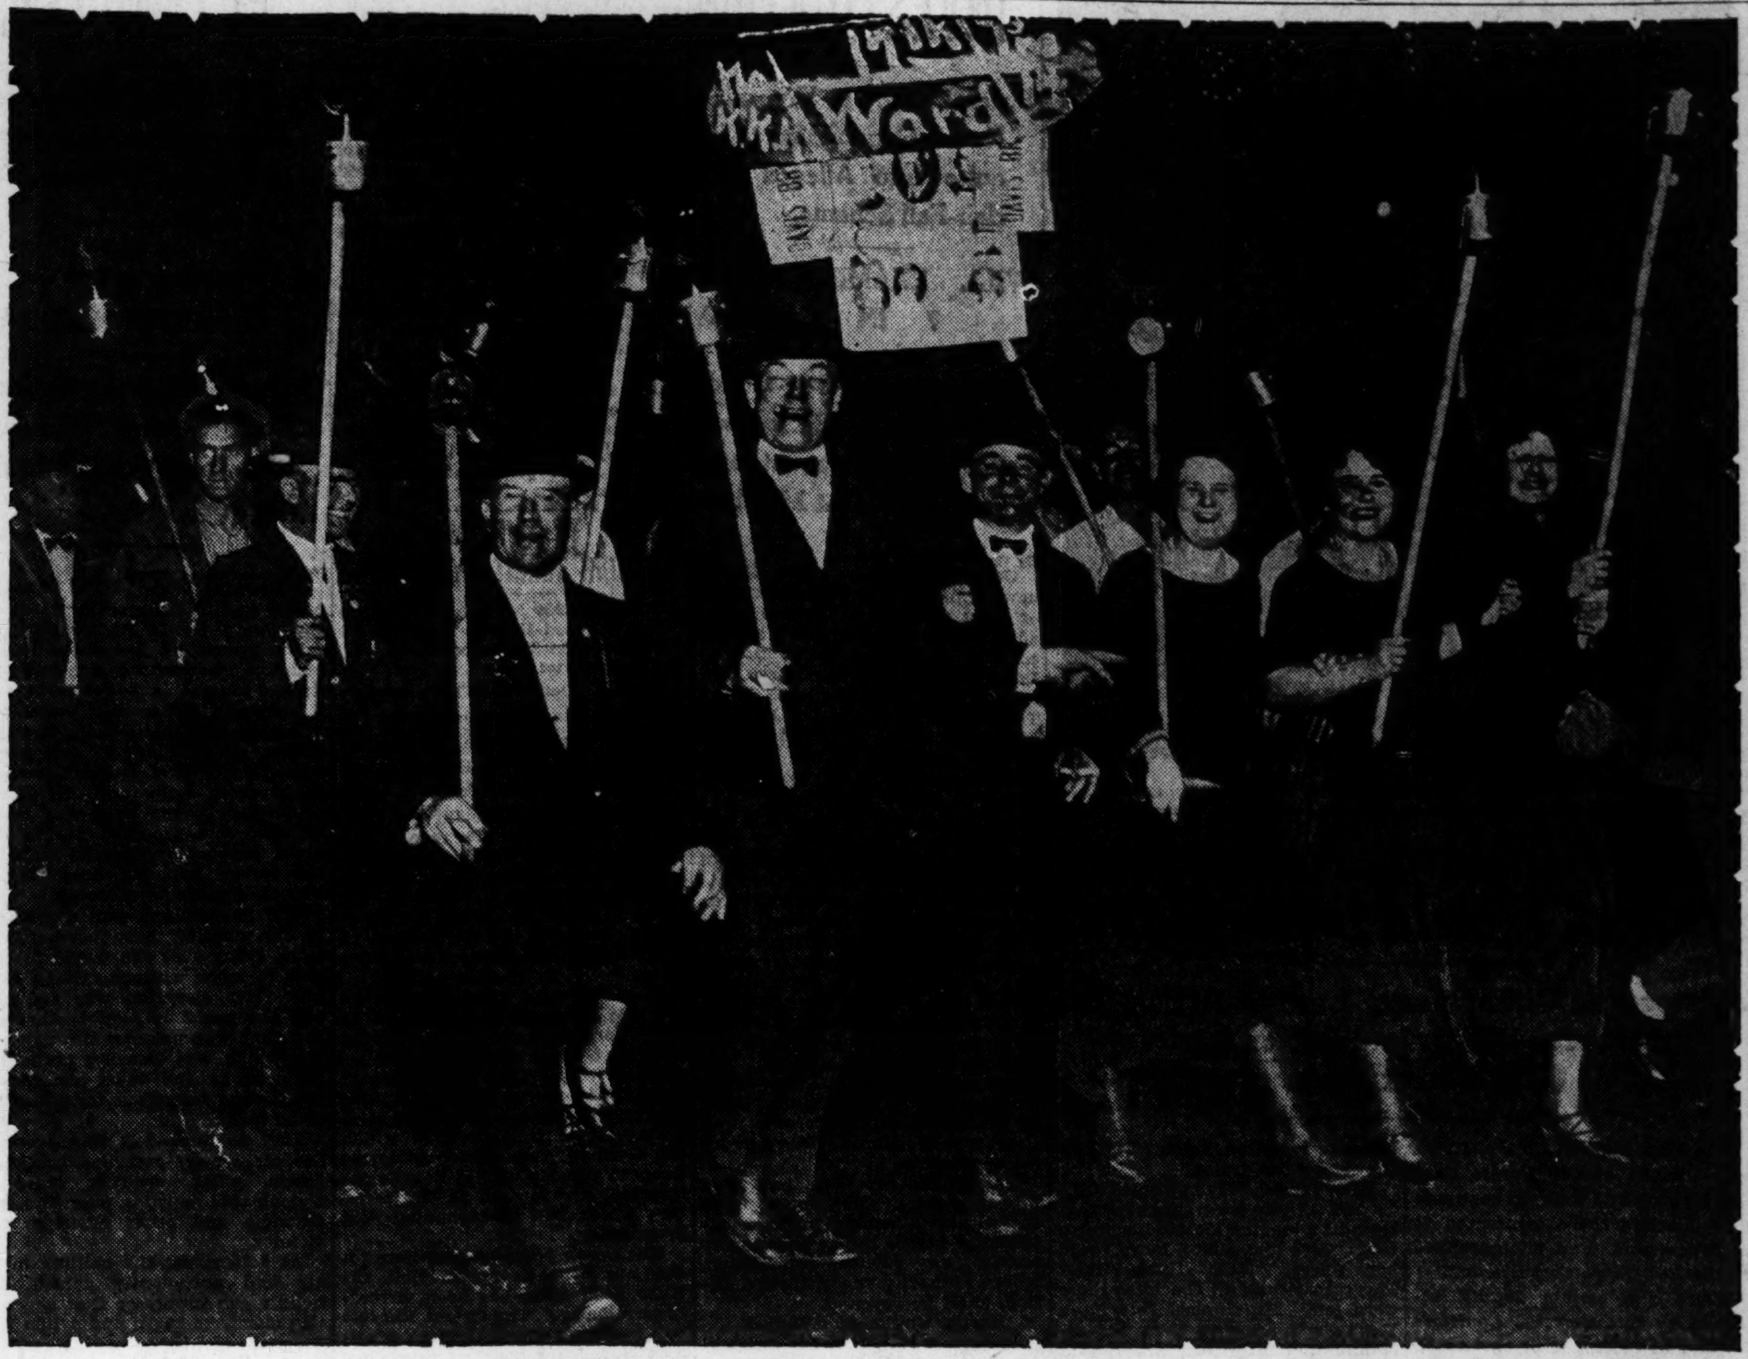
DAVIS DRUBS REPUBLICAN BOGEY MEN IN EAST ST. LOUIS SPEECH



Section of Last Night's Torchlight Parade in Honor of Mr. Davis, Showing Women Participants

G. O. P. MUST BE HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR WRONGS DONE NATION, HE SAYS

Democratic Nominee Points to Record of His Party in Serving Labor, Farmer and Business.

John W. Davis addressed an audience of 4000 in Ainad Temple, East St. Louis, yesterday afternoon, speaking for 55 minutes. He was escorted from Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis, to the East Side and back by a committee headed by Mayor Stephens. A line of decorated automobiles followed, and the cars took part in a parade through downtown East St. Louis, led by a mounted and color-bedecked escort from the Jefferson Club of that city.

Men and women waving flags and wearing festal caps were lined along the streets near the city hall. There was a considerable group of negroes, displaying banners with unfavorable references to the Coolidge candidacy.

In his East St. Louis speech the candidate compared the harmony of the Democratic party with the discord in the Republican party, both in Congress and in various states. He urged the election of a Congress Democratic in both branches, and he pictured the "bogeymen" of the Republican campaign, one being the idea that Republican rule is essential to prosperity and the other being that the election of Coolidge is the only way to keep La Follette from destroying the Constitution,

His address, delivered for the most part in a calm and earnest manner, was well received throughout, and the chief show of enthusiasm by the audience greeted the nominee's pronouncement in behalf of religious liberty.

While There Is Still Time.

A forceful argument, with which the speech closed, was that the present unrest and spirit of protest should be met, while there is still time to meet it in an orderly way. If it is disregarded, he declared, "when the wind rises again, it may sweep us all into irretrievable ruin."

The large temple auditorium was filled long before the candidate's party arrived at 2:45 p. m. Congressman Harry B. Hawes of St. Louis made a speech to the waiting crowd, and stressed opposition the the Ku Klux Klan, the audience showing its approval.

Tribute to Wilson.

Maurice V. Joyce, in a brief introductory speech, declared that Davis combined the qualities of Thomas Jefferson, Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson.

In beginning his address, Davis said he could hardly accept such comparisons, and paid tributes to Jefferson, Cleveland and Wilson. There was hearty applause when he declared that Wilson "swept, like a great breath of cleansing, across our public life."

Yet, the candidate said, he would not quarrel with his introducer, and recalled how Dr. Samuel Johnson said when the King praised one of his works to an extreme degree, "Who am I to bandy words with my sovereign?"

He said that, in traveling from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic Coast, he had detected no apathy among Democratis. "If Gen. Apathy is in command anywhere," he said, "it must be in the Republican camp."

Then came the argument that, with a Democratic President, the people should elect a Democratic Congress. No man is strong enough to direct the course of Government alone, he said. Men must act in groupes, and parties must bear responsibility.

Party Responsibility.

"We must hold the party, not the individual, responsible for the record of its representatives in office," he said. "Were the Democratic party now in power, I would insist on the same rule.

"If you should elect a Republican President, the country would be better served if he had a Senate and House of his party complexion. But unless I read the signs of the times wrong, there is no possibility of the election of a Republican House and Senate. And if there were such a possibility, you would find repeated in both bodies, as soon as they were called in session, the same impotence and division that has rendered the country rudderless and leaderless for the last three years."

His Reply to Hughes.

He referred to a "distinguished gentleman"—Secretary of State Hughes, it soon appeared — who had said that the Democrats were "split to pieces in the West and honeycombed in the East." In reply to this, he told of the Republican divisions in South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas, Colorado and other Western states. As to the East, he asked whether his hearers thought that, after the State election in New York "Theodore Jr. or Al Smith will have the more honeycombed appearance."

As to Republican divisions, Davis said the terms "regular" and "insurgent" seemed no longer adequate, and he spoke of "the cool wing, that wants to keep cool, and the hot wing." Asking whether there was any chance that the "cool wing" would carry a majority of the seats in the House of Representatives, he suggested a study of the map. He also held it improbable that either wing could gain control of the Senate. This condition, he said, pointed to the Democratic party, which he said has "harmony, uniformity and unison," as the agency to take over the Government.

Davis then discussed the scandals in the Interior Department, under the Republican administration, the "carelessness" in the Navy Department, whose officials "didn't know what was being done, and could only say afterward that they would do the same thing again," and the record of the Department of Justice, with a reference to the use of the power of that department in the indictment of Senator Wheeler.

Coolidge's "Straw" Strength.

He referred to the abuse of the provisions made for the care of wounded soldiers, as another thing for which the Republican administration must be held responsible, then turned to legislative acts, and discussed the Fordney-McCumber tariff, and the Mellon plan of tax reduction. Here he digressed to refer to the "straw vote" showing of strength for Coolidge, and reminded his hearers that a similar vote had resulted 8 to 1 in favor of the Mellon plan, but that Congress had substituted the Democratic plan, and that it had proven so much more just and equal that no one would dare now to propose a return to the Mellon proposals.

He said that the Mellon plan would appeal to persons with net incomes of $67,000 a year or more, but that for any of his hearers who might be making less than $67,000 a year, the Democratic plan was the more favorable.

He then dealt with the "bogey men," which he said the Republican leaders were using to frighten voters. The first was, that Republican success was in some way essential to prosperity. He recited a list of panics under Republican tariff laws, ending with the present "blight on the West" under the Fordney-McCumber tariff.

"Privilege, once intrenched, asks nothing better than to be left alone to enjoy its gains," he said. He compared the present tariff with the Underwood-Simmons bill of the first Wilson administration.

Democracy and Labor.

"The Democratic party," said the speaker, "is not a labor party, although it is proud of the great army of laboring men that march beneath its banner. And when you gave it power, it wrote into the laws of this country for the first time the bold declaration that the labor of a human being was not a commodity or an article of commerce, that you could no longer trade in men as you would trade in goods or coin. It recognized by law the power of laboring men to combine for their own advantage, and collectively to bargain for their own welfare and improvement. It wrote into the statutes that that right should never be denied by any power in the land. It seized upon the abuse of the writ of injunction, and laid down the rules which would govern and guide the court and gave to men arested for an offense, whether under an injunction or other process, the right of trial by jury, sanctified by years of Anglo-Saxon history and struggle. It recognized for employes the eight-hour day as a standard for their daily toil, and, in industries like the railroads, that it had the power to regulate, it recognized the same identical principle and made it run.

"If I may speak of myself for a moment, I take some pride in the fact that in all of the things that are enumerated it was given to me to bear a humble part.

"Will you laboring men here tell me what more you expect a labor party to do for you than that? What greater consideration will you have than from the Democratic party, whose great ambition is to treat labor as a component part of the community that knows its own need and is entitled to be listened to when it speaks?

For the Farmer.

"Are there any farmers here? The Democracy is not a farmer party, although if you will go over the broad acres of this land you will find not one single state or section where those who wring a living from the soil, and whose sturdy effort feeds not only themselves but all the rest of the nation—they, too, are proud and content to call themselves Democrats.

"When the Democracy had power, it first initiated the farm loan system that brought credit within the reach of every farmer. It expanded the activities of the Department of Agriculture, which first saw its growth and development under Democratic auspices in the days of Grover Cleveland. It initiated the good roads movement. It brought into being the parcels post. It expanded the rural free delivery system, which was begun when William L. Wilson was Postmaster-General. What more will any farmer party do for you in the same length of time than that?

For the Business Man.

"Are there any business men present in this audience? What have they to think of as they look back on the record of Democracy? We passed the Underwood tariff bill, and it did not have the effect of the present bill, which has raised the price of commodities so high that the buying power of the public has so fallen off that, if you will visit New England today, you will find the whole textile industry bleeding and prostrate, illustrating once again the undeniable truth to which there is no exception, that unrestrained greed must soon or late defeat its own end.

"Then we gave to the country a financial system for which it had hungered for 50 years, and in building up the Federal reserve system erected a financial structure so strong tha the cataclysm of the Great War swept across the country and did not shake it in a single beam. Will you get a business party to do any more for you than that?"

The other "bogey man," he said, was the idea that the present fight was between Coolidge and La Follette, and that La Follette was a dangerous man, likely to overthrow the Constitution.

Unhampered Religious Faith.

"There are great rights in this country," he said, "that I do not want any Legislature, or any Congress, or any Judge, if you choose, or any executive, to have the pow- to lay his his finger on—the great rights of free speech, freedom of the press, trial by jury, right of privacy, freedom from unlawful search and seizure, and the great right of religious faith and practice, unhampered by anybody."

This brought the heartiest applause of the meeting, and the candidate continued. "I will have no man meddle with those things, whether you call him Congressman or legislator, or any other title you choose. I want some court to have the power to say, if he attempts it, 'All you have written there is so much waste paper. You have gone beyond the charter of authority that the people gave you.'"

But, Davis said, La Follette could not put his program into effect except through a constitunal amendment, and that he has no chance of being elected, anyway.

TAX CUT AND TARIFF REDUCTION PLEDGE OF DAVIS

Manningtons or Jess Smiths or Gaston B. Meansez.

"And if Teapot Dome is ever recovered," he went on, lifting his voice to make himself heard above the applause, "it will not slip again out of the hands of the United States."

Legislative Changes.

He promised legislative changes —a reduction in taxation "all along the line" and a reduction in the tariff which he said took a yearly toll of three billion dollars from American consumers. It was obvious from the response that the audience wanted both tax and tariff reduction.

He made a specific pledge of inland waterway development, including the development of the Mississippi.

"And above all," he said, "you will get a Government honest from top to bottom, not only honest among its lesser employes, but honest also among those at the top, who will no longer have friends to favor or enemies to punish at the public expense."

He told of the "vast conspiracy of silence" on the Republican side of the campaign, and in this connection thrust at Secretary Wilbur, who, he said, was suddenly called back to Washington and "muffled" after he had gone out to the Pacific Coast and "brandished his sword at Japan."

Amid frequent applause, Davis recounted the differences between the Republican President and the Republican Congress on the bonus, the postal pay bill, Japanese immigration and other issues, and recalled the repudiation of the World Court plan by members of the President's party.

Again he shot at the recent statement by Hughes that the Democratic party was probably going to be split to pieces in the West and honeycombed in the East.

He pointed to the record of the Democratic party to prove that it was safe for business, safe for the farmer, safe for labor.

A new and notable feature of the speech was Davis' reply to a statement made here recently by Charles Nagel. Without naming Nagel, he said he had read in the St. Louis papers a reference by a St. Louisan to the "Scandals of the Wilson administration."

"I challenge him to name, or anyone to name," he ripped out, "a single officer who held a commission in that great war, whether in the army, the navy or the civil service, on whose fingers there stuck so much as one dollar of dirty money. And if he has discovered any—if he has discovered a single one, he has found more than a partisan Republican Congress was able to do after 51 investigations had been put on foot by them and pressed to a conclusion."

As he has done several times lately, Davis paid his respects to Secretary of State Hughes. He said that Hughes' memory must have been at fault when he asserted that the Democratic party had put a mine under business and the Republicans had been busy gathering up the debris.

The deflation of which Hughes complained, Davis charged, was brought about under Republican auspices. He challenged Hughes to explain why 1649 banks went to the wall in the first three years of the Harding-Coolidge administration, as compared with only 189 in the last three years of the Wilson administration.

Davis charged that the LaFollette movement was being used by the Republicans as a smoke screen to conceal the real issues of the campaign.

Applause rang through the building when he declared again for the safeguarding of freedom of speech, freedom of religious worship and the other rights guaranteed by the Constitution. He opposed the grant of power to Congress to override court decisions because he did not wish to jeopardize in the slightest these great rights.

He said there were three choices before the voters in the coming election. They might vote to continue in power "the party of privilege," they might approve "reckless experiment" or they might vote for the Democratic party, which "would not desert the ancient landmarks, but would give the American people an administration free from the double vice of corruption and favoritism."

As Davis finished, the crowd gave him a lusty cheer. Hundreds of enthusiasts made for the platform, but his party formed a flying wedge about him and got him safely to his car.

St. Louis seemed bent on killing the candidate with kindness.

500 AT DEMOCRATS' VICTORY DINNER

Members of Press Association and County Chairmen Hear Brief Talk by Davis.

More than 500 men and women attended the John W. Davis Victory Dinner at Hotel Jefferson at 6 p. m. yesterday, given by the Democratic State Committee to the State Democratic Press Association and the Democratic county chairmen of the State.

The candidate made his appearance before the assemblage at 7:15 and was greeted with a three-minute ovation, in which men and women stood on chairs, cheering and waving napkins and handkerchiefs.

Joshua W. Barbee, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, introduced the speakers before Davis' appearance. They were George H. Scruton, owner of the Sedalia Democrat and president of the State Democratic Press Association; George S. Johns, editor of the editorial page of the Post-Dispatch; Dr. A. W. Nelson, Democratic candidate for the governorship, and Frank P. Glass, editorial director of the St. Louis Star.

"The Next President."

After the appearance of Davis, Barbee turned the gavel over to former Gov. Frederick D. Gardner, who introduced the candidate as "the next President of the United States."

Davis spoke but a minute. "I am sure that Missouri has in its bill of rights the clause forbidding cruel and unusual punishments," he said. "You folks will hear me at the Coliseum. I shall not punish either you or myself by twice delivering the speech.

"From the ardor you have shown, I will say I have great confidence of Democratic success in Missouri." There were cheers, and Davis continued, "I will say I have entire confidence of Democratic success in Missouri."

Democracy Cheered.

Davis thanked the editors for the state-wide work in behalf of his candidacy. "The support you are lending to the cause gives cheer and comfort to your neighboring States and to the Democracy of the nation.

"I shall not discuss issues at this time. I must speak again shortly at another place. We will save the bombardment until then."

10,000 AT COLISEUM IN AN EXUBERANT MOOD

Democrats, After Torchlight Procession, Lead in Party Donkey and "Coolidge's" Goat.

An exuberant and confident air pervaded the Davis rally in the Coliseum last night, attended by a crowd estimated at more than 10,000.

For a part of the audience—that part which filled the arena—the indoors meeting was the sequel of an old-fashioned torchlight parade. Democracys emblem, the donkey, was in the parade, and it went right on into the hall, greatly to the amusement of the gathering. It was a white mule ridden by one of the Seventeenth Ward organization.

The mule and his rider passed through the aisles, past standing and sitting people, some of them a bit shy of the animal's heels. At the south end of the arena the animal remained in sight awhile before being stabled under the balcony.

Crowd Gathers Early.

Several hundred persons had gathered at the Coliseum main entrance before 6:30 p. m. When the doors opened at 7, several times that many were waiting. The early comers got the gallery seats, the arena being reserved for the members of marching clubs.

The stage was on the east side of the arena, as it has been customary in the past for political meetings. For the La Follette meeting, Tuesday night, the Veiled Prophet stage at the south end was used, and this, with the absence of amplifiers, made it impossible for a large part of the audience to hear La Follette.

Amplifiers were in use last night, and were tested thoroughly before the speaking.

Standing Room Taken.

All parts of the house were filled, and all permissible standing space was occupied, when the candidate arrived at 8:30 p. m. Before that, there had been no attempt to start the meeting, except for band music.

Outside in small groups waited at 8 p. m. 500 persons who wished a sight of the candidate before they went home. Yet when he came, in the first of six automobiles rushed down Washington boulevard from the reviewing stand, there were few in the thin line along the Washington boulevard sidewalk who recognized the Democratic nominee, as he was hurried by to the south entrance on Jefferson avenue from which his party entered the building.

It wasn't enough. And the little groups still waited for the marchers who followed almost half an hour later. They were quiet despite the cheers which echoed from inside, and patient. On the corner a communist was chanting: "For once in your life buy a worker's paper." Balloon and photographic buttons were hawked along the street, and hot dogs and peanuts.

Then came the marchers. Probably half of them turned into the Washington boulevard entrance, and the following divisions was taken in by the south Jefferson avenue entrance.

No Room for All Marchers.

There wasn't room in the Coliseum for those marchers, and many of them simply made their way through the vast concourse, saw their leader and came out again.

Former Gov. Gardner accompanied Davis to the platform, and Breckinridge Long and other prominent Democrats followed.

Cheering, which lasted for 10 minutes, delayed the beginning of the speech. Edward F. Goltra, former national committeeman, stepped forward when it was possible to be heard, and presented as presiding officer of the meeting George H. Moore, former Collector of Internal Revenue, and an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for the governorship.

"Harmonious in Mourning."

Floyd E. Jacobs of Kansas City, another of the unsuccessful candidates for the governorship, was introduced, and talked for a few minutes, saying that he and the other defeated aspirants were "harmonious in their mourning."

During his talk sections of the parade entered, the white donkey being followed, at no long distance, by a black goat which was labeled, "We've Got Coolidge's Goat."

Negro veterans of the war, 30 or more in number, were in the parade, and were heartily applauded.

Former Judge Henry S. Priest, third of the defeated candidates, was presented by Moore, and introduced Davis in a speech which praised the candidate as a statesman and a man.

"The Gang's All Here."

The candidate began speaking at 9 o'clock. At that time the Coliseum, upstairs and down, appeared to be filled to its capacity. But a band, accompanying a ward organization at the end of the parade, pushed its way in, playing "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here."

Davis stopped speaking, and those on the platform supposed the playing would stop in a minute. Instead, it continued while the band pressed on through the aisles, repeating its reckless refrain several times. It was quieted only after loud protests from the audience, and Davis resumed speaking.

The speaker's voice was carried clearly to the topmost rows of the gallery through the use of amplifiers. The perfection with which the device operated was indicated by the fact that the entire audience remained seated and listening until the speech was finished.

DAVIS GREETED BY TORCHLIGHT PARADE OF 1500

Colorful Procession of Men and Women Creates Picture Reminiscent of the 80's and 90's.

GROUP OF NEGROES AMONG MARCHERS

Nominee Cheered When He Arises in Auto at Lindell-Locust Cut-Off, Where Sections Join.

A r'arin' Democracy in St. Louis gave a colorful torchlight parade last night in honor of its presidential candidate, John W. Davis, such as has not been seen here in lo! these many years. The candidate's lack of time to review the flare-bearing marchers apparently failed to dampen the "sidewalks of St. Louis" spirit.

Men and women and children took part, all with shiny sticks, on top of which were bright cans of kerosene and torches aglow. Here and there an automobile from which torches protruded nosed into line. Some sections were thrown in high relief by red or green fire. Cheers for the party of Davis and Jefferson were punctuated with jeers for the party of Coolidge, Fall et al.

Altogether it was a picture reminiscent of old politicians' yarns of rallies in the 80's or 90's; perhaps all that was lacking was the old-fashioned transparency. What was lacking in an enthused crowd of spectators was made up by the pep of the marchers.

The Lindell-Locust cut-off was the rendezvous, where representatives of central-eastern wards, who had gathered on Chestnut street downtown, joined those from other wards, who met on Lindell boulevard. A considerable crowd gathered in this plaza while heavy night traffic went by. Where was Davis? Where was the parade? Wasn't 7:30 the hour?

Cheers for Candidate.

Lawler Daley's boys from the Seventeenth Ward, a strong contingent, concluded to join their fellows from the West End and created a brief diversion, going out Olive street. "No K. K. K. here" read some of their signs, and this was emphasized by the presence of numerous negroes in their group.

At 8:10 the candidate's party hove in sight. "Here they come!" "Stand up, Davis!" The distinguished looking gentleman with the silvery hair smiled, arose and bowed. His car was parked in the plaza, while detectives gathered around. "Three cheers for Davis if he stands up again!" cried a man. The Democratic leader complied and the crowd responded. Women's voices echoed, "Hurray!"

With Davis in the open, decorated car were Arthur Nelson, Democratic candidate for Governor; Mrs. Nelson, former Gov. Gardner, Edward F. Goltra and Davis' personal secretary, L. J. Gualdoni, a former prohibition agent, drove. The party waited eight minutes while the hosts chafed. The Coliseum appointment had to be kept, so Davis was whisked away, the signal for some of the crowd to go. Four minutes later the head of the parade came down Lindell boulevard.

It took 20 minutes for the procession to pass a point. There were many hundreds of marchers with several bands and two squads of mounted policemen. The Thirteenth Ward Democratic Club led with about the largest contingent of any ward. A flapper in its files led sporadic cheers, which weren't respectful of Republicans.

Negroes in Parade.

One ward club was accompanied by the band of Calvin Hyde (negro) Post, American Legion. A number of men in the Twentieth Ward group shouted, "no kluxers here!" There were several donkeys, party symbols, in the line. The Twenty-first Ward had a little black beast labeled, "we got Coolidge's goat." There was a mounted Uncle Sam. One band obliged with the adopted anthem of the Democrats, sometimes known as "East Side, West Side." There were numerous signs boosting Fred Murphy, Democratic candidate for Sheriff and one ward announced its approval of Jerome Duggan's candidacy for Congress. Four wards were not represented, nor was St. Louis County.

From Lindell-Locust cut-off the parade moved over Channing avenue and Washington boulevard to the Coliseum, where, however, there was not a chance for the marchers to enter the crowded building. Most of the spectators along the route were in machines halted by the jam, and busses. Horns kept up a din.

At Garrison avenue several dozen youthful charges of Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home were in windows in their night clothes, with a nun or two watching them. The bobbing torches of the mass of walkers filled Washington boulevard with an unreal scene.

JOHN W. DAVIS, ON ARRIVAL IN CITY, ASSAILS HUGHES

Says Secretary "Well Knows Republicans Inherited Benefits of a Clean Administration."

NOMINEE CHEERED AT UNION STATION

Dr. Nelson and Three Former Governors on Reception Committee That Greeted Candidate at Train.

Upon his arrival at Union Station from Chicago at 9:30 a. m. yesterday, John W. Davis, in fighting mood, assailed the recent statement of Secretary of State Hughes that Democrats had put a mine under prosperity and left the debris for Republicans to pick up.

"Mr. Hughes well knows that the Republicans inherited the benefits of a clean and wholesome administration when they went into power in 1921," Davis said. "Business and prosperity had mounted to a high peak. If there is any debris, it will be the Democrats who inherit it on March 4. Any thinking man will tell you the same thing."

Recalls Bunceton Meeting.

In a greeting as he stepped from his car at Union Station, Davis said:

"I come back to Missouri with pleasant memories of the great meeting at Bunceton fresh in my mind. I am happy, indeed, to be again in St. Louis. I recall with pleasure my visit here two years ago when I addressed the American Bar Association."

His first visit to St. Louis was in 1904, when he was a delegate from West Virginia to the Democratic National Convention which nominated Alton B. Parker of New York for the presidency.

The Davis special train included a private car, a compartment sleeping car, a dining car and a baggage car fitted up with desks and typewriters for newspaper correspondents traveling with him.

A reception committee of 63 members, of which former Gov. Gardner was chairman, was waiting within the train inclosure when the train came to a stop. Immediately the doors were opened and the members of the committee, in groups of 10 or 12, entered the car, Gardner leading and being followed by Arthur W. Nelson, Democratic nominee for Governor. Among the members of the committee were three former Governors of Missouri—Gardner, Elliott W. Major and David R. Francis—and one former Mayor of St. Louis, Rolla Wells. Mgr. Timothy Dempsey also was a member of the committee and was in one of the early groups admitted.

The train had arrived in the railroad yards about 9 o'clock and was delayed in entering the station until Davis had finished his breakfast.

Poses for Photographers.

After the formalities of the reception in the car, Davis was escorted from it by Nelson. There was a delay at the steps while newspaper photographers snapped the candidate, who obligingly posed. Nelson escorted Davis out into the midway of the station, where several hundred persons had gathered. In response to cheers, Davis bowed and waved his hat, which he carried in his right hand as he walked through the midway and into the station proper.

At the Market street entrance, where a decorated automobile was waiting, he again posed at the request of the photographers, then entered the car and started for Hotel Jefferson.

Automobiles for the Reception Committee, parked along Eighteenth street, swung in behind the Davis car as it passed the corner of Eighteenth and Market streets on its way to the hotel.

The automobile party attracted attention on Eighteenth street and on Washington avenue. Persons in Hotel Jefferson lobby applauded and cheered as the candidate entered, and he bowed in acknowledgement. He went at once to his suite on the southeast corner of the second floor, overlooking the intersection of Twelfth boulevard and Locust street, and resumed preparation of his afternoon address at East St. Louis and his evening speech at the Coliseum.

On the drive from the station to the hotel Davis discussed with former Gov. Gardner the campaign conditions over the country. He expressed himself as confident of election. In Chicago Friday, he said, he had received encouraging reports from Nebraska, and in his recent visit in Indiana he became convinced conditions were excellent for Democratic success there.

In His Traveling Tweeds

The Hon. Michael Chimp, K. A.

'Mike' Chimp, Newcomer At Zoo, Would Be Its Mayor

Aristocratic Chimpanzee, Late of Africa, Declares for Bigger and Better Antics at Forest Park.

The Hon. Michael Chimp, K. A., who arrived at the Forest Park Zoo Monday and took up commodious quarters there, consented to be interviewed and photographed by the Post-Dispatch yesterday.

There is a certain dignity attached to this new St. Louisan's position as a Knight of the Antic, but he graciously cast it aside, as is his wont, and was his own democratic self. In fact, he gave general permission to be addressed as "Mike." While speaking of cognomens, he remarked that his surname is a refinement of the plebeian Chimpanzee.

As he strolled from his apartment at Lion House to the lawn he was a commanding figure, standing full three feet high. He was dressed for sport, in tweeds cut sailor style. Presence of an eager group of men, women and children touched a responsive cord in him and he salaamed right and left. He has just reached his majority, having been born in Africa three years ago and transferred his citizenship to America recently.

"First," said Mike, in his peculiar language of barks, grimaces and gestures, "I want to tell about how I came here—a most delightful trip. You know I had been staying on the estate of Ellis Joseph on Long Island, but I dropped into N'Yawk Sunday and dined at the Pennsylvania with Mr. Vierheller, the gentleman in charge of this zoo. I'm something of an epicurean, and I remember the comfortable high chair and the warm milk they served. Saw Rogers Hornsby and his wife while we were there.

A First-class Passenger.

"Then we took a compartment on a fast train; it was jolly fun. Mr. Vierheller poured water on his hands at a shiny basin, so I knew where I could get a drink handily, and I didn't have to bother him every time I got thirsty. Aren't those twisty faucets cute? The berth was snug, and I had Mr. Vierheller's foot to lean against to keep from falling out. They tell me some of the fellows here came out in baggage cars, but I don't see how they stood the drafts."

Mike paused. He had spied a little girl with an ice cream cone that brought a longing look to his brown face. "Give him a bite, Betty," said her nurse. "Take a bite, Mike." The rascal took all the bites there were left. He climbed into Supt. Vierheller's arms to show his attachment. "Kiss me, Mike," said the superintendent, and Mr. Chimp tried to comply.

"My plans?" repeated the simian newcomer in response to a question. "Just say I expect to work for bigger and better antics—more poles and things for monkeys to swing on—larger bags of candy for a nickle, so the kids will share 'em—and I'll always be here to extend the welcome hand to visitors.

Cousins Are Fresh.

"This is a good zoo. See how pretty autumn has made these rolling hills. Take a look before you go at the new house they're building for me and my friends. Right now, I have to stay with all sorts of bourgeois, who don't belong to the Order of the Antic. There was another vacant apartment when I came, but the other day Princess Tigress moved in, from India. I don't think she approves of the flock of visitors I get."

Three distant relatives of the distinguished newcomer, who oddly enough have the same family name, scampered onto the lawn and were introduced to Mike. They are younger than he, but have been there longer, and are an independent group. No cousinly love was lost in the meeting; Henry Kiel and Sally and Duffy were too fresh. Mike hopped to the chronicler's arm, put a warm hand around his neck, and whispered:

"They tell me there was another Henry Kiel Chimp here, who was Mayor of the zoo, but died, and this other one is figuring on running for his place. But wait till I make a few speeches and soon keepers will have to come to Mayor Mike for jobs. I intend to be first citizen here."

So saying, the Hon. Michael Chimp, K. A., trotted to a tree and did his daily dozen on a branch.

KROGER STORE MANAGER AND ROBBER EXCHANGE SHOTS

Believes He Wounded Man Who Gets $60 From Place on North Vandeventer Avenue.

Fred Feltger, 4057 Maffitt avenue, manager of the Kroger grocery store at 2735 North Vandeventer avenue, exchanged shots with an unaccompanied robber who took $60 from the store's cash register at 2:15 p. m. yesterday. As he handed over the money Feltger tried to pull an automatic pistol he carried for such emergency. The robber shot first, but missed.

Feltger told police he believed he had wounded the man as he ran from the store with he money.

Missing Girl Married.

A search started by the Belleville police for Miss Adele Krewson, 17 years old, daughter of Charles Krewson, who disappeared from home Friday ended yesterday when the parents learned that the daughter had been married to Robert D. Sloan of Jewell City, Kan., a Scott Field soldier, who received his honorable discharge from the aviation camp Friday. They were married in East St. Louis and it is said are now on their way to Jewell City to reside.

AIRPLANES DROP LITERATURE FOR ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL

Five Machines Fly Over Downtown St. Louis in Interest of Endowment Fund.

Five planes of the 110th Observation Squadron, National Guard, circled over the business district at 2 p. m. yesterday distributing literature explaining the purpose of the St. Mary's Hospital Endowment Fund, now being raised to remove a debt of $1,000,000 on the new St. Mary's Hospital on Clayton road.

The planes, under command of Capt. C. Ray Wassall, flew over the downtown section for 15 minutes distributing 150,000 pieces of literature explainnig the fund. The pamphlets outlined the efforts of the Sisters of St. Mary here for the last half century, and the plans for additional charitable work when the debt on the new hospital is cleared. The planes returned to Lambert-St. Louis Field after the flight.

TEAPOT DOME BOND DEAL FACES NEW INVESTIGATION

Federal Court in Wyoming Names Commission to Inquire Into Alleged Sinclair-Fall Scheme.

WILL EXAMINE 7 IN CANADA

Passage of Liberty Bonds Expected to Be Shown Between Oil Magnate and Former Cabinet Member.

By the Associated Press.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 18.—A new commission to take depositions of eight persons in Toronto, Canada, who are said to have knowledge of an alleged transaction in Liberty Bonds between Harry Sinclair, negotiator of the lease on the Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserve, near this place, and Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior, was authorized today by Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy.

Judge Kennedy ordered the new commission on application of special counsel for the Government in its suit for cancellation of the Teapot lease to the Mammoth Oil Co., one of the Sinclair interests.

To Examine Seven Witnesses.

The persons whom the commission is authorized to examine are Henry Smith Osler, Britton Osler, N. E. Strickland, Suneva Margaret Fordyce, Morley H. Bruels, Harold E. Boston and Louis Samuel. The commissioners appointed by Judge Kennedy are Harold Shautes, United States Consul at Toronto, and Gershrom W. Mason, King's counsel of Toronto.

The decree provides that upon proper service being made upon the witnesses, calling for their attendance before the commission to testify, an earlier commission, whose authority the witnesses defied, shall be revoked.

Earlier Commission Defied.

In efforts to obtain the testimony of the witnesses, under the earlier commission, the special oil counsel for the United States Government, Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, obtained from the Supreme Court of Toronto, under the evidence act of the Province of Ontario, an order for examination of the witnesses. The witnesses refused to be sworn and, upon contempt proceedings being instituted, attacked the constitutionality of the provincial law under which their attendance before the commission was commanded.

Under the new commission authorized by Judge Kennedy, the special oil counsel of the United States Government, it is understood, will be enabled to compel the appearance of witnesses before the commission, by an act passed by either house of Parliament.

The showing made before Judge Kennedy in support of the application for the new commission set forth that it is expected that testimony of the witnesses named will disclose the passage by Sinclair and Fall of certain Liberty bonds.

The special oil counsel were represented before Judge Kennedy by Albert D. Walton, Federal District Attorney for Wyoming.

Dr. Henry A. Tupper to Talk.

Dr. Henry Allen Tupper of Washington, D. C., will speak at an orphans' dinner to be given by the Association of the Golden Rule, Friday evening at the Hotel Statler. The dinner, of very plain foods, will be served on tin plates. The cups to be used were made from condensed milk cans by the orphans in the Near East.

their eyes shining. To them the master was dead.

Then gradually behind the black-draped hearse drawn by black-draped horses the unofficial mourning procession began to form. No official, black-coated public servants these, but rough-clothed workers, men and women around red banners representing the Workers' Socialist and communist organizations.

As the procession turned into the broad Champs Elysees, it spread out until the thick mass filled the avenue like wings spread mournfully. The long line of official carriages behind passed unnoticed as thousands of automobiles, which had been held up for 10 minutes, now rushed along again, indifferent.

President Doumergue, Premier Herriot and Presidents of the Senate and Chamber and members of the French Academy were among those who gathered at the catafalque. The speakers there were Gabriel Hanotaux, member of the Academy; Leon Blum, leader of the Socialist party; M. Painleve, President of the Chamber, and others of the Left groups. The addresses lasted three hours.

Caillaux obtained special permission from Premier Herriot to attend the funeral. He was forbidden to enter Paris under the ruling of the High Court in 1920, when he was found guilty of treason. An inspector of police sat beside the chauffeur of the former Premier's limousine.

FORMER PROHIBITION RAIDER TRIES TO KILL SELF IN JAIL

Jesse Mead, Held for Attacking Wife, Slashes Wrist In Cell at Edwardsville.

Jesse Mead, former prohibition raider on the staff of Attorney General Brundage of Illinois, attempted suicide yesterday at the Madison County Jail at Edwardsville where he is confined on a charge of assault with intent to kill, growing out of an attack on his wife, Mrs. Belva Mead, in August. Mead, who is 35 years old, slashed his left wrist with a safety razor blade. Other prisoners saw his act and after applying a tourniquet called a jailer. Mead will recover. He explained his act by saying that the thought of the disgrace which he had brought on his five children had overwhelmed him. He said he would attempt his life again if opportunity offered.

Mead was dismissed from Brundage's staff after a raid at Long Lake, near Mitchell, last August, in which reputed Ku Klux Klansmen participated. After his discharge he appeared at his home in Worden and attacked his wife during a quarrel.

FRENCH TO QUIT MORE RUHR TERRITORY TUESDAY

Area About 250 Miles Square in the Dortmund-Hoerde Zone to Be Vacuated.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—The new line of the military occupation of the Ruhr, after the French troops evacuate the Dortmund-Hoerde zone, Oct. 22, will start from a point west of Lunen, on the Lippe Canal. It will pass west of Mengede, which has been evacuated, between Castrop, which is occupied, and Marten, also evacuated, and thence south between Annen and Lettringhausen and join the Ruhr River at a point between Herdecke and Syburg.

The evacuated territory will be over an irregular line of about 19 miles north and south and varying between a depth of six and 12 miles east to west. This will represent an area of between 250 to 312 miles square. The Hoesch mines and steel mills east of Dortmund, in which the German Ambassador to Paris, Leopold von Hoesch, is heavily interested, are located in the territory which will be evacuated next Wednesday.

The evening newspapers here today are of the opinion that the Ruhr occupation has been virtually terminated. The Orient Express will resume passing through Stuttgart Nov. 4, for the first time since Jan. 11, 1923.

G. O. P. PROSPECTS IN TEXAS

Coolidge Is Told Republicans Have "Real Chance."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Several callers bearing optimistic reports on the political outlook were received today by the President, including R. C. Creager, Republican National Committeeman for Texas, who said the party would show a "surprising" vote in the solid South this year. He also insisted Republicans have a "real, bona fide" chance to elect a Governor of Texas against the opposition of "Ma" Ferguson, the Democratic candidate.

Senator Cameron of Arizona told Mr. Coolidge the situation in the Southwestern states was most satisfactory from a political standpoint. Howard Sutherland, former Senator from West Virginia, called at the White House today, and declared Republicans would carry that State.

SHENANDOAH IS TIED UP TO MAST AT CAMP LEWIS

Navy Dirigible, Completing Journey From Lakehurst to Tacoma, Is Moored for the Night.

PLANS TO START ON RETURN TODAY

Craft Reached the Oregon Border After Plunging Into Gale With Diminishing Fuel.

By the Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 18.—Securely tied to the mooring mast on the Camp Lewis Reservation, 10 miles south of here, the Navy dirigible Shenandoah was swaying lightly tonight in a gentle breeze.

Safe and apparently unharmed after her long battle with the elements, which hindered her progress on her first transcontinental flight from Lakehurst, N. J., to Camp Lewis, the ship was being refueled and groomed during the night preparatory to the start of the return trip, scheduled for 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Shenandoah sent a message to her mooring mast just before 9 a. m. today that she would be unable to moor without valving helium. Her elevation was 800 feet and she could be seen against the sun that was peeping through the fog which was clearing gradually. Officers at the mast considered the fog too dangerous for a landing to be made.

Just as dusk fell this evening, the air cruiser returned to Camp Lewis, after cruising since 8 o'clock this morning over Tacoma, Olympia and other cities in the vicinity.

At 6:35 p. m., the chilling night air had sufficiently cooled her helium gas supply so that she settled slowly to earth and a line was dropped to the waiting ground crew. Powerful winches in the engine house took up the slack and the Shenandoah was drawn slowly to a secure fastening.

Orders had been received at the camp to tie up the aircraft at 5 o'clock this morning. The order was based upon reports of the progress being made by the Shenandoah after she moved into the Oregon Valley, but the arrival of the airship was delayed.

Crowds of men, women and children kept vigil through the night on the prairies surrounding the mooring mast, awaiting the giant dirigible.

Battled Against Adverse Winds for 33 Hours.

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. SHENANDOAH, Oct. 18.—via C. M. P. wireless).—Driving straight into the teeth of one of the stiffest winds she has ever faced and racing against a rapidly diminishing gasoline supply, the Shenandoah reached the Oregon border at dusk yesterday.

For 33 hours the big airship had battled with adverse winds off the California coast in one of the severest tests ever given to a dirigible. Against the strong head winds the motors were drinking gasoline at the rate of one and one-half gallons a mile, and, with a course of more than 1500 miles still to be traversed, the advisability of turning and speeding back to San Diego with the current of the wind was considered.

After a conference with Rear Admiral Moffett, Commander Lansdowne decided to hold the ship on its course.

The dirigible turned eastward from the Pacific Ocean at 12:30 this morning over the twinkling lights of the little town of Florence, Ore.

When Harrisburg, Ore., was reached the course of the big ship was turned due north through the Williamette Valley toward Portland. Corvallis was passed at 2:25 a. m. Lights of the cities and villages showed clear in the valley, while a stream of automobiles and locomotives dotted highways and railways.

The moon rose slowly from behind the mountains as the Shenandoah passed the mouth of the Rogue River at 9 p. m. Lights twinkled on the shore and the coast line lay white under the moonlight. After leaving the coast for the valley course, the altitude of the ship was increased from 1000 to 4300 feet. The shift inland was made because of anxiety over the ship's supply of gasoline, a fear which vanished when the craft moved into the valley and met fair weather.

MOTHER TAKES BODY OF SON SLAIN TO HIS CONVICT BROTHER

Remains of Guy Knight Taken to Jefferson City, where Prisoner Views Them.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 19.—When penitentiary officials decided it was inadvisable to permit Harry Knight, serving a 15-year sentence for murder, to go to Kingsville, Johnson County, tomorrow to attend the funeral of his brother, Guy Knight, who was killed early this week by a Constable in a suburb of Kansas City, his mother brought the body of Guy here this afternoon for a few hours, to enable Henry to have a last glimpse of it before burial.

Mrs. Knight brought the body from Kansas City on an early afternoon train, and it was removed to a local undertaking establishment. Harry was taken from the penitentiary and spent an hour in the undertaker's chapel, with his mother and the body of his brother. The body then was placed on a train late this afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. Knight, and taken to Warrensburg, thence to Kingsville, where the funeral will take place tomorrow.

Guy and Harry Knight were both brought to the prison recently under 15-year sentences for a killing in the Knight-McCormick feud in Johnson County. They were committed to prison while appeals to the Supreme Court were pending. Attorney's sued out a writ of habeas corpus in Supreme Court to obtain their release on bond pending disposition of the appeals. Bond was granted and Guy's friends succeeded in raising $15,000 bail for him, but thus far Harry has not raised the bond.

ASSAILS PRESIDENT FOR APPROVAL OF FINANCIAL POT

Democratic Committee, in Statement, Condemns the 'Gold-Digging Performance' of G. O. P. Chiefs.

'CAREFUL REGARD FOR THE LAW'

Contribution by Head of Sugar Corporation Cited as Typical of Those Who Benefit From Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The following statement was issued by the Democratic National Committee today:

"From behind his White House barricade, President Coolidge has broken silence to say that he approves of the way the financial pot of the Republican Campaign Committee is boiling. The approval given to the gold-digging performance of the Campaign Committee does not come in a quoted statement from Mr. Coolidge. The silence is broken in the usual indirect way in which political propaganda is put out at the White House.

"The 'careful regard for the law' by the Republican Campaign Committee, which is so gratifying to Mr. Coolidge is strikingly exemplified by the Republican Campaign Committee of Massachusetts, the President's own State. Disclosures made through the Senate of the United States show that the Massachusetts committee boldly told prospective contributors that there would be 'No limit to the amount an individual may give to this committee. Large contributions will be so divided as to give full observance to the requirements of the statutes.'

Clear Evasion of the Law.

"Is it to place this seal of approval on this clear evasion of the spirit of the law, that President Coolidge breaks his wonted silence? The Congressional Committee on Campaign Expenditures, which is in session in Chicago, is barely scratching the surface, but its very first effort has shown up only a part of the work which Mr. Coolidge commends as having been 'conducted with so much care.'

"Consider the specific case of the contribution of $10,000 by A. E. Carlton of Colorado Springs, Colo. It is typical of a long list of beneficiaries of Republican special privilege and favoritism, who have already contributed or who perhaps will be properly shaken down when the Borah committee gets through with its present session.

"Mr. Carlton is president of the Holly Sugar Corporation, which owns four beet sugar factories in California, three in Colorado and one in Wyoming. William V. Hodges, treasurer of the Republican National Committee, is general counsel for the Holly Sugar Corporation. Hodges appeared before the United States Tariff Commission on behalf of the Holly corporation and filed a brief opposing any reduction in the present excessive duty on sugar.

What Will President Do?

"Does Mr. Coolidge's approval cover such political buccaneering? If not, what will he do about it? As a result of the Borah committee's hearing, the Republicans confess to a campaign fund already collected aggregating $1,700,000, and expect to add to this sum $1,300,000 more. It is a long, long time since the Republican Campaign Committee spent as little as $3,000,000 in a national campaign. The amount to which the Republican National Committee usually confesses, after the election is over, is about twice that sum, and that does not always tell the whole story, as huge contributions in the aggregate come from various independent organizations and sources which do not have to be disclosed in the reports to the Federal Government.

"The largest amount ever expended by the Democratic National Committee in a presidential campaign was $2,100,000, in 1916, which, however, included taking care of a huge deficit. This year the Democrats have raised to date $300,000, which, at the outside it expects to increase to $1,500,000. A Democratic dollar, however, by reason of the antagonistic attitude of the nation, as a whole towards the Republican administration, goes a great deal farther than a Republican dollar. With the small sum thus far raised by the Democrats, they and the progressive wing of the Republican party, under La Follette, have already taken from Mr. Coolidge a majority of the electoral college.

Foresee Victory for Davis.

"Before the campaign reaches its end, the country will realize that John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, will have a majority of the electoral votes, and that the standpat and progressive wings of the Republican party combined under Coolidge and La Follette, respectively, will fall short of a majority of the electoral college, despite the strenuous financing of the Republican gold diggers, upon which President Coolidge has just set in unctuous terms his approval.

"Of course, it is Republican strategy to deny the terrific losses of the reactionary wing of that party to the Democrats and to the Progressive Republicans under La Follette. To offset the political havoc which this fact would create should it become common knowledge in the Republican ranks, the Republican National Committee is putting forth stanch claims of having the election won. If this were true—if the Coolidge leaders themselves believed it—why would it become necessary to squeeze another $1,300,000 out of its supporters? It is a little boodle fund to play with. Is the seal of Mr. Coolidge's approval also set on this piece of political financing?"

Says G. O. P. Campaign Fund Likely Will Reach $12,000,000 Mark

tercepted and turned over to us by those who did not agree with this way of running our government, that the effort is being made directly to carry the Northwestern, Western and Southwestern states, and to carry them with the money collected by the beneficiaries of the present business combinations, and, we will show later on, by the very money of the farmers in those states that is in the banks in the City of New York today."

To Subpena Many Witnesses.

Declaring that the full extent to which money for the aid of the Republican ticket is being raised could be ascertained only by rigid cross-examination of those he believes are interested in the movement, Walsh asked the committee to issue subpenas for a number of persons living in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, and Kansas City.

After examining the subject fully in executive session, late in the day, the committee decided to resume the hearings in Washington next Tuesday and to summon first witnesses from Philadelphia and Washington in order to determine first whether the La Follette charges can be supported by evidence before witnesses are called from more distant cities.

Chairman Borah said subpenas would be issued for these witnesses:

Joseph R. Grundy, Edward T. Statesbury, Samuel M. Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works; Nathan T. Folwell, treasurer of the Manufacturers' Club; W. R. Atterbury vicepresident of the Pennsylvania railroad; Chester W. Hill and John T. King all of Philadelphia and W. W. Gallaher, chairman of the District of Columbia Republican Ways and Means Committee; T. V. O'Connor, a member of the United States Shipping Board; Cary W. Riddick, national organizer of the National Republican League, all of Washington, and also for the manager of the Hamilton Hotel and a taxicab company, both of Washington.

Gompers to Be Summoned.

While the committee is sitting in Washington, it also will hear Clem L. Shaver, chairman, and James W. Gerard, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, regarding campaign expenditures by the national Democratic organization. Borah also announced that he would call Samuel Gompers, Frank Morrison, and possibly other officers of the American Federation of Labor for questioning as to their expenditures in behalf of the La Follette-Wheeler campaign.

Walsh did not confine himself solely to the presentation of documents and giving his interpretation of them. He quoted Senator La Follette as assailing William V. Hodges, treasurer of the Republican National Committee, in connection with the sugar tariff.

"Senator La Follette says," he told the committee, "that the treasurer of the Republican National Committee is the paid representative, or was at the time he became treasurer, of the sugar interests in Washington and appeared before the Tariff Commission and also did other work with members of the Tariff Commission and others interested to keep up the price of sugar.

Assails Publicity Fund.

"Senator La Follette says that the mere fact that he is treasurer of a political party, with this sugar matter still under advisement by the President of the United States, is a scandal of national proportions in itself and he would like to have the opportunity to have his counsel cross-examine Mr. Hodges and lead up to where he is getting his contributions."

La Follette's counsel also assailed the Republican National Committee for expending $437,000 for publicity at a time, he said, when never before had the newspapers so freely reported the addresses of political candidates, those of La Follette and Davis and of Coolidge and the others. He charged the use of a "corrupt minor press" and of "corrupt minor speakers" in connection with the publicity campaign.

Senator Caraway (Dem.) Arkansas, suggested that a part of this expenditure was "for the laudable purpose of 'de-bunking' La Follette."

"Yes," returned Walsh, "and I want to say for Senator La Follette that it is part of his mission now; he is but a humble instrument in it, but it happens they made the attack on him, and it is part of his mission, paraphrasing what another man said, to 'de-louse' the political parties of this country, regardless of what they are."

"Join Us, Help Us Quickly."

In presenting the Grundy letters, Walsh interposed sharp comments at frequent intervals. He laid particular stress upon these passages from a letter dated Oct. 10.

"The Republican National Committee has asked and appointed me to raise every possible dollar in Pennsylvania, outside of the Pittsburg district. Will you send all you can? Will you send it at once? Not a day should be lost.

GETTING THE MONEY FOR THE G. O. P.

JOSEPH R. GRUNDY.

"Our country, our Government, our institutions and industries are in peril—a real peril, not an imaginary one. It's Coolidge or Bryan, and Bryan will have to pay his indebtedness to La Follette.

"Let me have the largest contribution you can spare. We are all making sacrifices. Join us, help us quickly."

Most of the letters held up the possibility of La Follette getting enough votes to throw the election into Congress and the final selection there of Charles W. Bryan, the Democratic vice presidential nominee. In one letter La Follette and Wheeler were likened to Lenine and Trotzky. The threat was made of a re-enactment of the Democratic tariff, unemployment and damage to business generally. There was much of the same line of argument in the Philadelphia Manufacturers' Club letter, with particular emphasis on the tariff matter.

To Maintain Protective Tariff.

"We have always believed in and supported the policy of the protection of American industry," the letter said. "Indeed, the primary purpose in the formation of the club yas to help to maintain a protective tariff."

One of the Simmons' letters said that "as a business proposition your associates should contribute liberally, almost regardless of party affiliations, to prevent the success of this (the La Follette movement, which is an avowed attack on the Constitution, would place the Supreme Court at the mercy of the political whims of the Congress and would elect Supreme Court Judges by popular vote—by politics.

"Apparently the only sure way to kill off this movement is the proper expenditure now of campaign funds for speakers and other legitimate expenses in the Western States where such campaign, if promptly conducted, can produce a Republican victory. It is reported that thus far many times the amount of money has been spent on the La Follette campaign as on either the Republican or Democratic campaign."

Other Avenues of Revnue.

"That is from the yarn factory," remarked Walsh. "La Follette's counsel told the committee the effort to raise campaign funds did not stop with the Republican National Committee, the bankers and the manufacturers, and business men. To support that assertion, he produced a letter written by former Representative Carl Riddick of Montana, national organizer, of the National Republican League, soliciting contributions.

"Now I want to call attention to another fact," Walsh went on. "There is another avenue for making expenditures, and a most important one, and that is the adjuncts which are used to frighten large amounts from these very rich men. We have a communication that has been broadcast in this country, with a release from G. Franklin Ream, president of the American Economic Institute.

"This concern is the successor of the discredited National Transportation Institute, which was denounced in the United States Senate. It was really the representative of the railroads and sent out propaganda to influence legislation and rate-making."

This letter said the Institute believed the "greatest danger" today was the threat of the radical labor leaders, "who are sponsoring the La Follette movement, and who demand the abolition of the Esch-Cummins transportation act."

Propaganda on Menu Cards.

Walsh also charged that the Pennsylvania Railroad was circulating propaganda on its menu cards in favor of Coolidge and Dawes, and he requested that Vice President Atterbury be summoned to tell where the sums for this came from, whether the railroad pays this from its operating expenses.

Walsh's request for the presence of Commissioner O'Connor was on the basis of a statement that Senator La Follette was receiving soviet support through Mexico. The subpena for the manager of the Hamilton Hotel, Washington, was desired to ascertain who paid bills of 78 labor leaders who went to Washington Labor day to hear President Coolidge speak.

La Follette's counsel also asked that Charles D. Hilles, Republican National Committeeman from New York, be summoned, but he did not indicate the purpose of calling Hilles. Also he wants to have examined J. W. Perry, Theodore Gary, John T. Kennedy and Joseph B. Shannon, all of Kansas City, in connection with the allegation that the bankers are raising funds. He told the committee that Shannon, a Democrat, had stated in a speech that two funds were being raised in Kansas City, one by the bankers and one by business men; that Perry had collected the bankers' fund and that Kennedy collected the other fund. Gary's name, Walsh added, had been mentioned frequently as one having knowledge of the matter.

"Shannon," Walsh continued, "says that he was informed by various persons in Kansas City that there were two funds being collected there. His information is that one fund was collected by John T. Kennedy, a gentleman at the head of a corporation called the Kenney Sales Co. His information is that that is the business men's fund as distinguished from the bankers' and the bankers' fund under direct instructions, as he understands from New York, was collected by J. W. Perry, former member of the Commerce Trust Co., the largest banking concern in Kansas City. The other name that was frequently mentioned as having knowledge of this and one who might have knowledge and whose name I am going to give this committee, is Mr. Theodore Gary, president of the Bell Telephone Co., of the American Telegraph & Telephone Co. in that city.

"The information Mr. Shannon gave in his speech in Kansas City was that the bankers had allotted $100,000 to Kansas City alone and when some of the bankers were called upon in Kansas City for their assessment and communicated with their correspondents and associates in New York, it was developed that they had already contributed for the Kansas City contingent of certain of the banking houses there.

"Mr. Shannon says that the bankers' committee is said to have collected $78,000 in little over an hour and the other committee something over $80,000; fortifying, I think, to a very large extent, if correct, Senator La Follette's statement that this fund is going to be over $10,000,000. We have in Kansas City, which has been my residence all my life, except the last very few years, a registered Republican vote of only about 70,000 in Kansas City and perhaps in all of Jackson County, and if it is running at that ratio they will easily get $10,000,000 or $12,000,000."

TEXT OF SIMMONS' LETTER TO BANKERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Following is the text of the letter, dated Oct. 8, written by George W. Simmons, vice president of the Mechanics and Metals Bank, 20 Nassau street, soliciting funds from bankers throughout the country to aid the Republican campaign:

"Dear Sir: Following up my letter of Tuesday. Latest authentic information from the West indicates a grave danger of any candidate failing to secure the necessary number of votes to elect and hence the election would be thrown into Congress. In that event each State has one vote—Nevada counts as much as New York. The congressional delegations in several states are so evenly divided that the absence of one or two members would swing the vote of the entire state. Under the constitutional provision, if the House fails to elect, as seems likely, then the Senate must select from one of the two leading vice presidential candidates, an acting President. It is reasonable to expect they would not select Mr. Dawes; hence, Mr. Bryan would be the acting President. All of this would take three or four months at best, with a disastrous result on business and property values.

"As a business proposition, your associates should contribute liberally, almost regardless of party affiliations, to prevent the success of this movement which,

"First, is an avowed attack on the Constitution.

"Second, would place the Supreme Court at the mercy of the political whims of Congress.

"Third, would elect Supreme Court Judges by popular vote—by politics.

"Apparently the only sure way to kill off this movement is the proper expenditure now of campaign funds for speakers and other legitimate expenses in these Western States, where such campaign, if promptly conducted, can produce a Republican victory. It is reported that thus far many times the amount of money has been spent on the La Follette campaign as on either the Republican or Democratic campaign. No Republican funds will be spent until raised—there will be no deficit to make up. Every good citizen who believes in upholding the Constitution should do his share now.

"It is hoped that you will get this idea before the individuals in your institution in order that they make their subscriptions immediately and as liberally as their circumstances will permit. Very truly yours, G. W. SIMMONS.,"

"For Bankers' Committee."

FUND OF $4,00,0000 CHARGED TO LEAGUE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The Borah campaign fund Investigating Committee was today asked to investigate the activities of George B. Lockwood, editor of The National Republican, published here, and former Representative Carl W. Riddick of Montana, new organizer of the National Republican League, which is charged with raising a fund of $4,000,000 to fight the Progressive movement.

La Follette-Wheeler campaign headquarters called attention to a circular letter sent out by Riddick to 50,000 Republicans, asking them to contribute $110 each, in 11 installments, "to fight organized labor and organized farmers' influence in local, State and national elections and distribute literature for this purpose continuously between elections."

"Riddick and Lockwood," the La Follette people declare, "say they have the indorsement of President Coolidge, Secretaries Weeks, Mellon, Hughes, Davis, Wallace, Hoover and Work, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, some 100 Senators and Representatives, all Republican State committeemen and Will R. Wood, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee."

A printed folder sent out by Riddick quotes Secretary Davis as saying the National Republican League is "the right arm of the Republican party," and President Coolidge as saying it performs "an important function."

Aims of the League.

Among the aims of the league, as explained by Riddick, it was pointed out that:

Killing the influence of Samuel Gompers, Warren H. Stone and other labor organization heads.

Removing the voice of labor and the farmer from political campaigns.

Counteracting the influence of labor and farm publications against the Republican party.

Driving such progressives as Senators Borah, Brookhart and Norris from the Republican party and defeating them at election.

Supporting the candidacies of old-line Republicans at all State and national elections by speakers, literature and canvassers paid for by the league's funds.

Representative John M. Nelson, Independent-Progressive campaign manager, today asked Borah to call Riddick and Lockwood to the stand and ask them:

Demands An Accounting.

What connection they have with the National Republican Committee.

How they can legally account for their expenditures in various states for literature, speakers and workers not vouched for or included in the National Committee budget?

What dangers the country faces from organized farmers and laborers?

How much money the league has raised and its expenditure to date?

Riddick, who was defeated for election in Montana by Senator Wheeler, signs his letters:

"Former member of Congress from Montana; defeated two years ago for United States Senator because I would not join the radical bloc."

Riddick Denies Charges.

Riddick tonight issued a statement asserting that the La Follette headquarters statement "is a mess of false statements and implications." He said:

"The National Republican League is an enrollment of two-year subscribers to the National Republican.

"Neither the National Republican nor the National Republican League receives contributions. The National Republican is a weekly periodical, which has no official relationship with the Republican National Committee.

"The statements relative to the purposes and pleas of the National Republican and the National Republican League are a tissue of falsehoods. Neither is fighting the legitimate aims of labor or farm organizations or periodicals. Our fight is against the Socialists, who have gained control of some of the organizations and publications and who are prostituting them to Socialist propaganda. We are also against Socialist politicians, who, wearing the cloak of old party names, dishonestly bore from within in an effort to destroy and pervert the political parties."

$300,000 IN DEMOCRATIC CAMPAIGN FUND; EXPECT TO OBTAIN $1,500,000

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.

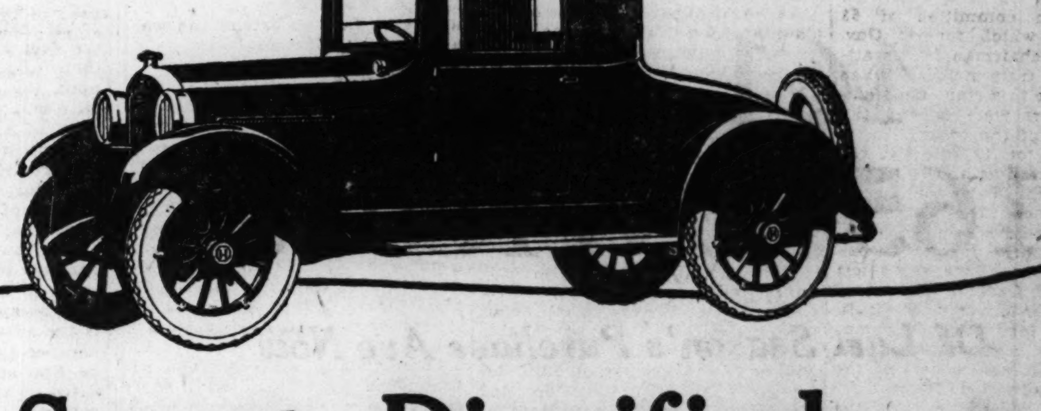
Hupmobile



Smart, Dignified—
Extremely Economical

The salesman, physician, or business man can buy a car whose first price is less than this Two-Passenger Hupmobile Coupe.

But he cannot buy a car which equals it in final low cost per mile—and at nowhere near the price can he obtain anything approaching its smartness and comfort.

In their special Hupmobile blue, or in the fashionable beige, (Duco finish), the Hupmobile models represent a departure from the staid and commonplace. Disc or natural wood wheels, with balloon tires, are available at slight extra expense.

The great Hupmobile virtues are still, however, the chief reason why this car is so good to own. Here is an automobile so well built that it stands up and continues to give low cost, efficient service for years.

You cannot buy equal reliability for less money, nor for several hundred dollars more.

You cannot buy a car that will give you more satisfaction and convenience, summer and winter.

The car for salesmen, doctors, contractors, and all those thousands of men whose primary need is individual transportation.

Doors 32 inches wide—windows adjustable—windshield cleaner—windshield adjustable for ventilation. Disc steel or natural wood wheels, and balloon tires extra. Duco finish in blue and in beige.

Ample room under rear deck for a couple of husky grips or sample cases. Space inside the car, back of the seat, for smaller sample cases, portfolios, physician's kit, and so on.

If you hear the Hupmobile story, your next car will surely be a Hupmobile. And if you are a salesman, doctor, or business man, you will probably select the Two-Passenger Coupe.

Phone for a demonstrator to come to your door.

CONVICTED OF URGING BOY TO KILL HUSBAND

Mrs. Annie S. Willow Is Found Guilty of Murder in Second Degree.

By the Associated Press.

MIDDLEBURG, Pa., Oct. 18.—Mrs. Annie S. Willow was found guilty of murder in the second degree here today by the jury before which she was tried on a charge of complicity in the killing of her husband, Harvey C. Willow, last December.

The charge of Judge Potter of the Snyder County Court was about the same as that he gave when he addressed the jury in the case of Ralph Shadel, 18-year-old farmhand, who was convicted of second degree murder for shooting Willow, his employer.

Ralph Shadel, 18-year-old hired man on the Willow farm, was convicted last week for murder in the second degree of the actual killing. Shadel shot his employer while the two were hunting.

The prosecution sought to prove in the trial of Mrs. Willow that she and the young farm hand had been intimate and that the murder was committed by young Shadel at her urging.

Mrs. Willow was placed on trial last Monday and her case went to the jury this forenoon.

COUNTERFEITERS NEAR STATUE OF LIBERTY

Raid Discloses Plant on Board Scow at Anchor Two Years Off New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—A raid to night of a scow, which for two years has lain at anchor in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty, disclosed a counterfeiting plant which the Government agents said they believed was operated by an international ring, which has been flooding the country with bogus nickels, dimes and quarters for seven years.

The counterfeit Treasury Department moulds were found on the scow, the Sparklight, one of five craft raided during the day. The coins found were said by Secret Service operatives to be perfect in detail, but lacking in the weight of good coin. A quantity of metal alloy, the raw material of counterfeiting, was also confiscated.

SLENDER TYPE OF ARMERICAN WOMAN WINS GERMAN FAVOR

Artist Says European Women Cannot Give Up Fat Without Appearing Bony.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—Is it extreme slenderness of the American woman really beautiful and artistic? German painters, sculptors and actors have been asked by experts to express their opinion about the ultra modern woman's figure and apparently the girl with boyish slenderness has won part of the German art world to her type.

Elizabeth Bergner, a prominent Berlin actress and who herself is slight of build, says she does not like fat women because she always suspects they have both slothful bodies and brains.

Prof. George Kolbe, a well-known painter, says the slender type of woman has been his ideal since early childhood, but he believes it is utterly foreign to most European women and cannot be attained through "cures" and dieting because their frames and bones are such that they cannot be slender without appearing bony and emaciated.

Prof. Jaeckel, a Vienna painter, declares the type of woman immortalized in the statues of Apnrodite and Venus de Milo is an ideal which always will prevail as it denotes health as well as beauty and because red blooded men will not accept the anemic woman as the ideal beauty.

ARRESTED FOR BEING DRUNK, MAN DIES IN POLICE PATROL

Martin Kelley, 50, Plumber, Had Been Treated at City Hospital —Inquest Tomorrow.

An inquest Monday will seek to discover cause of the death of Martin J. Kelley, 50 years old, a plumber, 1445 Granville place, who dropped dead in a police patrol wagon after being treated for intoxication at the city hospital last night.

Kelley was discovered drunk at Whittier street and St. Louis avenue at 8 p. m., according to police who took him to the city hospital. He was given the usual treatment and pronounced by the physician fit to be taken back to the Deer Street Station where he was to be booked on an intoxication charge. At Taylor and Evans avenues he fell dead in the patrol wagon.

LA FOLLETTE WILL TURN EASTWARD TO CONTINUE TOUR

Celebrates End of Second Week of Strenuous Trip by Resting; Speaks Tomorrow Night at Omaha.

TWO OUTSTANDING FACTS OF CAMPAIGN

Senator Has Demonstrated He Is Physically Fit and His Forces Think He Has a Fighting Chance.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Washington Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Oct. 18.—Senator La Follette celebrated the end of his second week of continuous campaigning by taking a rest today, the second he has had since he left Washington. Tomorrow he turns eastward again, speaking Monday night at Omaha, Tuesday night at Rock Island, Ill., and Wednesday night at Peoria.

He intends, before the campaign is over, to deliver at least one more speech in New York State, one in Pennsylvania and one in New England. He will close the campaign in Ohio.

The present half-way stage of La Follette's campaign is a decisive one, in several respects. For one thing, the Senator has demonstrated to the satisfaction of himself and of his associates that he is physically equal to the strain. He has spoken every night but one since leaving Washington, the speeches ranging from an hour and a half to two hours in length, and has shown pronounced fatigue only once, at St. Louis.

He told his Minneapolis audience that "I am in as good fighting trim as I have ever been in my life," and "I am 69 years of age, and for the benefit of any gentlemen who are banking on life insurance possibilities, I just want to say that an ancestor of mine rode on horseback from Kentucky to Indiana at the age of 100."

A Fighting Chance.

Another fact which becomes apparent at this stage is that the La Follette forces actually believe they have a fighting chance to win the election. Irrespective of whether this belief has solid basis or not, the fact remains that it exists in their minds. It is founded first, upon the conviction that La Follette will carry most of the States west of the Mississippi, and second, upon the belief that a genuine ground swell of popular sentiment for him is rising in the East.

Some of the Senator's closest advisers have told him that he will carry New York City, and that he has only to convert the upstate districts to carry the State. That is why he spoke at Rochester, and it is the reason for his plan to make another speech in the State. That he has hopes for Illinois is indicated by the fact that his schedule calls for two more speeches there.

The remainder of the itinerary is illuminating, because it demonstrates that either of two things is true; first, that he is fighting to win, or second, that he is more concerned with rolling up a big popular vote than he is with throwing the election into Congress. Plainly, if he wanted only to make sure of enough electoral votes to prevent a decision at the polls, he would go to Colorado, Kansas, Washington and Oregon, where he is conceded a fairly even chance, and would spend more time in Iowa, where the outcome is extremely doubtful, instead of returning to Illinois, Pennsylvania and New York.

Observers out here concede Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota to him, and the most impartial opinion seems to be that he has the advantage in South Dakota and Iowa.

Has Covered Issues.

His outstanding speech to date was his ferocious attack upon President Coolidge's public record delivered at Minneapolis. In addition he has outlined in detail his views upon foreign relations, farm relief credit, tariff, the trusts, armaments and corruption in the Government, and his charge that the Republicans are raising a huge "slush fund" for use in doubtful states resulted in the convening at Chicago of the Borah committee to investigate campaign collections and expenditures.

It is certain that he will deliver at least one speech on the railroads and he may devote one to his position on limiting the power of the Supreme Court, a subject which he has touched briefly in several speeches.

He made an interesting digression last night to describe some of the labor-saving inventions of the last 25 years. These inventions, he said, should have resulted in cutting the cost of living in half. The same freight crew which manned a train 25 years ago today mans a train which hauls five times as much tonnage, he said. The same number of men which produced a steel rail then, today produces three or four times as many.

Fling at Straw Vote.

"Let no trust magnate talk to me of mounting labor costs," he said. "Wages are what you take home in the market basket on Saturday night, and measured in those terms wages are lower than they were in 1890. Great wealth has monopolized patents and the saving effected by improved methods in industry has gone into the pockets of rich instead of becoming a benefit to mankind generally."

He also took a fling at the straw vote being conducted and published by the Literary Digest, which shows Coolidge far ahead in the presidential race.

"You will remember that the Literary Digest conducted a straw vote in 1912, which showed that Taft would be elected," he said, while the crowd howled. "Straw votes all depend on who takes them and where they are taken."

The venerable former Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota, author of several books expressing political and economic views almost identical with those of La Follette, spent several hours with him today.

BILLIKENS WIN, 13-7; ILLINI CRUSH MICHIGAN, 39-14

Ramacciotti Scores Winning Touchdown In Last Two Minutes

Loyola Takes Lead in Second Quarter After Three Brilliant Passes—Stanton Scores on a Recovered Fumble.

In a game which thrilled up to the last minute of play, the St. Louis University Billikens won their second victory over the surprising Loyola University squad of Chicago at the St. Louis University Athletic Field yesterday afternoon by a score of 13 to 7. After the visitors acquired a 7 to 6 lead in the second quarter via the aerial route, it looked like a defeat for the home team until Stanton's ineffective drop kick was recovered by a Billiken lineman on the Loyola 4-yard line whence the hefty Ramacciotti tore over for the deciding marker.

Ramacciotti was as usual the spearhead of the St. Louis attack and the bulwark of defense. The great back made many scintillating plays in the course of the contest. On one occasion a Loyola tackle broke through and blocked his punt and the Billiken fullback turned around, outraced the tackle in a 15-yard chase and recovered the ball. In the third quarter, when Fullback Gorman broke away for a 55-yard run on a trick play, Ramacciotti got loose in pursuit and nailed the fleet Northerner from behind, when a touchdown seemed certain. He punted, passed, ran, blocked and tackled with tremendous force, and otherwise demonstrated his pre-eminence as a football player. After yesterday's game it was plain that Ramacciotti is the flashiest back St. Louis has seen for some years.

The defeat was disappointing to the plucky band from Chicago. Victory seemed certain until the last minutes but they were so beaten to a frazzle after stopping the plunges of Ramacciotti and McKenzie that they lost heart at the close. Their only touchdown in the second quarter fairly rushed the Bills off their feet. In three long forward passes they advanced the ball a total of 68 yards, the winning combination being Adams to Gorman.

Stanton's Alertness Wins.

The Billikens took an early lead in the first period when the alert Stanton, after missing a field goal on the fourth down, hopped onto a Loyola fumble and dashed 15 yards to the goal. McKenzie missed the extra point.

In rushing the ball Loyola surpassed the Grand avenue men in the first three periods, but sheer desperation drove the Savagemen to determined advances in the final quarter. At that, when they got the ball to the 11-yard line, they failed to make a score on three tries and it was then that Stanton missed his second drop kick, this time a short one. It was also at this time that Loyola gave up in despair when the Billikens recovered the ball and were given first down on the four-yard line, from where they went over.

Loyola Better in Passing.

The Loyola defense proved to be a real obstacle. The linemen charged fiercely and broke through frequently on the left side of the St. Louis line. The visitors' offense was equally strong at times and large holes were bored in the Billiken wall. Gorman's splendid 55-yard dash resulted from a play through guard. In passing the Kiley men far outshone St. Louis. Their heaves were especially long ones and the receiver usually managed to outstep the defensive backs. The Billikens' forward passing was very ragged except in the last period when Ramacciotti and McKenzie got off a few short ones. Throwing passes is not Ramacciotti's best game.

Hannegan shone at center for St. Louis. His tackling was accurate and fierce and his snapbacks were faultless. He is one of the best centers the Billikens have had for a long time. One improvement Savage's men showed over last week was their persistent following of the ball, which accounted for both scores they made, Stanton's recovery of a Loyola fumble and the recovery of Stanton's drop kick in the last period after it had bounded off a Loyola man. The Billikens also held the ball when they carried it and not a fumble was chalked up against them.

The Saints probably will go to Seattle, indications being that that town will win the Coast League flag.

A.A.U. President To Retire; Lacey May Get His Job

St. Louisan Considered Strong Candidate to Succeed William C. Prout.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—William C. Prout of Boston, president of the National Amateur Athletic Union for the past three years, will not be a candidate for re-election at the 1924 convention to be held beginning Nov. 16, at Atlantic City, N. J., he announced today.

Mr. Prout will continue, however, his active association with amateur athletic affairs. At Paris during the Olympic games this year he was elected American member of the council of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, while he hopes to devote unofficially much of his time and energy to aiding the national organization.

With the withdrawal of Mr. Prout the candidacies of several men prominent in amateur athletic ranks have been advanced as possible successors to the A. A. U. leadership. The Metropolitan district is understood to have endorsed Murray Hulbert, president of the New York Board of Aldermen and first vice president of the A. A. U. The Middlewest has a strong candidate in Verne Lacey of St. Louis, chairman of the legislation committee; while Samuel Goodman of San Francisco, a trustee and member of the Executive Committee has the backing of Pacific Coast men in the organization.

Mr. Prout was first elected to the presidency in 1921 at Chicago, succeeding Robert S. Weaver of Los Angeles. He was re-elected in 1922 at New York and in 1923 at Detroit.

BOSTON SOCCER ELEVEN TIES PHILADELPHIA, 3—3

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Coming from behind in the last 15 minutes of play and scoring two of their goals, the undefeated Boston soccer team of Boston, Mass., tied the score with the Phillies, 3 goals to 3, in the American League series played this afternoon at Cahill Field.

Prior to the Boston's drawing on even terms, the Phillies had the edge, 3-1, and looked all over winners. They had reckoned, however, without considering the wonderful staying power of the New Englanders, who have been styled "the wonder team," owing to having organized such a great eleven in their first season in soccer.

Canon Chase Withdraws Perjury Charges From Office of Federal 'Commissioner.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Evidence in the case against Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight boxer, growing out of his relations with Miss Bianca Lourdes Picart will be presented to the Federal grand jury here next week. The charges of perjury were withdrawn from the office of Federal Commissioner Hitchcock by Canon Chase today when the grand jury foreman had requested him to hand the case over to that body.

William Widmar, former secretary for Firpo, today testified that Miss Picart came to this country last year at the request of Firpo.

FLEISHER YARNS LOSE TO COATS ELEVEN, 5-0

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 18.—The Fleisher Yarn soccer team found the J. and P. Coats team too smart in an American Soccer League game at Pawtucket this afternoon, and went down in defeat, 5 to 0.

However, the Fleishers played nice football, but lacked a drive that could carry past the stalwart Coats' defense.

On the other hand, some very brilliant shooting by the Coats, in which they had all the luck, plus a penalty kick, caused the big score.

Princeton Rallies to Beat Navy

Ewing Kicks Field Goal That Gives Tigers 17-14 Thrilling Victory.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 18.—The talented toe of a young Princeton substitute, Sammy Ewing of Philadelphia, who was rushed into an eleventh-hour emergency, booted a field goal and produced the 3 points that gave the Tigers a sensational 17 to 14 victory over the Navy today.

Ewing's kick was the climax of a spectacular comeback by Princeton in the final quarter to overcome a lead which the sailors had held stubbornly for three-quarters of the game. It was a perfectly executed drop kick from the 18-yard line and clinched the battle for the Tigers, who, with only a few minutes left to play, easily thwarted the Navy's final assault and even threatened to add to their total on the high tide of their closing offensive.

Substitute End Stars.

Ewing's "pinch kick" broke the deadlock that had been brought about only a few minutes before when Tillson, substitute Tiger end, raced across the Middy goal line for a touchdown after receiving a short pass from Jake Slagle. It threw into a wild outburst the crowd of 25,000 in Palmer Stadium, which was thrilled by one of the most dramatic struggles the Tiger gridiron has witnessed in many seasons.

For three periods the Navy held the upper hand, despite the fact that their offensive was stopped after the first period, while Princeton, displaying a far more versatile attack, threatened several times to go to the front. But the sailors, though gradually being driven back, put up a stonewall defense in their own territory and successfully repulsed their opponents most of the time.

A sustained charge of about 65 yards down the field soon after the opening kickoff, with Shapley carrying the ball across after alternating with Flippen and Wellings in a series of knife-like line thrusts, gave the middies their first touchdown.

Breaks of Game Help.

The first of a series of sudden breaks in the game gave Princeton her first touchdown in the second quarter when Bartell, center, blocked a kick by Hamilton, Navy back, behind the latter's goal line and then fell on it. Soon after this, however, the Navy got back the lead when Slagle, whose 70-yard punt had paved the way for Princeton's score, fumbled on his own 3-yard line, and Caldwell, Navy end, recovered. Shapley, after two thrusts, had failed, dove across the goal line for the score.

Encouraged by this stroke of fortune, the Navy held stubbornly to its lead throughout the third quarter, which was scoreless in spite of Princeton's repeated attempts to break through, principally by an aerial attack.

Princeton, however, was gathering momentum to its drives. Dinsmore, veteran quarterback, put new life into the Tiger play and led the charge that gained victory in the final quarter.

Slagle Comes Back as Star.

Slagle, whose fumble had proved so costly in the second period, also came back, this time in the role of halfback, and redeemed himself with his brilliant play.

It was Slagle who tossed the pass to Tillson that resulted in a touchdown, and Slagle, who booted the tying point on a kick that was partially blocked but rebounded through the uprights amid a bedlam of Tiger cheering.

Tillson's touchdown was made possible by a brilliant 30-yard broken field run by Dinsmore, who put the ball back in the shadow of the Navy upright, on the 11-yard line after the Middies had checked a previous drive on their five-yard line.

Tigers Play Well.

Four successive first downs had put the Tigers within striking distance of the Navy line but the Sailors' stubborn stand to gain the ball on downs seemingly had broken the Tigers' onslaught until Dinsmore broke loose. This time the Tigers were not to be denied, although Dinsmore was thrown so heavily after his great run that he was forced to leave the game. Slagle reeled off seven yards in two rushes and then outwitting the Navy he tossed a short pass to Till-

Great French Horse Suffers Split Quarter in Fourth U. S. Race Event Is Run Within 4-5 of a Second of Track Record.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Md., Oct. 18.—Wise Counsellor, Frederick Burton's great three-year-old, for the second time took the measure of Pierre Wertheimer's Epinard, the French champion, in the running of the Laurel Stake at Laurel, this afternoon. Epinard was beaten so thoroughly that the race cannot be considered as a true one.

It developed that a quarter crack in his foot had opened in the running and it accounted for Epinard's showing. The invader went to the post with both of his forefeet taped, by reason of the foot injury and the race was pounds below anything that the colt has shown in his three international specials.

The Laurel is a mile test, with $10,000 added; and by its conditions Epinard was in receipt of weight from almost every quarter. But in no part of the running did he show any of the speed displayed in his other races and at no stage of that mile did he threaten Wise Counsellor, the winner. It was Samuel D. Riddle's Big Blaze that

PACIFIC COAST STARS TOP INTERCOLLEGIATE NET RANKING FOR 1924

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The Northwest and Southwest carry off major honors this year in intercollegiate tennis. The 1924 ranking list, issued tonight by United States Lawn Tennis Association, places Wallace Scott of the University of Washington on the top of the singles heap and Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer of the University of Texas at the head of the doubles list.

This marks the first time in intercollegiatte history that both top ranking places have gone to the Pacific side of the country.

Scott gained his distinction by winning the intercollegiate championship, defeating the final round Arnold Jones of Yale, who is ranked second on the singles list. He replaced Carl Fisher of Philadelphia of the 1923 champion.

White and Thalheimer won their place at the head of the doubles heap for the second straight season.

Twenty players were ranked in the singles and 10 teams in doubles with nearly all sections represented. The East showed the greatest numerical strength with 17 of the 30 places. Five went to the Pacific coast, four to the Southwest and four to the Middle West.

SYRACUSE WINS FROM BOSTON COLLEGE IN A ROUGH GAME, 10—0

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Syracuse University defeated Boston College, 10 to 0 in the first major test of the season's football campaign for both elevens. Scoring was done by Johny McBride, Syracuse' triple threat star.

The Orange eleven held a decided edge throughout the game, which was one of the roughest ever played in the Syracuse bowl. Both teams were penalized frequently and freely, the Boston team once for deliberate roughing, and they were warned on another occasion against piling on an opposing ball carrier, after he was downed.

GRANGE SCORES 5 TOUCHDOWNS, 4 IN FIRST 12 MINUTES

Carries Ball 21 Times and Gains Total of 402 Yards—Returns Kickoff 90 Yards to Score—67,000 Persons See Game.

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, ILL., Oct. 18—A flashing red-headed youngster, running and dodging with the speed of a deer, gave 67,000 spectators jammed into the new $1,700,000 Illinois memorial stadium the thrill of their lives today when Illinois vanquished Michigan, 39 to 14, in what probably will be the outstanding game of the 1924 gridiron season in the West.

Harold "Red" Grange, Illinois' phenomenal all-American halfback who attained gridiron honors of the nation last season, was the dynamo that furnished the thrills. Grange doubled and redoubled his football glory, in the most remarkable exhibition of running, dodging and passing seen on any gridiron in years—an exhibition that set the dumbfounded spectators screaming with excitement.

Individually, Grange scored five of Illinois' six touchdowns in a manner that left no doubt as to his ability to break through the most perfect defense. He furnished one thrill and then another. On the very first kickoff, Grange scooped up the ball bounding toward him on the Illinois five-yard line and raced 90 yards through the befuddled Michigan eleven for a touchdown in less than 30 seconds after the starting whistle blew.

Four in 12 Minutes.

Before the Michigan team could recover from its shock, the sensational Grange had scored three more touchdowns in rapid succession, running 65, 55 and 45 yards, respectively, for his next three scores. Coach Zuppke took him out of the lineup before the first quarter ended. He returned later to heave several passes and score a fifth touchdown in the last half.

Michigan, dumbfounded by the catastrophe, unleashed a rain of forward passes in an attempt to recoup, but most of them grounded when the receiver was covered by the Illini defense.

Michigan was unable to stage a sustained rally and Illinois' lead was never in danger. This was largely due to the failure of the Wolverines to complete their passes, nine of their 13 heaves being grounded and one intercepted. Michigan's three successful passes of the 13 attempted were good for a total of 37 yards. Illinois completed five heaves for a total of 70 yards, two others grounding.

Grange surpassed all of his former exploits in every department. He handled the ball 21 times, gained 402 yards and scored five touchdowns. Unbiased experts agree that his performance was among the greatest ever seen on an American gridiron.

Crosses Field Twice.

Running through a labyrinth of interference and tacklers, he crossed the field twice to gain the open on his first play. Britton made the point after touchdown. On the second kick-off, Grange received the ball and raced 10 yards before he was downed. Illinois lost the ball on downs, but recovered by the same method on the 33-yard line. While the crowd was still breathless from cheering his first touchdown, Grange tore off 65 yards for a second, around right end. A moment later, on the same play, he ran 55 yards for a touchdown, and shortly after scored his fourth of the quarter from Michigan's 44-yard line. In each instance he started behind perfect interference and sidestepped Michigan's safety men in the final sprint. He has a way of dodging, almost coming to a dead stop before whirling in another direction, that leaves his tacklers flat-footed and amazed.

Remarkable Record Of Harold Grange in Illini-Michigan Game

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 18.

THIS is the record of Harold "Red" Grange, sensational 22-year-old Illinois halfback, perhaps the outstanding gridiron star in America last season, in today's Michigan-Illinois game:

Scored five touchdowns—four in less than 12 minutes of play.

Broke away for successive runs of 90 65, 55 and 45 yards for touchdowns.

Scooped up the ball on the very first kickoff and raced 90 yards, dodging through Michigan's tacklers for a touchdown.

Carried the ball in 21 plays and gained the astonishing distance of 402 yards.

Threw most of Illinois' forward passes and also held the ball for Britton on the points for goal after touchdowns.

Grange was unanimously chosen for 1923 all-American honors.

Grange's Series of Spectacular Runs Dazes the Wolverine Eleven

The game was won and lost in the first thrill-packed moment when Grange, extricating himself repeatedly from seemingly hopeless tangles of tacklers, crossed the goal line and permanently shook the Wolverine morale. The shock which his four touchdowns produced on the highly keyed Michigan team, dazed the Wolverines and when the game was over many were still attempting to explain the defeat.

Steger scored Michigan's first touchdown in the second quarter after Britton's short punt had given Michigan the ball on Illinois' 25-yard line. Three drives at the line and a penalty for Illinois put the ball on the 15-yard line. Steger sneaked off left tackle for the touchdown, Rockwell kicking goal.

Grange re-entered the game in the third period, and after an exchange of punts had given Illinois the ball, passed 23 yards to Britton who was downed on Michigan's 24-yard line. Leonard made six and Grange eight. On the next play he circled end for 10 yards and his final touchdown.

Illinois obtained the ball on Michigan's territory, shortly after the final quarter opened and Grange heaved the ball 23 yards to Leonard, who scored Illinois' final touchdown.

Michigan Scores Again.

Michigan's opportunity for a rally came on the next kickoff when an Illinois man clipped the kicker and the ball was given to Michigan on Illinois' 20-yard line. Steger gained 5 and Heath made it first down with three yards to go. Rockwell and Steger were held to one yard gains but on the next play Rockwell smashed across for Michigan's final touchdown.

Encouraged by this Michigan threw passes to all sections of the field without avail and the game ended with Michigan holding the ball on her own 20-yard line.

Captain Steger fought heroically for the Wolverines, frequently carrying several tacklers through the line with him, by sheer will power and fight. Once when it seemed certain that he would break loose he fell and the opportunity was lost.

Ten thousand Michigan rooters accompanied by their band saw the game. The Illinois crowd which was pessimistic at the kickoff, left the field in a delirous mob which marched and sang through the Twin Cities of Urbana and Champaign.

For the first time in Mid-West football and possibly in American gridiron history, the Illinois players played without stockings, exposing bare shins to the onslaught of the foe.

NOTRE DAME BACKS STAR IN 13 TO 7 VICTORY OVER ARMY TEA

Brilliant Runs by Miller, Layden and Crowley Give Westerners 2 Touchdowns

Substitute Quarterback Harding Scores Only Touchdown for Army in Final Quarter—"Long Gainer" Plays Winning Coach Rockne Writes.

By Knute Rockne,
Coach of Notre Dame Football Team.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—In their second game of the season my boys today did everything that was asked of them, in beating the Army, 13 to 7. Notre Dame's football team disclosed more power and deception than the Army showed. The Army, indeed, concerned itself with an attack which consisted mostly of brute force. Notre Dame had power and it had deception. The power being approximately equal, it was the pressure of the deception which my team applied that determined the result.

In the West, we believe that power alone produces a minimum of result with a maximum of effort. For this reason, Western teams strike a note on the offense which very often produces a tone of attack quite different from the kind shown us today by the Army. We try to get a maximum of result from a maximum of effort. In other words, we believe in using plays which gain, say, 10 yards instead of two. And that, I think, is why we won today.

Of course, the Army was conserving its resources for the big games to come with Yale and the Navy. After all, they are the Army's greatest objectives, and in this sense we perhaps enjoy a little advantage.

Will Be Good Team.

The Army showed greater potentialities today than it did a year ago. Jack McEwan has done well with his material. The Army team, with a few more weeks of development, will make a great deal of trouble for Yale and the Navy. As a matter of fact, it indicated today that we were rather fortunate in catching them in the condition we did. Wilson was a very good back, but my line, outplayed at the start, rose to the emergencies later on and covered him pretty well. Only once was he able to get away for more than 10 yards.

I used substitutes in the backfield, at the guards and at the ends at the start of the game because it was my plan to play a defensive game as long as possible. The Army turned on a considerable amount of power later in the game, but by that time my regulars were in the game and functioning well. The result, in view of the Army's spurt in the second half, might have been different if the opposition had let loose at the start.

Fake Plunge Nets Score.

Nevertheless, I don't think the Army could have duplicated the display of sustained progress which my team showed. In scoring our first touchdown, we marched a total of 155 yards in the second quarter, Layden going over. Three times Stuhldreher used a forward pass on the third down in the right place and at the right time, and each time it was just the right kind of forward that my quarterback used. Notre Dame went the full length of the field once and was about to repeat when one of our passes was intercepted 15 yards from the Army goal.

Several long runs figured in the scoring of our second touchdown. Layden returned a punt 20 yards and then Miller gained 18 yards off tackle. This was followed by a 10-yard gain by Layden and then Crowley circled left end for 22 yards and a score. Crowley added the extra point by kicking a goal from placement.

Miller, Crowley and Layden stood out in the victory.

The Army's touchdown was a very pretty bit of work. A penalty, following a signal for a fair catch, an infraction of the rules unintentionally committed, gave the Army its first opportunity to score and Harding, the substitute quarterback, made full use of it.

He took the ball on a fake plunge at the line and swept around end of my second string ends for the touchdown, covering a distance of 18 yards. But the real beauty of the play, and I was very glad to see my friends do it, was that the play provides no interference at all. This, too, was the right play at the right time and at the right place. The penalty was handed out because the West Point receiver juggled the ball for a moment and one of our men thought the ball was loose.

Play Princeton Next.

Next week we play Princeton, and in the space of this week we will have traveled more than 4000 miles.

Today's game, gruelling as it was, took a lot out of my boys, and in addition we lost Walsh, our captain and center. The doctor tells me he will be out of the game for three weeks. He played today with a broken bone in his hand.

After Princeton we take on Georgia Tech., Wisconsin, Northwestern and Carnegie Tech., each a big game and I hope my boys will be able to stand the rought going But I fear that the Army took too much out of us.

Both the Army and Notre Dame covered their punts well. There was no returning of them. The Army line charged shoulder to shoulder and pulled the guards back on end runs and off tackle plays. The Army wedge was wonderful, but the guards haven't developed fully as yet.

Nebraska Trims Colgate, 33 to 7

Work of Forward Line Is Strong Factor in Success of Cornhuskers.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 18.—Nebraska University's football team defeated Colgate University here this afternoon, 33 to 7, in one of the most important intersectional gridiron contests of the season.

Carrying the sting of two previous defeats, at the hands of Illinois and Oklahoma Universities, the Cornhuskers got off to a commanding lead in the first half.

The first quarter was scoreless, but it was marked, as were the following, by the brilliant work of Eddie Tryon, Colgate halfback, the only Maroon who was able to sift through the Nebraska wall. He was in every play, either carying the ball or taking passes, and his broken field running enabled the New York team to save itself from a blanking.

The Nebraska triumph was achieved greatly through the work of the line. The forwards sifted through the opposing line in defensive plays and opened gaps for the backs when on the offensive.

Statistics of the game showed Nebraska gained 169 yards from scrimmage and 40 yards by passes and Colgate gained 137 yards from scrimmage and 56 yards by passing. Colgate made 11 first downs, while the Cornhuskers made yardage seven times.

Score by periods:

Nebraska	0	14	6	13—33
Colgate	0	0	0	7— 7

Nebraska scoring: Touchdowns—Rhodes 2, Collins, Bloodgood, Locke. Points from try after touchdowns—E. Weir. Colgate scoring: Touchdown—Tryon. Point from try after touchdown—Strack. Safeties—Tryon.

Johnson Says His Plans for Future Are Still Undecided

Washington's Great Pitcher Writes That He Hopes to Complete Deal for Pacific Coast League Team Before the 1925 Season Comes Around.

By Walter Johnson.
Washington's Great Pitcher.
(Copyright, 1924.)

COFFEYVILLE, KAN., Oct. 18.—I suppose everybody wants to know what I am going to do, now that I have finally won a game in a world's series. Well, I don't know exactly. I have been planning to get out of baseball. I have wanted to go back to Reno, Nev., and put my children in school, where they belong. Right now, I am planning to do that.

My contract with the Washington club came to an end this year. I am not worrying about that. Clark Griffith has always treated me fairly and, if I want to sign another contract, I know he will meet me half way. Or, if I want my unconditional release to take charge of a team in the Pacific Coast League, I know that Griffith will give me what I want.

I know this much: I shall never pitch for any other team in the big league but the Washington club. If Clark Griffith gave me my unconditional release today and the Yankees or the Giants offered me $100,000 to sign a contract, I would not accept the offer. That wouldn't be right. If I am to stay in the majors, I'll stay with the Washington club, champions of the world.

This has been a wonderful experience for me. I am at last, at the end of 18 years, with a world's champion. Nobody knows just how I have longed for that.

Was Tough Experience.

One of my hardest experiences came when I lost the opening game of the world series. I know that everybody expected me to win. I felt as strong as I ever did in my life, yet I lost.

Then came that second defeat in New York. It hurt me down deep when everybody cheered me, though I was being hit hard. I felt like throwing my glove away and calling it off forever. Everybody wanted me to win and I didn't have the stuff.

In the final game I asked Bucky Harris for one more chance. You cannot imagine how glad I was when he said that I was to be his "ace in the hole." There was my last chance. It was up to me and nobody else. Bucky was depending on me to win that deciding game.

When I stepped on that rubber I knew I could win. I had my speed and my hook. I knew that the Giants could never beat me. Yes, I had some wonderful support, every pitcher has to have that to win, but I felt all the time that I was at last going to win a game in the world's series.

Well, I won my game. One victory in the big series is enough for me. I have been in baseball a long time. I know that, while I am an old man in baseball, I am just in middle life and must plan for the rest of my days.

I have been trying to arrange for the purchase of a ball club in the Pacific Coast League. It isn't completed yet, but I think it will be before spring comes.

If I can become a part owner of a club out there, I can manage the team and pitch every now and then when I feel like it. Also, I will be within riding distance of my home in Reno, Nev. It won't be like playing in the East and changing my home every February and not getting back again until November.

Washington has been good to me ever since I came here, a big kid fresh from the bushes. I'll be sorry not to be with Bucky Harris and the boys next year when they start out to win another pennant and a world's championship. But a man has to look out for himself.

Was a Great Season.

I have a young family growing up. My children are reaching school age. It is not good for them to be traveling around the country and losing their education. That is the real reason why I am considering my retirement from the big leagues.

This has been a great year for me. I have been credited with 23 victories and only seven defeats. That's fine. I lost two world's series games, but I was lucky enough to be in the game when the championship was finally decided.

That's enough glory for an old man like me. A pitcher can't go on forever and I am about ready to quit.

Before I leave, though, I want to thank all my friends around the American League, yes, and in all the other cities, for their kindness to me. It has helped me to do my best. That is all any man can do. I have done my best since I came to Washington. I shall always do that wherever I may be. I don't know any other way.

Yale Scores Touchdown in Final Quarter to Gain an Even Break.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 18.—Yale and Dartmouth meeting on the gridiron for the first time in 24 years, battled to a 14-14 tie in the "Bowl" this afternoon, before a crowd estimated at slightly less than 50,000. Both teams displayed great driving power but Yale was weak in its defense against the forward pass, while Dartmouth fumbled at critical moments.

Few substitutions were made in the New Hampshire team while Coach Jones of Yale used almost two elevens.

Yale started off at top speed with a score in less than five minutes of play.

In the second period Captain Bjorkman of Dartmouth evened the count when he scored on Hall's pass from the 20-yard line. In the third period another such pass from Hall to Oberlander put Dartmouth in the lead. Tully kicked both goals.

Kline of Yale, in for Pond in the last quarter, scored after a series of rushes by Lindell in for Cotte; and Scott, in for Allen, made it no one's game by kicking the goal.

MILLER'S 62 YARDS RUN GIVES HARVARD TEAM 12-6 VICTORY

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 18.—Harvard defeated Holy Cross, 12 to 6, today, scoring the deciding touchdown in the last period. Victory came with a 62-yard run by Al Miller around Holy Cross' right end, with Capt. Greenough warding off Holy Cross tacklers. Holy Cross tried long forward passes unsuccessfully in a last minute attempt to tie or win.

Holy Cross scored in the first period. Miller fumbled at midfield and Crowley, Holy Cross fullback, picked up the ball and ran 52 yards for a touchdown. Glennon's try for point was blocked.

Crowley, star punter for the Worcester collegians, was taken out with injuries in the scoreless second period, and Zarakov, a light, speedy back, went into the Harvard lineup. The feature of the second period was a run around end by Clennon of Holy Cross for 20 yards. Holy Cross made three first downs in a row.

Harvard evened the score in the third period. Hammond sprinted 30 yards to the Holy Cross 32-yard line, a forward pass followed to the Holy Cross 3-yard line and two plays later Howe went over for a touchdown. McGlone, sub for Stafford at quarter, failed to kick the goal.

90-YARD DASH GIVES COLUMBIA TOUCHDOWN BUT PENN WINS, 10-7

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—The University of Pennsylvania defeated Columbia University, 10 to 7 at football, on Franklin Field today before a crowd of 45,000 persons.

All the thrills were crowded into the first and second periods. Columbia scored a touchdown on the first kickoff by a 90-yard run by Pease.

Penn came back strong in the same period by hammering the ball to within striking distance and then scoring a touchdown on a forward pass.

Minnesota Scores in Final Period, Ties Wisconsin 7-7; Chicago Wallops Indiana

Harmon Brothers Star for Wisconsin in Game Marked by Punting and Forward Attack—Purdue Defeats Northwestern.

By Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 18.—With a revamped and rejuvenated team, Wisconsin fought Minnesota to a tie here today, the final score being 7 to 7. While Wisconsin held a clear advantage over the visitors in the first half, Minnesota came back and swept the Badgers off their feet in the last periods. The Gophers threatened to score on three different occasions in the last half.

Graham, crack Minnesota quarterback, who was nursing an injury received last week, was not at his best. He was replaced in the third period by Guzy.

The Wisconsin counter came late in the first quarter after a trick forward pass, Harris to Leo Harmon, who raced 20 yards for a touchdown. In the fourth quarter, straight football brought the ball to Wisconsin's two-yard line and Schutte went over the left side for the Gopher counter.

Wisconsin forced Minnesota under its goal posts again in the second period, when Leo Harmon circled Minnesota's left end for 25 yards, and after a penalty, Doyle Harmon passed to his brother, Leo, who was forced out of bounds on the nine-yard line.

Victory Missed by Inches.

Doyle Harmon added five yards for first down, but his team was off side, and with the ball on the nine-yard line, he attempted a drop kick, which hit the cross bar, and it was Minnesota's ball on her 20-yard line. An exchange of punts gave Wisconsin possession of the ball, and another see-saw for an advantage in a kicking duel was interrupted by the end of the period.

Doyle Harmon and the Wisconsin line ruined Minnesota's chances to score in the third period. As the play started, Minnesota opened a slashing attack, which Harmon stopped by intercepting a pass. After Wisconsin punted, they killed off another offensive in the same manner. On the next play, Teckmeyer passed the ball over Leo Harmon's head, and Minnesota recovered on Wisconsin's eight-yard line. Wisconsin held, and the quarter ended.

Chicago Overwhelms Indiana U., 23 to 0.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Indiana University lost an uninteresting football game to the University of Chicago here today, when the Maroons, presenting a superior driving attack and a tight defense, held in check the line drives of Marks, Lorber and Capt. Sloat of Indiana and left the field with the long end of a 23-to-0 score. It was the first Western Conference game for both schools.

A rapid-fire aerial attack, launched by Indiana in the final quarter, brought the ball to Chicago's 15-yard line, but the Hoosiers failed to score when a pass, thrown by Sibley and headed for two Crimson players across the goal line, struck the cross bar and bounced back into the field of play. Just before the final gun, Indiana completed several more passes for long gains, but the end of the game came while they were marching down the field, and after they had reached Chicago's 45-yard line from their own 30-yard line.

McKinney, Thomas and McCarthy scored Chicago's touchdowns and Caruso booted a drop kick between the goal posts early in the second quarter. Chicago was in possession of the ball most of the time, and except for the first quarter completely outplayed their opponents. Numerous substitutions were made by the Maroons and a summer heat slowed up both teams.

Forward Passes Enable Purdue to Defeat Northwestern

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 18.—Purdue won a conference victory from Northwestern here today, defeating the Purple, 7 to 3, largely by dint of superior line play and alert back-field defense. The Boilermakers came from behind in the final quarter, winning on beautiful forward passes after Baker, Northwestern star had kicked a goal from field.

Although Ames earned 12 first downs to Missouri's 5 they were unable to put over a marker in the critical moment. Reversing their usual tactics, Ames played straight football for the first half and resorted to passing in the closing minutes only.

N. Behm, Ames half was the star of the Ames offense. Time after time he reeled off long gains through the line and around the end. The Missouri line stiffened every time Ames came within scoring distance and forced Ames to kick. Each team tried two place kicks, but none was successful.

Ames Misses Opportunity.

Ames lost its best chance to score in the third quarter when Jackson, Missouri back, fumbled the ball on the Missouri 30-yard line. After carrying the ball to Missouri's ten-yard line Missouri held Ames for downs. Coglizer's perfect kick placed the ball in safe territory.

The game was remarkably free from penalties. The day was very warm and made fast playing difficult. Numerous substitutions were resorted to by both coaches in the last quarter in order to relieve the exhausted players.

Statistics of the game showed Ames to have a slight advantage in yards gained. Ames made 154 yards in scrimmage to 116 for Missouri. Ames made its largest gains in the first half, making seven first downs to Missouri's one.

In the second half Missouri tried nothing but straight football and gained consistently through the Ames line. Whiteman shone for Missouri on the offense, carrying the ball for a majority of Missouri's gains. Coglizer showed up very well in the kicking department, his punts averaging 35 yards.

Missouri seemed to have solved the mystery of the Ames aerial attack and intercepted many passes at critical moments. Ames gained at will in the center of the field, but was unable to gather the final punch needed to push the ball over for a score. Missouri tried only a few passes, and one of these accounted for the only touchdown of the game.

South Side Eleven Stops Academy Team When Goal Is in Danger.

The football teams of Principia Academy and Cleveland High battled to a scoreless tie at Francis Field yesterday afternoon. Musgrove at quarter back was the individual star for Cleveland. William Green, the Academy end, and Merriam, substitute at right halfback, played an excellent defensive game for Principia.

In the first quarter, Principia advanced to Cleveland's 17-yard line, but lost the ball on downs. Cleveland advanced the ball to the opposing 10-yard line. Two line bucks netted eight yards, but Cleveland's line held. Neither team made any substantial gains during the remainder of the quarter.

Jacques, the Cleveland fullback, recovered a punt on the Academy 30-yard line in the third quarter. A drop kick by Musgrove missed the Principia goal by three feet.

Most of the fourth quarter was played in Cleveland territory. A forward pass, Browne to Deal, gave Principia 40 yards. Stitt added 5 yards to Cleveland's 20-yard line. A forward pass failed. Cleveland took the ball and kicked, when Green, the Principia end, intercepted a forward pass. Principia advanced to Cleveland's 10-yard line. On the fourth down a drop kick by Stitt missed the Cleveland goal post by a foot.

N. Behm, Ames half was the star of the Ames offense. Time after time he reeled off long gains through the line and around the end. The Missouri line stiffened every time Ames came within scoring distance and forced Ames to kick. Each team tried two place kicks, but none was successful.

Ames Misses Opportunity.

Ames lost its best chance to score in the third quarter when Jackson, Missouri back, fumbled the ball on the Missouri 30-yard line. After carrying the ball to Missouri's ten-yard line Missouri held Ames for downs. Coglizer's perfect kick placed the ball in safe territory.

The game was remarkably free from penalties. The day was very warm and made fast playing difficult. Numerous substitutions were resorted to by both coaches in the last quarter in order to relieve the exhausted players.

Statistics of the game showed Ames to have a slight advantage in yards gained. Ames made 154 yards in scrimmage to 116 for Missouri. Ames made its largest gains in the first half, making seven first downs to Missouri's one.

In the second half Missouri tried nothing but straight football and gained consistently through the Ames line. Whiteman shone for Missouri on the offense, carrying the ball for a majority of Missouri's gains. Coglizer showed up very well in the kicking department, his punts averaging 35 yards.

Missouri seemed to have solved the mystery of the Ames aerial attack and intercepted many passes at critical moments. Ames gained at will in the center of the field, but was unable to gather the final punch needed to push the ball over for a score. Missouri tried only a few passes, and one of these accounted for the only touchdown of the game.

In the middle of the fourth quarter Whiteman's pass to O'Sullivan accounted for Missouri's touchdown. O'Sullivan received the pass behind his own goal line after the ball had been worked from the center of the field by Whiteman's line smashes. Ames tried desperately to score in the remaining minutes of the game but Missouri effectively spoiled the offense.

Cleveland and Principia Tie

South Side Eleven Stops Academy Team When Goal Is in Danger.

The football teams of Principia Academy and Cleveland High battled to a scoreless tie at Francis Field yesterday afternoon. Musgrove at quarter back was the individual star for Cleveland. William Green, the Academy end, and Merriam, substituting at right halfback, played an excellent defensive game for Principia.

In the first quarter, Principia advanced to Cleveland's 17-yard line, but lost the ball on downs. The Academy again advanced to the opposing 10-yard line. Two line bucks netted eight yards, but Cleveland's line held. Neither team made any substantial gains during the remainder of the quarter.

Jacques, the Cleveland fullback, recovered a punt on the Academy 30-yard line in the third quarter. A drop kick by Musgrove missed the Principia goal by three feet.

Most of the fourth quarter was played near the Cleveland goal line. A forward pass, Browne to Deal, gave Principia 40 yards. Stitt added 5 yards to Cleveland's 20-yard line. A forward pass failed. Cleveland took the ball, but lost it when Green, the Principia end, intercepted a forward pass. Principia advanced to the Cleveland 10-yard line. On the fourth down a drop kick by Stitt missed the Cleveland goal post by a foot.

Kirkwood Beats C. B. C. High.

The heavy Kirkwood High team was held to a 14-to-0 score by the inexperienced C. B. C. High eleven yesterday. Kirkwood scored late in the second half on a long forward pass to a "sleeping" end near the side line and went over in the fourth quarter after an intercepted pass. Fullback Murphy starred for Kirkwood.

Players on Shipboard Ride Hobby Horses to Keep in Good Shape

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ON BOARD THE S. S. MONT ROYAL, Oct. 18.—

THE NEW YORK GIANTS and the Chicago White Sox, en route to Europe, have a novel method of training on shipboard. They are riding electric hobby horses in the ship's gymnasium. The horses are equipped with various gaits and canters.

The players spend hours on horseback. The exercise has much the same benefit as a ride to hounds. Rowing machines, boxing, wrestling and electric vibrators aid the players to keep in shape for the approaching games.

Comiskey and McGraw encourage members of the teams to spend evenings on the dance floor and to fox trot at various speeds. This will help as much as anything to keep them in condition, these experts say.

In promenades of the deck it is estimated that the athletes each hiked 10 miles on the first day out. All the members of the party have engaged in sports common to life aboard ship. Muddy Ruel showed himself a versatile and adaptable athlete by breaking the ship's shuffle board record.

MEEK'S 68-YARD RUN GIVES AGGIES VICTORY OVER JAYHAWKERS, 6-0

By the Associated Press.

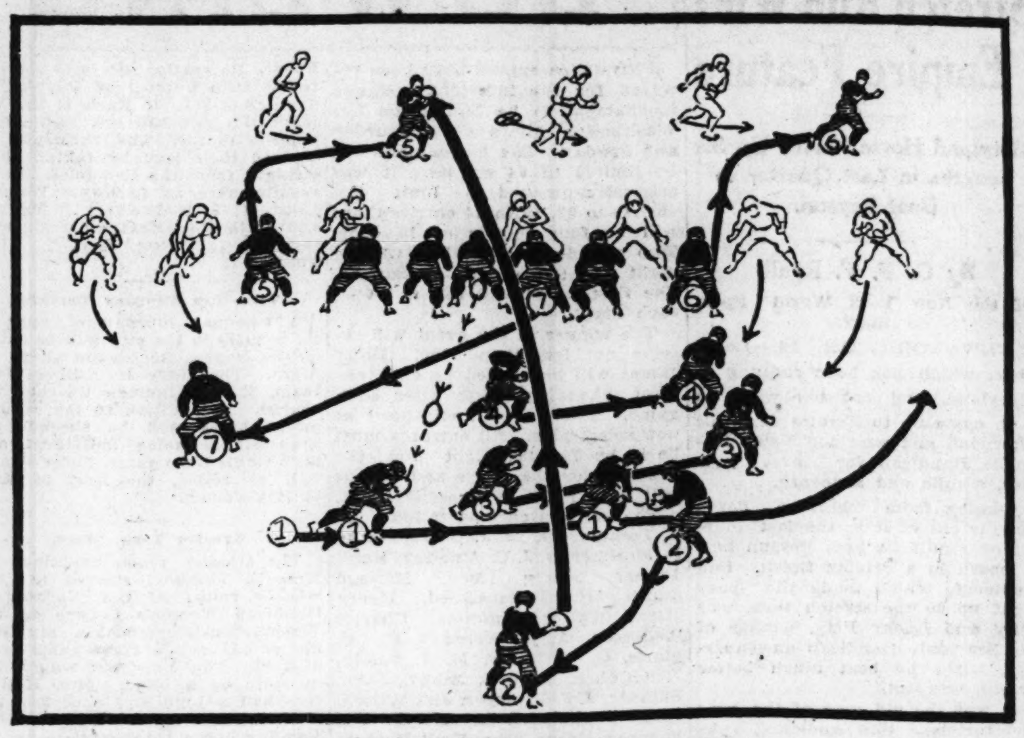
MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 18.—The Aggie Wildcat sank his claw deep into the feathers of the shining Jayhawk here today and Kansas University went back to Lawrence with the first defeat dealt by the Agricultural College since 1906. The final score was 6 to 0, the Aggies getting their lone touchdown early in the last period when Meek, Wildcat right halfback backed up Cuber's fumble on the Aggies' 22-yard line and raced 68 yards down the side of the field for the only score.

For the last two years the two teams had battled to a tie score and through three nip and tuck periods today it appeared that the classic would end in the same manner, until Meek made his sensational run to the Kansas goal line.

Wellston Defeats Ranken.

Wellston High scored a touchdown and two safeties for a 10-to-0 victory over Ranken Trades team yesterday. McCready and Gossom each tossed the Ranken fullback behind his own goal line for safeties while Capt. Wheeler scored the touchdown.

Famous Winning Football Plays---No. 13



SPAULDING'S MINNESOTA PASS.

FORWARD passing, first made headway in the Middle West and the University of Minnesota has long been prominently identified with the overhead attack. This play by Coach Bill Spaulding has been very successful.

The play develops from the old-fashioned formation with three backs in a line.

The ball comes direct from center to left halfback, No. 1, who starts to the right giving ball to right halfback, No. 2, as he runs in front of him, Left halfback runs doubled up as if for an end run, in order to draw over the secondary defense.

Right end, No. 6, goes down and signals for the ball, but this is only for the purpose of fooling the secondary defense which has come over anyway to stop the fake end run.

Right guard, No. 7, leaves his position to protect the passer, running low and not too fast so not to attract attention.

Sam Langford Tells the "Inside" of His 6-Round Bout With Late Stanley Ketchel

Little Thammy Just Started to Frivol Around, When "Wildcat" Put Over His Famous One-Two Punch in Fourth, Jarring Him From Top to Bottom.

These excerpts from Sam Langford's life story, as told through a representative of the Post-Dispatch, relate to some of Langford's experiences in the ring after he had met some success. The Boston Tar Baby declares that fighting must be made a life study for a pugilist to keep going.

WELL, here we are with the "inside" about that Stanley Ketchel fight in Philadelphia in 1910.

It went six rounds, no decision —remember that?

Was I trying to put that boy to sleep?

No, I wasn't—not for the first four rounds. After that—well, I'll tell you all about it.

That Stanley boy had been cutting up a lot of duds along in 1909 and 1910 and pretty soon folks began to say they guessed he could lick me. I guessed the other way and then some promoter in Philadelphia matched us up for April 27, 1910.

I said to myself:

"Little Thammy, my boy, this child may be downright tough, so don't you go frisking around with him. You just go right cut and bump him, that's what you do."

A couple of days before our fight a telegram came asking would I meet Ketchel out in the Pacific Coast in May or June, providing no one was knocked dead in Philadelphia.

Agreed With Himself.

RIGHT then and there I did a little agreeing—WITH MYSELF, and nobody else.

Stan was a great card out on the Coast and they liked me at least a little bit out there, and I knew an open-air fight would draw $50,000 anyway. And that meant money for Little Thammy if nobody got knocked dizzy in Philadelphia.

I agreed with myself like this:

"Thammy, he's tough—and so are you. He can't hurt you and you might put him to sleep if you ain't careful. So you make it a good fast fight and draw it fine and then everybody out on the Coast will want to see the return match. When you fight him there you can step right in and knock that boy loose from his intelligence and get yourself a lot of money and the titled."

Well, in the first round I went sailing along "under" wraps. I did it, too, in the second. But by that time I found out that this Ketchel boy was a wonder. He was hitting like mule's kick and running all over me and I found out before the second was over that I'd better begin to let loose a bit.

And Then It Happened.

SO in the third round I stepped right into Stanley and that boy stepped into me and we slugged and slammed and punched and did about everything but throw buckets at each other. I won that round—and when it was over I figured Stanley wasn't as happy as he used to be. I had smacked him a few that shook him up. So I said to myself, as I sat in my corner after the third:

"Don't be so rough, Thammy, or you're liable to knock your little self right out of that California fight."

The fourth round bell rang. I put on my "wraps" again and was just sort of frivoling around when —well, it happened.

Stan, tearing in, worked his famous double shift. A fearful right-hander landed under my heart and a tenth of a second later I thought he had ripped my chin loose with a left hook.

I was jarred from top to bottom. No man up to that time had ever hit me a double punch like that. My knees began to lose their strength and the whole building began to whirl around.

Ketchel had hurt me—and he knew it. Then he made the only real blunder of the fight. Instead of forcing me to fight long range, which I couldn't have done because my legs were wobbling, he leaped right into me, hoping to finish me with short head and body punches.

As he came in, I grabbed him. And I held, lawsy me, how I did hold! I hugged that boy tighter than I ever hugged any boy before or since. He was like a wild man, trying to tear loose. But little Thammy just wouldn't let go of that boy, not until Little Tammay's legs got stronger and he was sure that his head was still hanging on his neck.

Tossed Away the Wraps.

WHEN we came out of that clinch, the danger for me was gone. But I just decided to play it safe the rest of the round with that hammering wild cat. I was right again, but I reckoned I'd better get myself about one minute's rest in a nice chair before I got frisky with that boy again.

In my corner after the fourth, I said to Little Thammy: "Little Thammy, this boy is tougher than a hock shop keeper's heart. It's bad business to be wearing wraps around here any longer. Here's where you forget all about that California brawl and you go out and break his neck or, he'll be breaking yours. Yes, sir, Little Thamy, that's just what he'll be doing."

The last two rounds, well, lawsy be, those were rounds. Stanley boy had it all figured he was going to bust up my brains in the fifth. He tore right in and he came so fast that a cyclone couldn't have gotten away from him. There wasn't anything for me to do but stand still and just slug it with him.

And that's what we did. Hot dog—what a fight! There was Stan trying to kill me and there was Little Thammy trying to bounce that boy into a nice, plush coffin and the crowd going crazier, and the fighters gone crazy and about a million gloves bouncing off our heads and bodies.

The newspaper boys were divided after that fight. Some thought Stan won; others thought I shaded that wildcat. I'm not sure who won. All I was sure of after it was over was that my neck wasn't broken and that if I fought that boy again there wasn't ever going to be any taking it easy until he had me all but murdered.

Soon afterward we were matched to make that 20-round fight on the Pacific Coast. But before the fight could be put on, Gov. Gillette of California outlawed prize fighting and Stan was shot and killed late in 1910, before we got a chance to fight again.

Australian Fighter May Turn Out to Be Another Les Darcey

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 18.

HAS Australia unearthed another Les Darcey? Boxing fans and critics of Sydney are sure that in Harry Collins, the New Castle welterweight, they have a man who will soon be ready to take on Mickey Walker in a world's championship match.

Collins is barely 21 years of age, but during his short career in the ring he has performed like a champion. His knockout of Ernie Rice (former lightweight, now welterweight) champion of England, in two rounds has placed his stock above par. Rice had never been knocked out before, the nearest approach to it being when he had to quit in the eighth round against Sailor Freedman in New York on account of a badly cut eye.

Boxing critics think Collins has the making of another Les Darcy. Promoters here have opened negotiations to try and get either Champion Mickey Walker or Dave Shade to visit that country for the purpose of meeting Collins.

FRENCH JOCKEY HAS GOOD CHANCE TO LEAD GARNER FOR HONORS

PARIS, Oct. 18.—For the first time in 25 years a French-born jockey may have the honor of being the premier rider of the French turf. Guy Garner of Kentucky and Henry Semblat, a French boy, are fighting it out head and head for riding supremacy. The score today gives Garner 76 winning mounts and Semblat 75. The racing season ends early in November.

Both jockeys are riding in great form and their services are so much in demand that they are able to choose mounts from the best of the stables. The respective positions of the riders recently has been changing daily, first with Garner leading and then Semblat. Turf followers are convinced that both jockeys are desperately trying to win each race in which they have a leg up and they are betting heavily on the mounts of the boy they consider the better jockey regardless of the "dope" books. They seem to feel sure they are getting a run for their money.

Frank O'Neil of St. Louis, who led the jockeys of the French turf for 10 successive years, has been in poor racing luck since 1922. First and second calls on his services have been contracted for by stables whose horses have not been extraordinarily good, and in addition he frequently has been absent from the French courses while riding in England, Spain and Belgium. O'Neil, with 90 winning mounts, led all the jockeys in France in 1922, but he finished third in the 1923 ranking.

SUMNER ELEVEN BEATS ALUMNI ELEVEN, 18—6

Sumner High School's negro football team and the Sumner Alumni played a spirited game at the Stars' Park yesterday afternoon, score 18 to 6. The feature of the game was a 60-yard run made by Lane. Sumner scored twice in the last period and clinched the victory. This game was the first of the season for either team. Sumner's next encounter will be with the Douglass High School of Evansville Ind., next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Vespers Meet Ben Millers in Soccer Feature

Both Teams Showed Unusual Merit in Games Last Sunday.

A soccer game of unusual promise, as early season matches go, is scheduled to be played this afternoon at St. Louis University Field, Grand boulevard and Laclede avenue, with the Vespers meeting the new Ben Millers. This will be the second half of a double-header, the Scullins and Raticans meeting in the first game.

Joe Hennessey Injured.

Manager Tate Brady announced yesterday that Joe Hennessey, who has had a brilliant career at right halfback for the Scullins for the past six years, is lost to football for an indefinite period as a result of injuries suffered when he was hit by an automobile last Thursday. Hennessey's left hip was fractured. Brady will use a recruit, William Baum, at halfback. Baum appeared in the Scullin lineup late last season.

Both the Vespers and Millers have entered upon the championship season well trained and prepared to play good football. Last Sunday the Vespers gave evidence that their defense is above par, and although the forwards scored no goals against the Scullins, they came so close that the attack must be considered dangerous. The forward line will be changed somewhat today with Eddie Becker at outside right and Peter Currie, an Englishman, at center forward. Oster, Burke and Tracy will probably remain undisturbed as the halfbacks, although Fink and Gockel are now available.

The Millers will be forced to make changes because of the injury suffered by Harry Hebberger last Sunday. Schweppe will appear at center half and Frank Vaughn will make his first appearance at fullback beside Tom Erbe.

The first game will be started at 2:30 o'clock.

BENLD ROLLS UP 102 POINTS TO 0 AGAINST GIRARD HIGH ELEVEN

Boise Pothoff, former Washington University football captain, sent his Benld (Ill.) steam roller eleven against the Girard (Ill.) high school team at Benld yesterday and when the smoke had settled Benld had scored 102 points to the foe's nothing.

Pothoff's team is rated one of the strongest high school combinations in Illinois and recently played the Staunton team to a 6-6 tie, notwithstanding several regulars were injured.

Benld plays Country Day School here Oct. 25 and St. Louis U. High School Nov. 22. On Thanksgiving day the big game for Benld will be a return match with Staunton.

Webster Runs Over McKinley

Strong County Football Team Scores 33 Points to Opponents' Nothing.

The Webster High football eleven ran over the weakened McKinley team, scoring five touchdowns and three points after touchdowns for a total of 33 points. McKinley failed to score.

McKinley felt the loss of several stars, Webster's ace was Fullback Ches Green, who scored three touchdowns. Capt. Roger Slater scored the other two.

The game was cleanly played, the two penalties being for offsides. The McKinley boys fought gamely enough, but the big lads from Webster were too much for them. Webster scored in every quarter, twice in the third quarter.

Besides Capt. Slater and Ches Green, Lintzenich and John Green played a good game for Webster. John Green was responsible for the three points after touchdowns through drop-kicking.

Willmarth, playing at quarter in the place of the injured Bob Jarrett performed well in the new position. His teammate Deffaa also showed up well at halfback.

RICE INSTITUTE TEAM IS DEFEATED, 12 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 18.—Houston State University Tigers won over Rice Institute Owls here today, 12 to 0.

Through the first half the two teams battled to no advantage. Exchanges of punts and straight football kept the ball in territory from which scoring was almost impossible.

The Tigers got their first taste of victory in the third period when a fumble was recovered by Swanson on the Rice three-yard line and Stephens carried the ball over. A trial at drop kick for the point was missed.

In the last few minutes of play, Jackson intercepted a forward pass on the 15-yard line and carried the pigskin over for the second Tiger score. Again the try for point was missed.

WESTCHESTER COUNTY NEW YORK COMPLETING A PUBLIC GOLF COURSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The new municipally-owned golf links being built by Westchester County at Mohansic Park is said by Tom Winton, designer and consulting architect, to have the finest natural location of any course in the vicinity of New York. The construction work on 18 holes has been in progress during the past year.

The course is located seven miles east of Peekskill in the 110-acre Mohansic Park reservation. The site chosen is a flattened hilltop having an elevation of 600 feet above sea level.

The course will be open to all citizens of Westchester County.

Slattery Appears The Fastest Big Man of All Time

Lightheavyweight Who Shows at Garden Nov. 7 Speedier Than J. J. Corbett Was.

By Hype Igoe

Of the New York World Sport Staff

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Jimmy Slattery is coming back to Madison Square Garden and the fans will be happy. No cleaner, faster boxer has ever been seen in that ring, and it has spotted them all; from Jim Corbett down the line.

Jimmy is going to meet some middleweight on Nov. 7, perhaps, and I was in hopes that it might be Paul Berlenbach. I'd have my fears for Slippery Slattery, yet he tells me with his own lips that he can "take" Paul with consummate ease. I doubt the ease of it all; yet, if he can thump Jack Delaney around to the Queen's taste, why shouldn't he whip the slower Berlenbach?

How About It, Mr. Dempsey?

Paul was a mark for Delaney and there never was a man so badly outpointed as Delaney was by the Buffalo wonder. Jimmy has plenty to learn; but I am wondering, when he has learned it all and has taken on 40 or more pounds, as he surely will, what Jack Dempsey is going to do about it.

With added speed and science, Jimmy ought to develop into the fastest big man that ever lived.

He'll never own the punch that Dempsey possesses. He's not of that type. He can hit well and would have hit harder with his right in the Delaney fight if it had been sound. Something went amiss with his right duke in a previous fight and he favored it all through the fight. You could say that he whipped Delaney with one hand.

Goodness knows we need his kind. The old game is so threadbare and tiresome around New York that a Slattery boxing cocktail is one of the enjoyable prospects.

Mr. Siki Salutes the Cop.

I spotted Siki walking along Forty-second street today, loud cane and bright canary-colored chamois gloves over his black maulies. He wasn't wearing his monocle. The last time he wore it down on the docks a big Irishman knocked it through to the back of his head.

Siki got half way across the street, the mad taxi drivers calling their shots in no uncertain language, when Siki spotted a giant traffic cop. He turned on his heel, walked right through the whizzing motor vehicles and up to the cop. There, he bowed with all the grace of a potentate and offered his yellow-gloved hand.

The cop blushed furiously, took the hand, shook it and then Siki, smacking the gendarme on the back, went on about his business. The singular Senegalese has had nightsticks bound off his dome so often that he is now making the rounds, cumming up with the old enemy, meeting trouble face to face before it starts.

Joe Lynch a Mere Shell.

The Pioneer Sporting Club is ever trying to develop new talent, and with that plan in mind, is trotting out two new ones on Thursday night, Danny Cooney, a Philadelphia lightweight, and Jackie Gordon, a featherweight of great promise. They must think well of Gordon and Cooney, for Jackie is meeting Joe Lynch and Cooney tough Johnny Clinton.

It will mark Cooney's first appearance in a New York ring. He has been facing many a tough one in Philadelphia and New Jersey rings. Little Gordon is meeting only the shell of the once great Joe Lynch; but shell or no shell, Joe has enough of experience left to make it more than interesting for a new one.

BAYLOR WINS OVER ARKANSAS TEAM, 13—0

By the Associated Press.

CHILHOWEE BREAKS U. S. RECORD IN LATONIA CHAMPIONSHI

Mad Play Beaten Six Lengths, With Aga Khan Third

Gallaher Brothers' Son of Ballot Steps 1 3-4 Miles in 2:54 3-5.

ZEV ALSO BREAKS RECORD

Rancocas Stable's Star Races to Victory Over Mile Course in 1:36 3-5.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.—Chilhowee, brilliant son of Ballot, a failure in the International Special, last Saturday came to his own this afternoon and won the Latonia championship, with the aid of a well-timed ride on the part of Jockey Mack Garner.

He shattered the American track record, held by Rockminister, when he negotiated the distance of a mile and three-quarters in the remarkable fast time of 2:54 3-5.

His victory was never in doubt, after the horses passed the final stretch turn, for the colt was six open lenghs in front and he could have won by a greater margin had Garner set him down.

Mad Play, leading color-bearer from the East, and heavily played in the mutuel betting, was second. Aga Khan, coupled with Flames and Priscilla Ruley, finished in the third position, beaten off seven lengths by the Rancocas stable star. Flames finished fourth, Graeme fifth and Priscilla Ruley, a badly beaten last, pulled up in the stretch. The race was worth $25,935 to the winner.

Third Victory for Garner.

The owner, who was on hand to see Chilhowee perform, received the trophy offered annually by the jocked club for this event. Jockey Mack Garner was showered with flowers as it marked the third consecutive time that he had won this fixure.

Run Mile in 1:36 3-5.

Fractional time for the race was—quarter, :24; half, :47 1-5; three-quarters, 1:13 3-5; mile, 1:36 3-5; mile and quarter, 2:02 3-5; mile and half, 2:28.

The half-dozen starters lined up at the post and, after a minute delay Billy Hamilton sent them on their way. Mad Play was first to show in front, closely followed by Chilhowee, Aga Khan, Priscilla Ruley, Graeme and Flames. Passing the judge's stand the first time, Chilhowee was in front setting a hot pace, though Garner had a stout hold on him, closely followed by Priscilla Ruley, Mad Play, Graeme, Aga Khan and Flames.

After going a mile and a quarter Chilhowee, hard held, began to run and opened up a gap of five lengths with Mad Play a length and a half in front of Graeme, running a good race in third position and the others strung out.

At the head of the stretch Chilhowee held a five length advantage and Mad Play was doing his best which wasn't very much as he did not increase his advantage an inch trying to come to the winner, Chilhowee won as his rider pleased.

Aga Khan moved up on Graeme and Flames passed the Camden entry and they finished with Chilhowee winning by six lengths, while Mad Play, beaten but not disgraced, was second for which his owner received $3000. J. Fitzsimmons took down $3000 for finishing third and fourth with Aga Khan and Flames.

The old record of 2:55 3-5 was made by Rockminister in 1921.

Zev Runs Great Race.

Zev, mighty color bearer of the Rancocas stable, and leading money winner of 1923, ran one of the greatest races of his career when he made a brilliant run through the stretch, from a back position, to get a nose decision in the Havlin Hotel Handicap and in so doing shattered the track record made by Revenue Agent. Zev sprinted the mile in the fast time of 1:35 3-5.

Postillion broke fast and made the early pace going to the quarter in 23 3-5 to the half in 47 1-5 and three quarters in 1:11 3-5. At the head of the stretch she appeared a certain winner, with the Princess running a length and a half behind; but the latter could not come to her. Zev, seemingly beaten off three full length, started to run and was all but lifted through the air by Jockey L. Fator. He nipped the tiring Postillion at the wire, after passing the Princess as if she were standing still.

Zev carried the heavy impost of 129 pounds and gave much weight to the other two contenders.

DE MOLAY TEAM AND GOOD HOPE MEET IN BENEFIT GAME TODAY

A benefit baseball game between two group champions in the Municipal League will be played this afternoon at Sportsman's Park when the Good Hope team, title holders in the Craftsmen's League, opposes the St. Louis Chapter nine, winners of the De Molay League flag.

Proceeds from the game will be devoted to promotion of De Molay activities.

The game will be started at 2:30 o'clock.

Epinard Probably Will Not Race Again This Year; Foot Injured

was an easy second and Gifford A. Cochran's Sun Flag was third with H. P. Whitney's filly Initiate beating Epinard for fourth.

Wise Counsellor Leads All the Way

From a good start Wise Counsellor was rushed into a good early lead by Steve O'Donnell and he was good enough to hold his advantage throughout. On the first turn Epinard, ridden by Clarence Kummer, was bumped and carried a bit wide by Initiate; but there was not interference enough to excuse his showing. Kummer worked his way into second place in the run through the back stretch, but he could not even hold that position and before the stretch was reached it was evident that he was to be soundly beaten.

Sun Flag held close to the pace until inside the final furlong and there it was that Big Blaze made his dash that earned the place, but he was beaten two and a half lengths by Wise Counsellor.

Epinard to Get Long Rest.

After the race Eugene Leigh reported how the quarter crack had opened and he said the colt came out of the race in such bad shape that there will be no chance to start him again for a long time. He said that he had not yet made his plans for the immediate future.

Before the running there were many disquieting rumors of the condition of Epinard. It was reported that his near forefoot was in serious condition and was bleeding badly. Besides his bandages he also wore a three-quarter plate.

Donaghee's Great Stretch Run Wins Empire Feature

Maryland Horse Makes Up Six Lengths in Last Quarter to Beat Feysun.

By G. F. T. Ryall,
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Donaghee, which has been running in Maryland, and not too well at that, come up to Empire City this afternoon and won the New Rochelle Handicap for three year olds, a mile and sixteenth.

Coming from half a dozen lengths out of it in the last quarter of a mile he beat Feysun half a length in a driving finish. Sun Audience, which made the pace right up to the stretch turn, was third and Lucky Play, winner of the Scarsdale Handicap on Thursday, when he beat much better horses, was last.

It was the old case of the hare and tortoise. Sun Audience, running one of his good races, broke on top and set a sizzling pace. Lucky Play, which likes to run in front, too, went with him and together they fought it out for six furlongs. Then Lucky Play cracked. All this time Donaghee had been lying in fourth place just back of Rinkey, and two lengths in front of Feysun.

Winner Strong at Finish.

At the stretch turn Wallace, who had the mount on the Maryland horse, moved up and when they straightened out in the stretch just can over the dead heat leaders. Feysun closed fastest of all and might have won in half a dozen more strides.

Lucky Play stopped to nothing in the last sixteenth. The time of the race was 1:46 2-5, good considering the condition of the track. The showing of Donaghee was not unanticipated for, although he was receiving only eight pounds from Lucky Play, he was favorite in the betting.

Nancy Langhorne ran back to her good race at Jamaica a week ago in the Algonquin Handicap at one mile and 70 yards, beating Nose Dive, the top weight in the field of five, half a length in a drive. The daughter of Flitter Gold was rated behind the pace of Nose Dive to the head of the stretch where Thomas went up on the outside and outrode Old Man the favorite and ridden by Happy Buxton, had little chance under the handling. Buxton put up one of his hurry-up rides, after getting away in a tangle rushing his mount up to the pace, and the result was the son of Fair Play was cooked at the end of six furlongs.

Despite the counter attraction of the big race at Laurel and the football games, the Empire City track entertained one of the biggest crowds of the season.

Dimmesdale, which used to beat good horses, can still beat bad ones. The old fellow, rejuvenated, outclassed the company he started with in the second race, over the short six furlongs course. After getting away a bit slowly he went round Lady Boss and Buck Pond at the head of the stretch and just galloped the rest of the way to the winning post.

Max Carey a Billiardist.

Max Carey, Pittsburg outfielder went into the lead in Class B in the bowling-billiard tournament at Peterson's yesterday. The competition was at 10 selected three-cushion shots. Carey scored 200 out of a possible 300 and had a run of five strikes. The lead in Class A is held by Bud Westhus, who has a score of 180.

National Boxing Body Will Hold Annual Meeting

Effort Will Be Made to Find Way to Repeal Motion Picture Law.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 18.—Boxing fans from various parts of the country will gather here Monday for a three-day session of the National Boxing Association, to discuss the fistic problems of the day and to elect new officers for the ensuing year.

Several matters of importance will come up for consideration, the most notable in all probably being an effort to find ways and means of repealing section 9945 of the United States statutes, regarding the transporting of boxing films from one state to another. The law was enacted during or right after the Jeffries-Johnson battle at Reno, Nev., when there was a lot of agitation against Johnson, colored champion. Pictures are shown in the various states where they are taken and it is felt that there is no good reason why they should not be shown in all states, the same as other pictures.

President Burke to Retire.

Another matter to be discussed will be the membership of states where boxing is not legalized. The aim of the association is to have representatives in states only where it is legal.

Four of the principal states are not members at present—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Connecticut. Pennsylvania and Connecticut resigned some time ago, and President Richard Burke has personally invited them to reconsider their action and join again. Efforts also have been made to bring Jersey and New York into the fold.

President Burke, who has served two years, will not serve again, as he has been ill and feels that he cannot give the necessary time to the position. It is very probable that E. A. McAuley of Michigan and Latrope Cogswell of Maryland will be the two proposed for president, with McAuley having the whip hand. Both are competent.

It is likely, too, that steps will be taken to hold elimination tournaments during the next year for some of the vacant championships, if they are not settled in the meantime.

CHEAP MONEY STILL HELPS THE MARKETS

Stocks Steady After Experiencing a Sharp Spell of Weakness Early in Week—German Loan Enormous Success.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Fluctuating markets that reveal no particular trend, a spotty condition of things in industry and easy money continued to characterize the financial situation. Stocks experienced a sharp spell of weakness early in the week and then steadied. Many explanations of the reaction were offered. Some attributed it to an election scare, although the scare itself was hardly discernible. Others made much of 'estate selling.' It would seem, however, that the market simply had got into a rather top-heavy position and was ready to go down. A considerable element had accumulated profits that they wished to take. The incurable romanticists of Wall street believed that the market would be 'given a play' in preparation for the German loan. In any event, the first sharp selling came soon after the signing of the loan contract was announced. The Steel Corporation's unfilled orders had just been published. No upward movement started, whereupon selling appeared. Similarly, on Tuesday, the German loan was offered. It was an enormous success, but no support appeared in the market. Selling reappeared. Professional activity on the short side undoubtedly contributed to the decline, but the primary force probably was the desire to preserve profits accumulated on the summer rise.

Money Market Relaxes.

"Meanwhile, the money market, after its slight firming up of the past few weeks, relaxed once more. The call rate on the Stock Exchange fell back to the low level of midsummer. The other forms of money, while not as cheap as a few months ago, eased. The change followed an increase in rediscounts and, what is more significant, a sizable increase in open market purchases at the Federal Reserve banks. The latter plainly are quite willing to provide all the credit that can be used properly. Meanwhile it is possible that the heavy selling of grain by farmers is sending part of the crop money back to the metropolitan centers. In any event, it is clear that the money market is easy and is likely to remain so.

"The agricultural situation continues good. The weather still is unusually favorable. Ideas on the cotton crop are again being revised, this time in an upward direction. If the good weather continues a few weeks longer the yield may yet reach the higher figures that have been mentioned during the season. Cotton prices have reacted on the better crop prospects, but still offer the grower a good return, while helping the manufacturer to work back toward his markets. Grain prices have continued high, with wheat still commanding approximately $1.50.

"Industrial news remains fairly good. Steel buying is somewhat irregular, but the recovery of August and September has been held. Elsewhere conditions are improving rather than the reverse. The revival from depression admittedly is uneven, but it always is. Considering the election uncertainties, the progress is encouraging.

European Situation.

"With the German loan giving the Dawes plan an excellent start, news comes from Hungary of the successful operation of the reconstruction plan that the League of Nations devised for that country. Conditions in Europe are, in fact, becoming stabilized; the recovery that has been going on for the past three years should be accelerated. The newspapers are filled with rumors of fresh foreign loans; much of the talk is exaggerated or premature, but more issues undoubtedly will come. Under proper safeguards, this country seems about to assist Europe, and in doing so earn profit itself."

"To those whose sentiment is swayed by the movement of security prices on the Stock Exchange the closing short session market was more reassuring than that of any trading day in some time. The recovery of the past three days from the heavy selling of the fore part of the week was not particularly impressive. Gains were not followed up and volume fell off on the advances. Today, however, bearish interests appeared to be rather anxious over their positions, now that money has developed an easier tone, and special estate selling and election scare presure was lifted. Short covering, at any rate, was much in evidence and the turnover was unusually active for the half day. Prices improved as trading progressed and gains were well distributed. At the close the list was fractionally higher with 1 and 2-point advances common among the active issues. Bonds were quiet but fairly steady.

Foreign Exchanges Firm.

"Trading in the foreign exchanges was of the usual week-end character. Business was transacted on a limited scale, speculative activity being quiescent, and rates were firm. Sterling was unchanged at $4.48⅝ and French francs were quoted 1 point higher at 5.23 cents. Other European rates were unchanged or a point or so higher, the only movements to attract attention being the further recovery in Norwegian and Danish currencies, which recently have been under considerable speculative pressure as a result of banking troubles, an aftermath of the war inflation period.

"In the commodity markets as well as short covering was a powerful supporting influence. Cotton was sold briskly at times on expectations of a larger crop on account of the continued good weather, but offerings were absorbed without difficulty, and at a late price of 22.77 the December future was 19 points higher. Wheat and corn, although showing a fairly steady tone, sold for the most part at slightly lower prices. In these markets also the weather being an aid to the bear side. In the case of wheat, however, the heavy foreign buying is giving confidence in firm or higher prices later on.

Decrease in Loans.

"The statement of the New York Clearing House, made public as of the close of business Oct. 18, shows the following changes: Loans, discounts, investments, etc., decreased $5,869,000; net demand deposits decreased $31,032,000; time deposits increased $1,338,000; circulation decreased $31,000 and excess reserves increased $29,746,380."

OIL SHARES PROMINENT IN WEEK'S TRADE ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Further improvement was shown in the forward movement in today's short sessions on the curb exchange. There were a number of strong issues in the public utility group under the leadership of Middle West Utilities and East Pennsylvania Electric. Initial dealings began in American Water Works which sold at 23½ and 24 on a when issued basis. Radio shares also were higher.

In the petroleum division most interest today was attached to the steady demand in Vacuum Oil and International Petroleum. Other shares were quiet with a firm tone being maintained at the levels reached on the recent advance.

The most important feature during the week was the response recorded to the changed situation in the petroleum industry measured by the further reduction in crude oil output which brought the daily production down to below the 2,000,000 barrel mark. An order by the Prairie Oil & Gas Co. dicontinuing, prorating and accepting all offers made at current prices were another strengthening influence following the steady reduction in output. Prairie Oil which sold at 195 early in the week rallied to 215 and the advance in this stock had an influence on dealings in other Standard Oil issues. The wave of liquidation on the stock exchange Tuesday and Wednesday had a disturbing influence on industrial issues, but the losses sustained in the first two business days were more than regained in some issues before the week ended. The widest range was in National Power which after dropping from 163 to 140 rallied to 167. East Penn Electric yielded from 60½ to 50 and then came back to 62. American Power & Light in which the transactions were on a large scale after falling from 41⅝ to 37½ rallied to 44. Many other utility stocks moved in the same way.

RENEWED EXPORT BUYING ADVANCES WHEAT MARKET; CORN AND OATS SELL OFF

Favorable Weather for Maturing Corn Crop Factor in Price Trend of That Grain —Rye Higher With Wheat.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Renewed export buying of both wheat and rye advanced prices to new high levels during the week ending Oct. 18, according to the weekly market review of the United States Department of Agriculture. Continued favorable weather for maturing the corn crop and lower prices for hogs and cattle had a weakening effect on the corn market, and prices declined 4c to 5c per bushel. Oats was also lower but the market was relatively firmer than for corn. While the export sales of wheat became very heavy again during the week, the buying was shifted more to the hard winter wheats for gulf shipment. Premiums for deferred shipment were materially higher, 14 cents over the December price f. o. b. vessel at the gulf being offered for wheat for March shipment; 13 cents over Chicago December was offered for February shipment and 12 cents over for January, while bids for November and December shipment were 10c to 10½c over. Practically all hard winter wheat offered with favorable billing to gulf ports was being shipped direct for export and only the high protein milling grades were moving to Kansas City and other distributing markets. The milling demand was of only fair volume as most mills are well stocked with wheat, and the flour demand continues sluggish. The heavy movement of spring wheat has practically eliminated the demand from the spring wheat mills for hard winter wheat. The export demand in the spring wheat markets was less active than in the winter wheat markets, due partially to the undesirable quality of a large percentage of the spring receipts. The arrivals of spring wheat at both Minneapolis and Winnipeg show the effect of damp harvest and more than one-third of the Canadian receipts were reported to be grading No. 3 or lower. Good dry wheat was in excellent demand from both mills and shippers at Minneapolis and premiums held around 20c to 22c over the December for the best quality of No. 1 dark northern spring wheat. Red winter wheat prices continued very firm and at a premium of about 10c per bushel over the hard winter wheat. New high prices for the crop year were reached at Cincinnati and other winter wheat markets. Export buying, particularly by Norway and Germany, was renewed for rye and prices advanced 6c to 7c during the week. European requirements are much larger than last year because of much smaller production in the principal producing countries and this is causing an urgent export demand for all offerings of rye from this country. Exports to date are larger than total exports for last year.

Continued favorable weather for the maturing of the crop, together with the approach of the new crop movement, had a decidedly weakening influence on the corn market. Lower cattle and hog prices were also a weakening factor and prices declined 4c to 5c. New corn is being marketed in increasing quantities in Texas and Oklahoma. Fort Worth receipts of Oklahoma corn are reported being sold to exporters for shipment to Europe. The first cars of new corn were received at Kansas City and Indianapolis during the week, but no movement of volume is expected for about 30 days. The movement of old corn continues of good volume and stocks in the principal markets continue to increase, totaling now close to 8,000,000 bushels, compared with only about 1,000,000 bushels at the corresponding time last year. The cash demand is only of fair volume as feeders are substituting oats and other cheaper grains.

The movement of oats continued very heavy, and stocks totaling around 60,000,000 bushels have now accumulated in the principal markets. Prices declined slightly with corn but the tone of the market continued fairly firm as the trade apparently considers the oats market too low compared with that of othergrains. The demand for oats was fairly active from both shippers and cereal interests.

The barley market continued firm and there was an excellent demand for the good malting grades. December barley at Minneapolis advanced 1⅝c and closed on Friday at 89⅞c. Cash barley at Minneapolis was quoted at from 76 to 91 cents and No. 3 barley at Milwaukee at 91c to 98c. Export sales of about 150,000,000 bushels were also reported for the week.

The flax market continued its upward trend as receipts continued light. There was no material increase in receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth, and the Canadian movement has been very slow in getting under way. Eastern crushers were active buyers of flaxseed on the Northwestern markets in an effort to obtain their supplies before the close of lake navigation. No. 1 seed at Minneapolis sold at 2c to 6c over the December future price, which advanced 6c during the week and closed on Friday at $2.46.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 18.—Wheat closed lower and corn unchanged to higher.

hTe break in Northwest, more favorable weather being reported in Canada and evening up over week-end were, factors in the wheat market.

Wheat prices ruled fractionally lower in the forepart of day, after opening off. Liverpool wheat closed ⅝d up on December and ⅛d up for March. Corn moved within narrow range, but shaded some.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 2551 cars of wheat, compared with 2117 a week ago and 2247 last year, Minneapolis receiving 407, Duluth 1045 and Winnipeg 1099.

Local wheat receipts, which were 179,400 bushels, compared with 235,300 a week ago and 86,400 last year, included 52 cars local and 86 through. Corn receipts, which were 107,800 bushels, compared with 50,400 a week ago and 80,600 last year, included 60 cars local and 17 through. Oats receipts, which were 124,000 bushels, compared with 64,000 week ago and 118,000 last year, included 44 cars local and 18 through. Hay receipts were 13 cars local and 13 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators were 3,423,697 bushels of wheat, 74,582 bushels of corn, 322,740 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised 23,799 bushels of No. 1 red winter wheat, 550,481 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 660,834 bushels of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 1,140,804 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 4162 bushels of No. 2 corn, 20,959 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 41,881 bushels of No. 2 oats, 184,542 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 18,937 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 26,887 bushels of No. 2 rye.

Primary receipts of wheat were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year. Corn receipts were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Oats receipts were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Wheat shipments were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Corn shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago. Oats shipments were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 2,832,000 bushels, compared with 3,452,000 a week ago and 1,034,000 last year. Corn receipts were 773,000 bushels, compared with 583,000 a week ago and 611,000 last year. Oats receipts were 1,225,000 bushels, compared with 1,752,000 a week ago and 947,000 last year. Wheat shipments were 1,642,000 bushels, compared with 3,446,000 a week ago and 683,000 last year. Corn shipments were 515,000 bushels, compared with 434,000 a week ago and 483,000 last year. Oats shipments were 544,000 bushels, compared with 576,000 a week ago and 714,000 last year.

Offerings of soft wheat on the local market Saturday were small, demand also being light. Not all sold. Offerings of average milling qualities were 1c lower, but selections of No. 2 red sold at unchanged prices. Hard wheat declined 1c, shipping orders caring for a few cars, while local mills took a few, but all offerings did not find takers. No. 1 hard sold at ¼c under the St. Louis December price and No. 2 hard 1¼c under. Kansas No. 2 hard, 76 per cent dark sold at $1.53. The demand for cash corn was narrow until declines, when it broadened out some, resulting in a pretty close clearance, the buying being mainly by accumulators, shippers and industries. The market was quoted 1c to 1¼c down on mixed, 1c to 2c down on yellow and 1¼c to 3c down on white. Cash oats were steady to ½c lower, the demand picking up on the decline in the late market. Shippers and elevators bought. Wheat feed was dull. Four track cars of hard bran sold at $26 local and one split car of hard bran sold at $27.60 and gray shorts $34, being a direct sale by mill. A car of hominy feed sold at $36.50 bulk. Hard gray shorts were quoted to arrive from West at $33 immediate and $32.50 prompt shipment; soft bran nominally $26.50 to $27; soft middlings, $34; oat feed, $13. One car of No. 1 fine ground alfalfa meal sold at $30.30; the No. 2 in secondhand sacks was quoted $24.50; No. 1, $26 to $26.50, and choice, $38.50.

WHEAT FUTURES LOWER AT WEEK END ON CHICAGO BOARD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Although the wheat market closed with net losses for the day sustantial gains for the week were recorded. There were periods of weakness during the week but they were short lived.

The weak section of the grain list was the corn market but even that came back in the later days. Oats were inclined to drift along in an aimless fashion and look toward the corn market for its leadership. Lard was strong and established new high prices of the season daily.

Wheat prices showed losses of ⅝ to 1⅛c for the day but the week's changes showed gains of 3⅝ to 7⅝c. Throughout the week buying by foreigners was encountered on all of the soft spots and this created congestion when shorts attempted to cover. Argentine news was bullish owing to the frost damage and lack of moisture in the northern sections. An estimate issued today makes the indicated yield of the South American producer 204,000,000 bu., compared with 249,000,000 bu. last year. The bull news today was sales of 2,000,000 bu. wheat reported by Duluth for export. This was offset by week-end profit taking by longs and the usual week-end dullness in the export trade. Cash wheat basis was ½ to 1c lower. Export brokers told of offering wheat to the seaboard at lower prices than yesterday and failing to receive any response. The trade anticipates a decrease in the visible supply on Monday, but whatever change there is it will be small. At primary markets shipments have been large but they have been exceeded by the receipts.

Corn made a better showing today and closed ¼ to ⅜c higher. This shaves losses for the week to 2⅜@2⅝c. The market was under pressure of liquidation from some of the leading holders who desired to even up preparatory to going away on a vacation. The fine weather for maturing corn incited short selling. On the breaks some of the big trades replaced their lines and forced shorts to cover. The country held back corn on the decline and indications are for a lighter run next week. Shipping demand for corn was light with sales of only 43,000 bu. reported.

Oats lacked leadership and this market was inclined to follow the trend of corn. Prices today were ⅜c lower to ⅛c higher and for the week ⅛c to ⅝c high. The steady accumulation of stock has a tendency to discourage operations on the bull side. A local shipper had an inquiry from the gulf for offers of export oats. Shipping sales were 40,000 bu. and sales of 100,000 bu. were made to go to store.

Lard was up 12½c to 27½c for the day and 15c to 77½c for the week. A strong cash position was a factor all week and new high records were established. Ribs closed 7½c higher today and 15c higher for the week. Trade in meat over the week was slow.

Texas Mohair Production Sold.

UVALDE, Tex., Oct. 18.—About 700,000 pounds of mohair sold here and at Kerrville in the last few days brought an average of better than 66c a pound. These sales completely disposed of the Texas fall mohair production, estimated at a trifle above 3,000,000 pounds. The prices paid ranged from 76½c a pound for kid hair to 64c for grown hair, with the average about 70c for kid hair and 60c for grown.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Changes in foreign exchange conditions during the past week were more important than was indicated by variations in tone and movement, strength being for the time overshadowed by the heavy volume of grain and cotton bills resulting from heavy exports to Great Britain and the Continent. The most important incident was the sharp advance on Monday, in which demand sterling was again carried above $4.50. This caused a revival of discussion as to how near the time has approached when gold payments will be resumed in England and the exchange rate on London again range around parity. The complete success of the German loan was the moving force in the market at the beginning of the week, but after advances in the first two business days of the week, both French and sterling reacted under offerings of commercial bills.

"On Wednesday Norwegian exchange was unsettled by the bank suspension and crown checks dropped from above 14.30 to 14.00. A sharper decline occurred on the same day in Danish exchange, which fell from 17.44 to 17.06, but there were good recoveries from the low levels later in the week. Swiss exchange varied only to a moderate extent from the high level of recent trading, and is now ruling close to parity. Swedish exchange is practically pegged at 26.60 for crown checks.

"In connection with gradual improvement, attention may be called to the fact that Switzerland, Sweden and Holland are in nearby positions to par in dollars. Holland, with a parity of 40.2, advanced to 39.28; Switzerland reached 19.20, within one-tenth of a cent of its parity of 19.30, and Sweden, with a parity of 26.80, was up to 26.61.

"Silver exchanges continued strong, Shanghai moving up to a new high for the year. South American exchanges were irregular and showed little net change as a result of the week's business.

"Trading in the foreign exchanges was of the usual week-end character. Business was transacted on a limited scale, speculative activity being quiescent, and rates were firm. Sterling was unchanged at $4.48⅝ and French francs were quoted 1 point higher at 5.23 cents. Other European rates were unchanged or a point or so higher, the only movements to attract attention being the further recovery in Norweigan and Danish currencies, which recently have been under considerable speculative pressure as a result of banking troubles, an aftermath of the war inflation period.

HOG MARKET LOWER IN TRADE FOR WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last wk.	Prev. wk.	Year ago.
Cattle, calves	39,681	39,687	44,209
Hogs	90,615	80,863	119,690
Sheep	10,585	9,999	9,015
Horses, mules	1,623	1,418	4,283
Totals	142,504	131,967	177,197

Hogs and fat lambs closed sharply lower at the St. Louis National Stock Yards last week, following recent advances in these two classes. Sheep ruled steady to strong for the period and cattle varied from 25c higher to 25c lower. The horse market was steady to strong and mules steady to unevenly lower.

Combined receipts of cattle, hogs, sheep and horses and mules were 142,504 head, a normal supply. Of this total, cattle and calves numbered approximately 40,000 head. The offering included another large representation of common grass stock and also some of the best light steers here this season. These strictly fat yearling steers advanced 25c in an active market. Four cars topped for the week and year at $12.50 per cwt., followed by another consignment at $12.25. A number of other choice consignments cashed at $11 to $11.75, and quite a few sales also registered in the $10 column. All other native steers varied from steady to 25c lower and Western consignments broke 25c to 50c. Stocker and feeder steers were about steady with recent declines. The bulk of native beef steers above the yearling stage cashed at $7.50 to $9.50 per cwt., with plainer offerings around $6 and under. The Western run, embracing Kansas and Oklahoma steers, totaled slightly more than 100 cars. Sales varied from $4.50 to $6.50 for grassers and some fed Kansas scored $7.25, $8.50 and $9. Butcher stock closed steady to 25c lower. Some of the best light steers and heifers, if anything, were strong, tops scoring in the $9 column. The plain grass stuff at $3 to $5.75 largely proved no better than steady, however. All kinds of cows depreciated 25c. Butchers cashed at the close mainly from $3.50 to $4.25, followed by cutter cows at $2.50 to $3 or $3.25, and canners at $2 to $2.50. Bulls finished steady, bolognas varying mainly from $3.25 to $3.75, top $4, canner bulls centering around $2.50 or $2.75, and heavy beef offerings making $4 and $4.25. Stocker and feeder steers brought $4 to $5 for bulk. Common stockers graduated down to $3 or under, while best feeders, on the other hand, topped at $6.65. Veal calves scored $10.50 the fore part of the week, although closing prices were $9.75 and $10. Heavy calves also closed lower at $5 to $5.50 for most, while Southern canner yearlings remained steady at $2.40 to $2.50.

Generous Hog Run.

Receipts the past week in hogs proved generous in volume the total number of offerings aggregating 90,165 head compared with a run of 80,863 for the previous week's total and a large offering of 119,690 for the corresponding week a yearago. Arrivals showed no material variation in quality from other week's recently, a large number of half fat hogs and unfinished butchers being on sale. Following last week's sharp upturn prices reacted and closed for the week at a decline of 85c to $1 on the bulk of sales. The demand last week was limited on all grades, local killers furnishing the chief outlet for arrivals. These buyers proceeded to bear down on prices at every opportunity and lowered the top approximately 90c from the previous six-day period close. Butcher hogs from 190 lbs. and up show the least decline with closing sales on this class from $10.60 to $10.85 largely. Quality was very uneven on all grades this fact being responsible for the wide spread in price. Lighter hogs from 160 to 180 lbs. sold in a spread of $10.25 to $10.60 mainly showing a loss of 95c to $1 from Saturday a week ago. These weights met with much discrimination among all buyers, some kinds almost unsalable. Pigs closed generally 25c to $1 lower, the better weight kinds carrying the big end of the loss. Offerings from 130 to 150 lbs. at $9.25 to $10 with the medium weight kinds from 110 to 130 lbs. selling in a spread of $8.75 to $9.25 showing a decline of 50c to $1 and the light pigs and peewees from 110 lbs. and down looking 25c to 50c lower. Packer sows closed at a loss of 50c to 60c at $9.50 mainly. Stags show no change at $8 to $8.75, according to weight and quality. Quotations on the different classes closed as follows: Best butchers, 190 lbs and over, $10.60 to $10.85, light hogs, 160 to 180 lbs., $10.25 to $10.60; pigs, 130 to 150 lbs., $9.25 to $10, 110 to 130-lb offerings, $8.75 to $9.25, and light pigs and peewees, $8 to $8.75. Packer sows at $9.50 largely and stags at $8 to $8.75.

Lamb Prices Down.

Buyers proceeded to force lamb prices sharply downward the past week. Total number of arrivals during the six-day period was 11,585 head compared with a run of 9999 for the previous week's offering and a run of 9015 for the corresponding period a year ago. Lambs graded about like other week's recently in the matter of quality, a fair representation of all kinds being in evidence. Buyers discriminated against the half fat unfinished southwest lambs and unfinished natives also, prices on these kinds being sharply under good fat lambs. Sales in some cases were little better than for culls. Buyers showed a bearish tendency throughout the week and as a result sales close generally 50c lower, spots showing 75c decline. Best price on lambs for the week was $13.75, paid for a few head during the early sessions of the six-day period. At the week-end choicest lambs were quotable up to $13.25, with the general run of good to choice kinds clearing at $12.25 to $13. Medium to good quality offerings were selling from $11.25 to $12.25 with the plain to medium quality lambs changing hands in a spread of $9.25 to $11.25, depending, of course, on weight and quality. Culls show comparatively little change for the week, closing sales about steady. This class is selling from $8.00 to $8.50 mostly, an occasional sale up to $9 for the best. Skips are quotable at $3 to $5 largely. Receipts in the aged classes continued light and with a good demand here for this class the market ruled steady to strong, some classes of killing ewes looking higher. Buyers paid up to $5.50 for some of the best light fat mutton ewes with the large end of the sales however around $4.50 to $5. Medium and heavy kinds are quotable at $3.50 to $4.50. Choppers and bucks are quotable at $2 to $3 mainly with canners at $1 to $2. Breeding ewes remain unchanged, this class clearing at $6 to $8.50, according to weight and quality.

Horses and Mules.

Receipts of horses and mules for the week aggregated 1500 head, including 150 horses and slightly better than 600 mules on commission. There was a satisfactory clearance and the horse market closed steady to strong, with mules steady to unevenly lower. The modest supply of horses sold freely and a stronger trend applied to some of the medium Southern classes. Outclassed and thin offerings, however, brought cheap prices.

In mules the good qualitied offerings maintained a generally steady level, although there were too many of the cheap, common and thin kinds here for the good of the trade and these often had to go at a discount.

Wall Street News and Comment —SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The stock market was active and strong throughout the half holiday session today. The increase in the betting odds in favor of Coolidge was virtually the sole consideration, it was said.

General Electric was up some 10 points from its mid-week low. The pool operation in Worthington Pump, which carried the stock up so spectacularly a few weeks ago, appeared to have been renewed. Woolworth bounded forward and so did Cast Iron Pipe, with the usual celerity of stocks with a narrow market. It took purchases of only a few hundred shares to put up Air Reduction nearly two points. American Waterworks had to move forward rather violently to conform to the price of the new stock on the curb, the split up being on the basis of 5 to 1.

Regarding the part which the reported liquidation of a certain estate had played in the market of the week, it was reported that this estate contained 100,000 shares of Corn Products and 80,000 shares of Consolidated Gas of N. Y., also quite a bit of New York Central. With the completion of this liquidation all three stocks were strong. Consolidated Gas gained nearly 2 points immediately at the opening. New York Central ran up over 2 points from the recent low.

American Can, the real leader of the market all along, was easily put across 130, where it was up 5 points from Friday morning. Steel common got above 107 on large transactions. Marland showed again the most aggressive support of any member of the oil group.

The rise in Wabash preferred A to 45 as compared with 42⅞ at Friday's close, was accompanied by confident predictions that the long awaited dividend would be voted at the next meeting. The buying of St. Louis and San Francisco, lifting that stock above 32, was again very consistent. Other Southern and Southwestern rails were strong.

The market closed buoyant with prices well up to the best.

The Bond Market.

Higher prices were the rule in the bond market at the close of the week. The feature was the buying of U. S. Government loans and especially the Treasury 4¼s, the long term issue. In the first half hour of business another new high record was established for the last named issue making it the third consecutive day on which this has happened. The other liberty loans were moderately higher with dealings on an unusually large scale for Saturday. On the week all the active U. S. Government issues have made gains.

The high-grade investment rails and industrials participated but to a less degree, in the strength of the libertys. On the other hand the foreign list was iregular. The new German 7s sold around last night's close. French bonds were still heavy although today's information was that the proposed new French loan would be delayed for some time. The strong spot in the foreign group was the Czecho-Slovak 8s, both issues.

Certain rails rallied today in sympathy with their respective stocks. St. Louis San Francisco issues were prominent on the advance. The income 6s and the adjustment 6s were mostly favored but the prior lien mortgage bonds were also in better demand. Other low priced railway issues such as International Great Northern adjustments and Mo. Pac. general 4s rallied from their recent lows. Seaboard Air Lines 6s likewise were higher. Changes in the industrial list were mixed. Pressure apeared to have let up on the Warner sugar issues, both of which have been easier the past six days. On the week the feature in this section of the list has been the strength in the oil bonds, notably the Sinclair 6½s and 7s each of which is up nearly 2 points.

Bearing upon the strength in gilt edge securities it is interesting to note that the weekly statement of the 744 member banks in the Federal Reserve system showed an increase in the holdings of U. S. bonds and U. S. Certificates of indebtedness amounting to $16,000,000 against a decrease in Treasury notes and in other bonds mostly corporate of $9,000,000. This seems to indicate that on balance the banks are still on the buying side of the bond market.

Loans classified as "all other," meaning commercial loans, have increased according to the last report $25,000,000 against a total increase for the year of only $111,000,000. It is quite evident that no ordinary upward turn in business requirements will make much impression upon the total of available investment capital.

In Financial Field

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.

Columbia Gas & Electric has declared an initial quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock, Series A, and the regular quarterly common dividend of 65 cents. Gross revenues for the nine months of 1924 were $19,663,066, a gain of more than $4,000,000 over the same period of 1923. DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 1 ONE of the strangest ironies, and one of most interesting facts, about Senator R ert M. One may sit, for example, in the priv r in which he is making the present c aign tour, and read a newspaper report o eech in which somebody has denounced a visionary, half-baked, impetuous radica not an anarchist—hungry to begin the truction of the Government. Then a m er of his party, perhaps one of his sons, merge from the Senator's compartm ushed with exasperation, and one will omething like this:

"It's no use! He won't do a dam ing! I've been trying for a month to m to issue a statement on a certain t, and I might as well try to move k of Gibraltar. He says he's not a ly sure I have my facts right. By I succeed in convincing him, it'll be to do any good."

Senator La Follette {THE BELLIGERENT G. O. P. INSURGENT} at Close Range

Independent Candidate Compresses His Speeches Into an Interview for the Post-Dispatch

He Tells What the Government Really Is, What It Should Be And How He Would Change It

In Private an Old-Fashioned Man, in the Public Arena a Gladiator—Became Strong Friend of President McKinley in Early Days in Congress—Only After Election as Governor of Wisconsin Did He Take Up an Independent Course.

Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, Traveling With Senator La Follette.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 18.

ONE of the strangest ironies, and one of the most interesting facts, about Senator Robert M. La Follette, is the fact that while st people outside his personal circle regard as decidedly radical, his near associates most unanimously pronounce him thorough—sometimes exasperatingly—conservative. though his critics denounce his views as full novel and destructive ideas, his intimates tell you there is no man in the world whom it is so difficult to "sell" a new

One may sit, for example, in the private r in which he is making the present campaign tour, and read a newspaper report of a ech in which somebody has denounced him a visionary, half-baked, impetuous radical—f not an anarchist—hungry to begin the destruction of the Government. Then a member of his party, perhaps one of his sons, will emerge from the Senator's compartment, flushed with exasperation, and one will hear something like this:

"It's no use! He won't do a damned ng! I've been trying for a month to get to issue a statement on a certain subt, and I might as well try to move the k of Gibraltar. He says he's not absoly sure I have my facts right. By the I succeed in convincing him, it'll be too to do any good."

The Lion and His Cubs

The personal side of La Follette is second interest only to his unique character, and extremely engaging aspect of it is manit on this trip. Two of his companions and closest companions are his son, Robert Philip.

Phil, 27 years old, is the fiery orator who recedes the Senator to the meetings, and lds the crowd until his father arrives. And holds them. The term philippic loses none its meaning in his hands. Bob, 30, is the rene but watchful attendant who acts as retary, bodyguard, buffer, and general astant to, and protector of, the Senator, reening him against the handshakers, forcing him to conserve his strength, helping him repare his speeches, pulling at his coattails en he strays too far from his manuscript. Without Bob, he undoubtedly would wear mself completely out in a week. Left to own impulses he would talk to every railroad switchman who crossed the yards to see m, would address every overflow meeting at assembled, and would shake hands with ery man, woman and child who craved the vor.

Watching these three as they make their way across the country, fighting their lone hand battle, asking no quarter and showing ne, one thinks of an old battle-scarred lion d his two cubs battling their way across e desert. The younger and fiercer ranges ead, tackling every enemy that appears, om the size of Gen. Dawes down. The grim e follows, delivering the really crushing ows, and at his heels, guarding him vigilantly against flank attack, is the other offspring.

Here, if not before, the analogy fails. Any naturalist probably can point out that lions not hunt with their cubs. And if they d, it is hardly likely that any tender bond affection would exist between them. In ublic, Senator La Follette presents a rather rbidding figure. His great head, with its posing mane, the fierce eyes, the mouth at never compromises, the chin that never treats, comprise a picture that is strikingly nine. The illusion of the lion will persist il he leaves the speaker's stand, or the ate chamber.

n his home, among family and friends; at office, with the curious, contrasting ndreds who seek him—and they range llege economists wanting to talk rail to ex-soldiers wanting higher disility ratings—a gentler man, or one with more apparent humility, is hard to picture. And the utter devotion of his sons to him, and his pride and affection for them, are things beautiful enough to touch the hearts, if not the pencils, of hard-boiled correspondents for conservative newspapers.

A Political Gladiator

If ground for criticism of his temperament were sought, it probably could most easily be found in a certain rigidity of attitude. Once he has made up his mind that a certain thing is wrong, it is very difficult for him to see any good in it at all. It could hardly be called narrowness, and certainly not egotism. It is rather that he is not a generous enemy. His is the feeling of a man who has been fighting all his life against oppression, and has no strength to waste in searching for the oppressor's virtues.

Likely he would say: "The Steel Trust, the Oil Trust and J. P. Morgan have eloquent lawyers to present their case; I have enough to do to present the case of the people against them."

The fact is, probably, that his very bellicosity tends to impair his effectiveness.

He is essentially a fighter. Grant his vast store of information, his ceaseless study, or even the profundity of his thought, but you will come finally back to the conclusion that this man is, essentially, a gladiator. Not of the Borah type, brilliant and impersonal; not the Walsh type, punctilious and polite; nor of the type of his running mate, Wheeler, cowboyishly good humored and deadly. Rather of the type that proposes to fight it out along this line if it takes all summer, and continue the battle on the ice.

He will not compromise. He will reason; he will argue patiently; he will spend the night with you if necessary. He will try powerfully, persuasively, to convert you to his view. He will not compromise. "I will not budge nor turn aside from this course by the breadth of a hair," is one of his favorite phrases. Those who have tested his resolution will testify that it is not an empty one.

No Haze Surrounds His Position

The platform upon which he now appears as a candidate for President, as the climax of a public life extending over 40 years, is fairly simple. Its written form occupies less than half the length of either of the old party platforms. Irrespective of the claims of friends and the alarums of opponents, a clear understanding of exactly what he does stand for, is what the average voter doubtless wants. It was, therefore, deemed exigent at this time to have him re-state, in his own language, what he believes, and what he proposes to do, about the questions of the day.

He was asked, first, what he believes the Government to be now; second, what he believes it should be, and third, how he proposes to change it from what it is to what he thinks it ought to be.

To such questions Senator La Follette always replies seriously and earnestly. Once he agrees to be interviewed, he never fails to satisfy the interviewer. He does not evade nor remain silent. If he has not fully made up his mind about a question, he says so. He is a satisfying man of whom to ask questions.

"What is the Government now?"

"I believe," he said, "just as positively as a man can believe anything which he has seen with his own eyes, that the Government today is chiefly an instrument through which two great banking groups, Morgan & Co. and the Standard Oil Co., maintain their grip upon the economic life of the United States, and through which they are endeavoring to extend that control to the rest of the world.

"As things stand today, this country is not ruled by the people, it is ruled by a system of organized wealth. The aim of the System is economic power, but in order to obtain and hold that economic power, it had to seize the Government. That is what it did."

SENATOR ROBERT MARION LA FOLLETTE.
This excellent photograph of the Wisconsin Senator was made only a month ago.

"How did it accomplish that?"

"By getting control of the country's natural resources, and by capturing the leadership of the Democratic and Republican parties.

Tariff the Root of Privilege

"It began after the Civil War," he explained. "It began timidly. It asked only for a protective tariff which would enable our factories to compete with those of other countries. It was begun by the iron and steel mills of Pennsylvania and the textile mills of New England, when they prevailed upon the Government to confer this special privilege upon them.

"Then came the building of the transcontinental railroads. They demanded rights of way and land grants, and they got them, until land from the public domain, amounting in area to five times the size of the State of Illinois had been given away in the West.

"The trust formation period came next. The trusts were born out of special favors of two kinds, tariff on one hand, and railroad favoritism on the other. Monopoly is the child of special privilege. The bankers obtained control of most of these industries. Today they have under their dominion, 250,000 miles of railroads, and most of the coal, iron and oil of the nation. They own the great insurance companies. one great trust after another fell into their hands."

The Senator paused, and shook his head tragically.

"They began to see that they could not maintain this great power unless they controlled the Government," he resumed. "Here and there brave and farsighted men who perceived what was going on, began to demand Government regulation and legislation which would restore some measure of freedom and fair competition in industry. People were aroused when they saw these great monopolies swallowing or ruining every small competitor who stood in their way.

Economic Control of Politics

"John Sherman, the greatest statesman of his time, said: 'It is a kingly prerogative, inconsistent with our form of government. If anything is wrong, this is wrong. If we will not endure a king with political power, we should not endure a king over the production, transportation and sale of any of the necessities of life. If we would not submit to an emperor, we should not submit to an autocrat of trade.' He drew the Sherman antitrust act, and it was passed in 1890, placing in the hands of the executive arm of the Government the most effective weapon which the ingenuity of man could devise against the power of monopoly.

"It aroused the kings of finance to the necessity of controlling the Government itself. They realized that if this law was enforced, their power would be broken. They saw, particularly, the necessity of controlling the Federal courts and the Department of Justice, and that necessitated the election to the presidency of men who were friendly to their interests, because Federal Judges and Attorney-Generals are appointed by the President.

"In order to do that it was necessary to capture control of both the old parties—it would not be safe to back one side and take a chance on the other side winning an election.

"The situation presented an irresistible temptation both to the bankers and to the political leaders. One wanted Government favors, the other wanted campaign contributions. One could furnish the other with the means of carrying on campaigns; the other, when elected, could make repayment in special privileges. Thus was an unholy alliance completed at the expense of the people. Mark Hanna was one of the first political leaders to see the advantages of such a bargain. Others in both parties were quick to imitate him, and private monopoly found itself financing both parties, and winning regardless of how the election went.

"The Sherman Act was never enforced. The Federal courts were packed with corporation lawyers, who instead of protecting the public, used their power to crush organized labor and other foes of monopoly. Wealth was in the saddle.

"Occasional outbreaks occurred, it is true. The people of Wisconsin revolted, and in so far as was possible through the election of honest State officials and the enactment and enforcement of progressive State laws, they freed themselves. But the enemy reigned at Washington. It was called 'invisible government.'

"The election of Woodrow Wilson offered a ray of hope. Perceiving the situation as it was, he had declared: 'The trusts are our masters now. We have come to be one of the worst ruled, one of the most completely controlled and dominated governments in the world—no longer a Government by conviction and the vote of the majority, but a government by the opinion and duress of a small group of dominant men. The Government of the United States is a foster child of the special interest.'

"During the first Wilson administration quite a number of progressive laws were enacted. But a President is surrounded by many influences. A power which control the economic life of a nation has many and devious means of getting what it wants. The war came, and the bankers wagered their millions on the success of the Allies. They could not afford to lose, and they began a vast propaganda to force this country into the war on the side of the Allies. Wilson succumbed.

"The Civil War had furnished these interests with the opportunity to begin their campaign to control the Government; the World War gave them opportunity to make that control complete. That is invariably the effect of war. By its very nature it favors the interests that control the credit. The industry and the natural resources of a nation.

"Privilege Cracks the Whip"

"Invisible government threw off its mask. Today it swaggers in the White House, struts through the Departments, and cracks its whip in the halls of Congress. It is arrogant and cynical. It openly sets about to crush those who oppose it.

"And now," he continued, "it confronts us with a new danger. War gave it control of the world's credit. Since the war, eight billion dollars has been invested in foreign lands. Monopoly relies upon the American army and navy to protect those investments. It showed its hand when it made the Government send marines to Haiti and Santo Domingo to collect its debts. If any man doubts that, let him ask the State Department what our marines are doing there. Doubtless he will be told they are there to protect American lives and property. Ask what lives and what property are meant, and you will find that the property is that of American monopolists, and the lives are those of its agents, sent there to exploit the people of those countries. The next logical move will be to send the navy to Asia, Africa and Europe to protect the billions invested there. I say, if they want to put their money in such precarious investments, depending for profits upon the exploitation of other peoples, then when trouble comes let them go and defend their investments!"

It was a sweeping case which the Senator had made out. Did he really feel that Big Business dominated every activity of the Government?

"Oh, well," he replied with a gesture of admission, "the Government naturally does a lot of things in which wealth does not concern itself. Government activities are many and various. But this is the point I make: Whenever a crisis arises, whenever control of the country's economic life becomes a real issue, wealth knows it can depend upon the Government. We had an example of that in the shopmen's strike, and in the continuous use of the Federal courts as weapons with which to crush labor. We have a constant example of it in the Government's failure to even attempt to enforce the Sherman act. We have a tremendous example of it in rates which the railroads are permitted to charge, based upon an inflated valuation of their property. We had a striking example of it in the repeal of the tax on excess profits, in the passage of the Esch-Cummins act, in the reduction of surtaxes on large incomes. And don't forget the tragic examples of it in the ruthless suppression of free speech and free press during the war.

"The people are permitted to have their way in little things, but when the supremacy of Big Business is really challenged, it shows its hand quickly, and you find the Government obediently toeing the mark."

Views of Roosevelt and Wilson on La Follette

TOWARD the close of their lives, both Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson regarded La Follette as a dangerous and destructive influence, and La Follette was bitter against them. Earlier, however, each had paid striking tributes to him. Soon after La Follette's election to the Senate, Roosevelt wrote:

"Thanks to the movement for genuinely democratic government which Senator La Follette led to overwhelming victory in Wisconsin, that State has become literally a laboratory for wise experimental legislation, aiming to secure the social and political betterment of the people as a whole."

Even more eloquent was Wilson's encomium. He wrote:

"I have sometimes thought of Senator La Follette climbing the mountain of privilege, taunted, laughed at, called back, going steadfastly on, and not allowing himself to be deflected for a single moment for fear he also would harken and lose all his power to serve the great interests to which he had devoted himself. I love these lonely figures climbing this mountain of privilege. I am sorry for my own part that I did not come in when they were fewer."

Points Out Examples

The writer wanted an example of special privilege.

"The railroads constitute perhaps the best example," was the reply. "Some of them were practically built by the people, through grants of land. Then the larger were permitted to absorb or destroy competition. The bankers got control, looted them until they were almost wrecked, and then the people were forced to pay the bill. Today, under the Esch-Cummins law, they are earning dividends on $7,000,000,000 of capital which doesn't exist, and the Government guarantees that rates shall be fixed to return 5½ per cent on this false valuation!

"That's one example of special privilege. Another is the tariff, which excludes foreign competition, and gives our trusts a monopoly of the whole market.

"The Standard Oil Co. is a shining illustration of special privilege. Its wealth was based originally upon the seizure of natural resources. The company grew by being permitted to ruin or absorb its competitors, and through rebates from the railroads. Special privilege acts both positively and negatively. Positively, through the bestowal of special favors; negatively, through failure to enforce the laws and regulations."

Wants Old-Fashioned Liberty

If this was the Government now, as the Senator saw it, what did he think it ought to be?

"It should be what its founders intended it to be," he said. "It was founded upon the theory that all governments should derive their powers from the consent of the governed, and that all governments should be administered for the benefit of all the people. These benefits should include, first, liberty. Liberty of speech, thought and assemblage were particularly emphasized. Liberty to change the form of government was certainly intended. The Government should maintain equality of economic opportunity, and equality before the law. No group of citizens should be favored over another group. It should protect the citizens from aggression from without, and from oppression from inside.

"Every intelligent person knows perfectly well that it has failed in almost every one of those duties. In the first place, it does not derive its powers from the consent of the people, but from the forces who control elections. In the second place, as Wilson said, it is administered, not for the benefit of the whole people, but chiefly for the benefit of a small group. Liberty of speech and opinion have almost disappeared. To advocate any

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

OUR ancestors in this country sought to establish and maintain the supreme governmental power where it inherently exists—in the people. To do so, they provided for three co-ordinate branches of government—legislative, judicial and executive. They intended that the power of each of the three should be subordinate to the will of the supreme governing power—the people. It was intended that the power of each official should be kept within constitutional limitations. To give effect to those intentions, the power was reserved to the people to remove from office, every two years, representatives who failed to support the Constitution.

An act, in violation of a constitutional limitation, by an official of any one of the three branches of such a government is traitorous, and it has always been the duty of the House of Representatives to impeach any official, who cannot be removed from office by the votes of the people, in each case where such official has committed such traitorous act. The first act of any Federal Judge, dispensing favors, instead of laws, should have been closely followed by an impeachment of such Judge. But representatives of the people have failed to thus support the Constitution, and, as a result, instead of remaining co-ordinate, two branches of the Government have become subordinate to the judicial branch. By excluding the two branches of Government, and the people, from the final interpretation of the meaning of the Constitution, it became subordinate to the will of nine men. Thus aided by traitorous representatives, they have succeeded in robbing the people of their government by the people. It thus became a judicial despotism.

The dupes of King John of England, and those who hoped to receive favors through him, supported his despotism and believed, or pretended to believe, that it was law. A Moses is trying to deliver the people from the bondage of judicial despotism in this nation by having restored to them their constitutional government, subordinate to the will of the people only. Ask the next person, who tells you that he will vote against La Follette, if he wants to help nine men retain their despotic power like King John was aided in 1215.

Congressman Hawes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THIS is to voice the hope that the groups for the vindication of whose civil and religious rights Harry B. Hawes has fought so chivalrously these several years will set their enemies a good example of Americanism on Nov. 4. It would be regrettable if any of them should permit their religion to be exploited by any one to his detriment, and it would be adopting on their part the sort of tactics which they condemned and he combated when they were the sufferers.

Mr. Hawes is conspicuous in the House of Representatives for his courage, honesty and ability. He has been a great asset to St. Louis. His devotion to the interests of the city he in part represents in Congress is a byword. The Washington correspondents of the country's biggest newspapers—irrespective of their political attachments—are particularly fond of him. He is the biggest and best advertisement St. Louis has in the national capital. As St. Louis needs advertising it needs Hawes!

Get Your Slogan Right.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I REGRET very much to see those eleven "disabled veterans" make use of that old toast of the times of our war with Spain, "Our Country—right or wrong, our Country."

I am proud of our country, chiefly because she has ever been in the right, or at least as near right as so heterogeneous a population as this country can be expected to be. There is no other country that has a better record for fair play to fellow countries than this country, and our motives for waging the war in which the toast in question originated, might well be called "sublime," namely, in behalf of an oppressed nation, with no view to any gain to ourselves.

"My Country—may she ever be in the right—but, right or wrong, my Country" goes with me, to the fullest extent of my sympathies, provided the "right or wrong" is cut out and in its place be put "if in the right, I fight; but if in the wrong, I fight to make her right."

Neither the toast nor the slogan was the voice of the whole country, and this noble country of ours would be divided very much indeed if there should, by any unthinkable circumstances, be any talk of war for a wrongful cause.

SCHANNI.

OUR 18TH CENTURY LA FOLLETTE.

The Shenandoah's successful transcontinental flight, followed by the far more dramatic and epochal transatlantic voyage of the ZR-3, are significant and prophetic events. They herald a new day, a new order, a new world. They challenge the imagination of industrial captains, since transportation and communication are the talismans of business. They challenge the vision of statesmen, because governments that fail to keep abreast of the times perish as inevitably as does the commercial enterprise that fails to adapt itself to new conditions.

This is not a theme for mere academic speculation. It is a pertinent, practical subject. It is an issue of the present campaign.

We have two candidates for President to whom the portent of these aerial triumphs means nothing. In the case of Mr. Coolidge that is not surprising. He and his party have become hopeless Bourbons in the sense that they neither learn nor forget. Mr. La Follette's attitude is hard to account for. The Wisconsin Senator is a professional progressive and sincerely and effectually so in many respects. In his own State his career is a body of valuable accomplishments, but the things he did or got done in Wisconsin were not brought about by harking back to the wisdom of the past. His record there is the story of governmental pioneering. And for many of our national ills he proposes new, untried remedies which, whatever our opinion of them, stamp La Follette as a daring political explorer.

But in respect to foreign relations—and it is by their foreign policies that the destiny of nations is to be determined—La Follette thinks and talks like a throw-back. His speech in St. Louis the other night was a pledge of changeless faith to the wisdom of the eighteenth century. As the Post-Dispatch said, it was, to be sure, a mere vote-catching speech. It was a flagrant appeal to the passions and prejudices engendered by the war. But if he means what he said, if he insists that the words of Jefferson and Washington as regards our attitude towards the rest of the world must literally be accepted today, then Europe is as far from the United States as it was two centuries ago. The sail has not yielded to the steamer. No cable has been laid. The radio does not exist. The kinetic airplane and the majestic dirigible have not made Boston and Berlin next-door neighbors nor brought the antipodal East and West into cheek-by-jowl fellowship.

As it was in the beginning, so it is now and ever shall be, Mr. La Follette asserts. Let Europe war as she will, we shall have none of it. We shall be absolutely neutral. It is none of our affair how European peoples murder one another. We shall watch the butchery uninterested and unmoved, so long as we can sell them the food they need to carry on the slaughter. Our only condition is that they must not interfere with our trade.

Such a philosophy is not only utterly heartless, but it is absurdly impossible. The twentieth century has repealed that eighteenth-century declaration of intention. Remoteness has vanished. Inter-dependence is not a theory but a condition. Europe is an integral factor in our economic equation. Neutrality is ended. In the event of another European war or war of comparable magnitude we shall not again make even the pretense of neutrality, though La Follette himself were in the White House.

Vital as Europe is to the United States today our interest in the peace and security of European peoples is growing steadily and swiftly. For example, American citizens have just purchased German bonds in the amount of $110,000,000 to enable Germany to establish a sound currency system. That is only the start. An item of current news reported in a few lines on the market page tells of an acceptance credit of $2,500,000 granted by an American banking group to the Ruhr Coal Syndicate to finance the exportation of coal. What American investments in Germany will total in 10 years cannot be computed, but it will be tremendous. And our European investment will not be confined to Germany. France, Italy, Russia will presently be financed by American capital. Meantime there is the war debt of billions. As a cold business proposition the United States cannot afford to let any of those countries be impoverished by another war.

The foreign policy of La Follette is as worthless as a medieval superstition. It is an eighteenth-century dream which time and progress have buried.

The insurrection in the Republican party this year may be only a mild breeze compared to what might follow four more years of Coolidge.

THE DIGEST'S STUFFED BALLOT BOX.

With ballots in from all the states of the Union, the Literary Digest straw poll shows an easy majority for Coolidge over his two opponents combined.

It also shows, with the aid of a little figuring, that its voters, in the landslide year of 1920, were in the proportion of 24.4 for Harding to 10 for Cox, whereas Harding's actual advantage over Cox was in the proportion of only 17.6 to 10. The inescapable conclusion is either that there has been wholesale repeating by Republican postmasters and others or that Republicans have been favored in the passing of the ballots by about seven out of every 34 votes. This fact, on the Digest's own figures, utterly discredits the poll as an accurate index of sentiment.

But consideration of the popular vote alone is misleading, particularly when the race is three-cornered and pluralities rather than majorities will swing the deciding electoral vote. Davis has the solid South and is assured the border states. The election, therefore, will hinge on a few pivotal states such as New York and Indiana.

New York went for Harding by about 23.8 to 10. But Digest ballots were distributed to 33 Harding men to every 10 Cox men. Digest voters in Indiana were in the proportion of 25.2 to 10 in 1920, whereas the State went for Harding by only 13.6 to 10.

Whatever the cause of the stuffing of the Digest ballot box, the stuffing is there, as proven in the figures. The desired effect is to discourage all opposition to Coolidge with false figures. It is good Republican propaganda. But, like the Digest's propaganda poll on the Mellon plan, giving supporters of any other tax plan no opportunity to express their position, it may not work.

GETTING THE GUN-TOTERS.

It is reassuring to observe that a start has been made by the police toward the cleaning up of gun-toters.

The start was made when a policeman caught a desperate citizen and his dangerous 4-year-old daughter walking along the street in broad daylight, the desperate citizen holding one hand of his daughter, in whose other hand was displayed a deadly weapon, commonly called a revolver, or which would have been deadly if it had been loaded. That was too much. The clean-up started right there.

There was an explanation, to the effect that the desperate citizen had bought the weapon for the protection of his home and was permitting his dangerous little daughter to carry it home. But these desperate and dangerous characters always have explanations. And it didn't go with the policeman who had caught them red-handed.

Gunmen and criminals of high and low degree who have been carrying loaded and concealed weapons without hindrance will do well to take warning. After rounding up the babies with unloaded revolvers, the police, like as not, will go a step farther and arrest the gentlemen of leisure who carry potential death under their coattails and in various other easily accessible locations about their persons. In the good work that has been done there is encouragement to hope for greater accomplishments to come.

PIKER AND PRINCE.

Andrew Mellon has been called the greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Alexander Hamilton. The comparison is impertinently unjust—to Mr. Mellon.

Consider the Aluminum Company of America, which is only one of the Mellon enterprises. How that company increased its capital stock from $30,000,000 in 1921 to $110,000,000 in 1923 and earned a 40 per cent dividend, or $44,000,000 on the latter capitalization has already been remarked. But that is not all. It seems that this company, at the end of the war, put in a claim for an income tax readjustment, on the ground that the sudden oversupply of aluminum entitled it to a tax concession. The claim was allowed last year, and it is only the simple truth to say that the Government acted handsomely in the matter by granting a tax reduction of $16,000,000. What with this reduction plus its earnings under the bounteous Fordney-McCumber tariff, this one Mellon company cleaned up $60,000,000 in 1923.

Now, for all his skill in governmental finance, Alexander Hamilton, as gossipy history tells us, could not pay his tailor's bill. But Andrew Mellon could pay the tailor bills of all the Beau Brummels that have graced the human comedy and do it without denting his roll. Therefore, there is no comparison between them. They are not in the same class. Alexander was a piker. Andy is the Prince Plutoc.

If I were King, or even Mayor of St. Louis, I would quickly introduce a very pressing necessity for the use and accommodation of some of the dissatisfied citizens there. Since the adoption of the eighteenth amendment, murder has become a popular pastime with no come-back; but even at that the quiet citizens living in a fairly quiet neighborhood are too much disturbed with the frequent pistol shots, the screams of the victims and the very undesirable notoriety of a once peaceful habitat. I would suggest that the city erect a concrete building, not a large one, but one having five or six rooms, all on the first floor; in each room there should be a table, a pitcher of water, a couple of magazines, etc. This building should be built adjoining the morgue. Now when a man decides to kill his wife he should take her out there and dispose of her; there would be no noise, no inquest; their former neighbors would not be shocked by the sound of screams, the pistol shots, nor the clatter of the police wagons. Popular government is a great blessing; the corpse could be taken into the morgue, the inquest held instead of the murderer; there would be no scandal and no noise; the name of the murderer should be ascertained and entered on a book kept for that purpose; and if anything should be done about it none of the victims' friends would have to testify; the usual acquittal would immediately follow and taxes would be much reduced.

There is a movement afoot to establish a Golden Rule Day on which everybody will practice the Golden Rule. Since this will leave 364 days in which to prosecute the quest for gold, we can't see how there could be much objection to it.

In a motley group of bootleggers from the Oklahoma mountains, haled before Judge Williams in Federal Court at Muskogee last week, was a tottering old man.

"Who arrested that old man?" exclaimed Judge Williams, wrathy with judicial indignation.

"I did," faltered a deputy sheriff.

"That's the way of it," thundered the Judge, pounding on the bench. "I want this thing stopped—this thing of taking up the time of this court with these old men, who ought to be in the poorhouse.

"If some of these so-called Christians who have set out to run this country," continued the Judge, waxing warm to the subject, "would do something for these poor old folks they would be practicing real Christian charity. They have been boasting since the adoption of the eighteenth amendment that the prohibition law has emptied the poorhouses. That is quite true—it has emptied the poorhouses into the jails. Moonshiners everywhere are using these old folks to peddle whisky. Don't bring these old folks to me any more. I won't put them in jail."

Turning to the old man Judge Williams, softening his voice, said:

"Old man, if I let you off will you go to the poorhouse, where you can rest and spend the remainder of your days in peace?"

The poor old man reflected a moment.

"Judge, I don't want to go to the poorhouse," he protested, meekly.

"I want to go back to the hills to—"

Bang! went Judge Williams' fist on the bench.

"So you want to go back to bootlegging, do you?" bellowed the Judge. "You old sinner, I'll convert you to the right way of thinking."

Turning to the clerk Judge Williams exclaimed, "Give him 90 days in jail. I've got a soft heart, but there's steel in it. And add a fine of $50. Take him out of my sight and call the next case." R.

ILLUSIONS.

I saw a patch of light
Upon the floor,
And it was blue.
I looked again,
And it was not blue.
A face appeared upon the wall,
I looked again,
No face was there.
In the semidarkness
I saw a bear.
Examination showed
It was a stump.
In the forest solitude
I heard
The rustle of a skirt.
A snake slid by
Among the fallen leaves.
From the depths of night
Came the awful wail
Of human misery.
It came again—
It was the wind.
I had a friend
And he was false.
And I?
I am the unit
In the countless throng.
Wherever ships the waters cleave,
Or traffic hums,
Or forests wave,
Or deserts sleep,
I still pursue
My faltering way.

Senator La Follette at Close Range

"One of the first things I would do," he "would be to call every United States rict Attorney into the East Room of the House and tell them that any one of who failed to start civil and criminal under the Sherman act within their dis- would be replaced by somebody who ld. I would tell them that every one of who permitted his office to be used as a breaking agency would be removed as as I heard of it.

"I would appoint a Cabinet selected with- regard for political connections or obliga- , composed of trained men who would their business, and who would be red to enforce the laws. I sincerely be- that the enforcement of the laws now the statute books would remove the worst the evils from which the people now suf- . The machinery of the Government is in main all right; it is the men who are in of it who are wrong.

"I would, however, urge upon Congress the ion or repeal of those two great charters special privilege, the Fordney-McCumber law and the Esch-Cummins act. Also, would urge the enactment of a real sol- bonus, to be paid out of taxes on lth, and I would advocate the passage of Howell-Barkley railroad bill, providing the adjustment of controversies between railroads and their employes. I would vocate a revision upward of the salaries of stal employes and of the pensions of Civil Spanish War veterans, both passed by the st Congress and vetoed by President Coolidge.

Toward Economic Reconstruction

"All this is emergency legislation. As a permanent constructive program for the fu- , I would call in the best experts in the world, and ask them to work out plans for following: Reconstruction of the Federal Reserve and Farm Loan systems, public own- ship of railroads, development of the na- l water-power sites in order to give the le power at cost, development of co-oper- ive marketing, and additional regulation of ts and combinations.

"I have outlined the foreign policy I would sue in several recent speeches. Abolish llar diplomacy,' eliminate all profits from r, conclude treaties with all nations pro- ding for disarmament, the abolition of con- ription and the freeing of subject peoples. nd secret diplomacy in our own State De- rtment.

"There," he concluded, "is my program. ho can find objection to it? Doesn't the ountry want the laws enforced? Doesn't it ant honest men in the Cabinet? Doesn't want peace, open diplomacy, justice to Gov- nment employes, the abolition of special fa- s to the rich, equal treatment to all? That all I want."

Court Proposal Is Not New

It was observed that he had not touched on proposal to limit the power of the Su- eme Court to declare acts of Congress un- onstitutional. This proposal has been at- cked, and particularly from Republican ources, as an attempt to destroy the Consti- tion.

The Senator laughed. "As you know," he plied, "the Constitution says nothing what- er about it. I wonder if some of my oppo- nts never read the Constitution, or whether they are simply trying to mislead people. The right of the Supreme Court to nullify gislation was first asserted by Chief Justice John Marshall, in 1803. It is a doctrine, and othing else. It was bitterly attacked by any statesmen, including Andrew Jackson.

"There is not another large nation in the world where the courts are permitted to nul- ly legislation. In Great Britain, 'The last of Parliament is the law of the land.' No- body questions it. Even the Conservatives ased to do so long ago. Has it destroyed e liberties of the people there? Nonsense! The people who are so anxious to have the preme Court remain the final arbiters of aw are people who know that it is easier to ntrol the selection of Judges than it is to ntrol the election of men to Congress. The people have a way of getting rid of unfaithful presentatives; a corporation lawyer on the preme Court bench is there for life. He swers to nobody for his actions.

"All the Progressives propose, in this con- ction, is to submit to the Legislatures of states, after securing a two-thirds ma- rity in both houses of Congress, an amend- to the Constitution providing that leg- can be made effective by repassing the Supreme Court's veto, just as it an be made effective by repassing it over the President's veto. The amendment would also provide for the popular election of all Federal Judges, including those of the Supreme Court, for terms not exceeding 10 years. In order to become effective, the amendment would have to be ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the states."

Again the Senator smiled. "You know," he said, "my opponents seem to have overlooked the fact that by putting me in the White House they would deprive me of the power to propose such an amendment. Only a member of Congress can offer it. I think, however, that somebody could be found to offer it, and certainly I would give it all the moral support I possessed."

No Hasty Action on Railroads

How did he propose to go about establishing Government ownership of railroads?

"It's a big question, and a man would be a fool to have a closed mind about it," he replied forcefully. "I do know this much, however: I would call in the foremost transportation experts in the country and ask them to work out a plan under which Government ownership could be put in effect without bureaucratic control, and without putting the roads into politics. We followed that method in revising the State code of Wisconsin when I was Governor. Several instructors from the department of economics at the State University were asked to assist other State officials and myself in drafting the bills.

"When the drafts were complete, we printed them on large paper with wide margins and mailed them to the foremost technical experts in the country, asking them to note their criticisms and suggestions on the margin. When we got the copies back we redrafted the bills and then laid them before the Legislature, which made such amendments as it saw fit. As finally passed, our regulatory laws were acknowledged to be the best ever passed anywhere, and for years have been accepted as models by some other states, and even by foreign countries. I would follow the same method in Washington."

His Faith in the Republic

After another pause, the Senator said: "In general, I believe the machinery of this Republic is the best ever devised by man.

"The group of men who founded this Government were unique. That group has had no equal in history. In foresight, practical wisdom and in ideals of justice and equality, they were superior to any group that ever devised a form of government. It seems almost miraculous that it has met the incredible changes which have occurred. If we are to progress, however, we must from time to time introduce new ideas in government to meet new conditions. The wonder is not that changes are needed, but that so few are needed."

The last statement emphasized an important side of Senator La Follette's character, of which most people seem curiously unaware. It is utterly impossible to have any sort of extended contact with him and not reach the conclusion that fundamentally, and at heart, he is an old-fashioned man. Among his associates, the writer does not know of a single one who does not take his conservatism, his old-fashionedness, as a matter of course. He is old-fashioned in his personal habits and preferences, in his manner of speech, and in his mental attitude.

Any careful examination of the foregoing interview will deepen the impression that he is [illegible]-fashioned in his economic views. What [illegible] chiefly desires to bring about is a return of the days of free competition in trade, such as existed at the time of the Civil War. He is fighting for the corner grocery store, for the independent dealer in farm implements, for the country banker.

At Odds With Socialism

There are men of more extreme views who regard La Follette's crusade against the trusts as foolish and behind the times. The late Charles P. Steinmetz, the electrical wizard, who was a Socialist, declared that the Progressives, of La Follette's type, were the worst reactionaries in the country. The development of monopoly was a logical and inevitable phase of economic evolution, he declared. The wise and natural course was to let it continue to develop, until all the basic industries had become concentrated in single monopolies, whereupon the Government would take them over and run them for the benefit of the people as a whole.

Although supporting him in this campaign, the Socialists have gagged at his economic program. They were unable to swallow it. It is too completely at odds with their own views. They have made it clear that they were supporting him in spite of it, supporting him because they believe he stands for free speech, free press and free assemblage, because they believe he would enforce the laws against the rich as well as the poor, because they think his sympathies are naturally with the working people, and finally, because they have no doubts of his personal honesty or courage. But not because they agree with him that the free competition of 1860 can, or should be, restored. It might be added that they have been accorded very little recognition in the management of this campaign.

La Follette's rebellion is comparatively recent. Few people remember, if they ever knew, that he was a close friend and an admirer of President William McKinley, and that they worked together on the Ways and Means Committee when they were members of the House of Representatives. He is said to be the only man in Washington who addresses Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, as "Cabot." He undoubtedly regarded the late Senator Boies Penrose as the worst influence in public life, and more than once said so. Nevertheless, Penrose, in his big, clumsy, rough way, loved La Follette almost pathetically, and frequently told newspaper men that, "Bob is the only one of these so-called progressives who is sincere." Penrose is credited with having put his foot down on the move to expel La Follette from the Senate during the war.

La Follette's public career began when he was 25 years old. He is of the Huguenot stock. He decided to run for the office of Prosecuting Attorney of Dane County, Wis., The local "boss" told him he couldn't have it. That determined him. He made a farm-to-farm canvass and was elected.

Later he went to Congress, serving three terms before he encountered defeat. It was during this service that he and McKinley became warm friends, and the man who was later to become President had La Follette put on the powerful Ways and Means Committee. He was "regular" then.

Convinced, as he says, that the old Republican machine in Wisconsin must be broken, La Follette became a candidate for Governor. In three campaigns he was beaten for the nomination, and each time there were grave evidences of corruption being used against him. The fourth time, however, he won. Then began a process which eventually amounted virtually to rewriting the State code of Wisconsin. Regulation of corporations was one of the outstanding aspects of this legislation. It is interesting to note, here, that while La Follette is attacked on many grounds, few have ever criticised the constructive work which he did in his own State when he was in absolute control.

Single Handed Fighter in Senate

He went to the Senate in 1905, virtually a lone figure there. He got a cold reception from the party leaders, who knew what he had done to the regular organization in Wisconsin. His insurgency had begun in his campaigns for the governorship, and it has continued through 20 years of service in the Senate.

He fought against the seating of William Lorimer. He joined in the attack which drove Secretary of the Interior Ballinger from office, and wrecked the Taft administration. He clamored persistently for an impartial and expert valuation of the railroads, as a rate-making basis. He was a thorn in the flesh of the Old Guard.

In 1912, he became a candidate for the Republican nomination for President. Facts contained in his autobiography seem to prove, almost conclusively, that before he entered this campaign he had virtual assurance from Roosevelt that the latter would stay out of the race. But history attests that T. R. did not stay out, and when he did come in, La Follette's candidacy was wrecked. Many of his supporters flocked to the more glamorous camp of Roosevelt. La Follette never forgave what he regarded as his betrayal, and took no part in the Bull Moose movement. His followers always have insisted that La Follette was the original leader of progressivism.

War Speech Was Distorted

The war came. La Follette opposed America's entrance, and he opposed many of the pre-war acts of the Wilson administration. He spoke against arming merchant ships, and he voted against the declaration of war. He opposed the draft act and the espionage act.

As a member of the Senate Finance Committee, however, he worked indefatigably upon designing tax bills to meet the cost of the war, insisting that the burden should be laid upon war profits and large incomes and estates. He advocated the taxing system then in use in Great Britain.

Then came the St. Paul speech. A calm examination of the facts seems to reveal the almost incredible fact that most of the criticism of La Follette's war record was based upon something which he did not say. During the course of the speech, he remarked: "For my own part I was not in favor of beginning the war. I don't mean to say that we hadn't suffered grievances; we had—at the hands of Germany. Serious grievances!"

Through what now appears to have been the sloppy work of a reporter, the utterance was misquoted, and the next day the newspapers of the country reported La Follette as having declared: "We had no grievances against Germany." Corrections appeared in time, but too late to undo the damage.

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota promptly introduced a resolution for the unseating of La Follette. After several months the Senate committee to which the charges were referred, recommended, by a vote of 9 to 2, that they be dismissed, and they were, by a vote of 50 to 21. Meantime, however, he had been denounced from half the platforms and editorial pages in the country as a traitor.

Comes Back Strong

It was predicted by Eastern political prophets that he would be defeated for renomination in 1922. Instead, he was renominated by a majority of three to one, the greatest he had ever received. Since then, his prestige has risen tremendously. During the last session of Congress he was the recognized leader in the Senate, and the actual leader in the House, of an insurgent block which controlled the balance of power in both houses.

It was La Follette who first demanded an investigation of the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Harry Sinclair by Secretary Fall. By a lone-handed filibuster in 1922 he succeeded in reducing the amount of appropriations bills by $300,000,000. He has persistently battled against the deliverance of the public domain into private hands. That, and his work on railroad regulation, have been perhaps, his outstanding battles in the Senate.

La Follette is 69 years old. He shows his age in the whiteness of his hair, the furrows in his face, and perhaps in the timber of his voice. But he has always possessed enormous physical vigor, and much of it remains with him, despite the fact that he suffered a severe attack of pneumonia last spring.

In private, he is a gentle, old-fashioned man, who loves to read Shakspeare and Irish folk stories aloud to the members of his family. In public he is the grim-visaged incarnation of conflict—a man who simply cannot believe he is licked.

GOLD CHAIN DONATED FOR TUTTLE MEMORIAL

Woman With No Money to Give Sends Keepsake She Has Had for 40 Years.

The long gold chain, contributed by a woman who had no money to give, and a donation of $3.50 by a 10-year-old girl who earned the money painting her mother's window screens, are among the gifts received in the last two days in the Bishop Tuttle Memorial and Endowment Fund campaign. Announcements of both were greeted with prolonged applause by the campaign workers at their semi-weekly luncheon meeting at Hotel Statler, Friday.

The chain was sent to Bishop Frederick F. Johnson with this explanation:

"I would rather give my donation to the Bishop Tuttle Memorial now than to wait, but I have no money to do it, so I am sending this long gold chain which my parents gave me mare than 40 years ago. It is very precious to me and that is one reason I want to to go toward the memorial for theman I love and reverence as ny father."

These gifts were cited yesterday by W. Frank Carter, campaign chairman, and John R. Shepley, campagn director, in an appeal to the public for any contributions, however small, that can be made. To correct an evident impression that only large gifts were to be asked, and to make clear that donations of any size will be welcome, the following statement was issued:

"We are getting complaints that many who wish to contribute to the Bishop Tuttle Memorial have not yet been approached by our campaign workers. We want to emphasize the fact that every man, woman and child who loved Bishop Tuttle and wants to see his work and love for St. Louis carried on in the great downtown memorial community center will have the opportunity of contributing. Every quarter, every half dollar, every dime and every dollar will be as welcome as the big contributions, and the name of every donor will be placed in the corner stone. It would not be a true memorial to Bishop Tuttle if it did not include 'the widow's mite,' the laborer's offering and gifts from little children, for Bishop Tuttle loved them all.

"Toward the end of the campaign, when workers have finished calling on the list of names given them, there will be a plan announced whereby these small offerings may be sent in. Bishop Tuttle all his life long gave freely and gladly to every cause. Usually Bishop Tuttle sent a check for only $5, because he was not a rich man, and it is amounts like this which will contribute largely to the success of the campaign for his memorial."

WOMAN KILLED CROSSING STREET WITH HUSBAND

Mrs. Emory Zike, 47 Years Old, Dies Hour After Being Struck by Automobile at Fifteenth and Pine.

DRIVER IS HELD FOR THE CORONER

Mrs. Anna Seibert, 63, Succumbs to Injuries Suffered When Run Down by Motor Car Thursday Night.

Mrs. Emory Zike, 47 years old, of 1424 Olive street, was run down and killed by a Ford coupe yesterday, when, escorted by her husband, Emory, she endeavored to cross the stream of traffic on Pine street, at Fifteenth street.

The couple, crossing on the east side from the north to the south, at 9 a. m., with the husband on the right, had passed the middle of the street, when Zike observed the approaching Ford, coming eastward. He clutched at his wife's arm, but failed to grasp it, and she, in confusion, dashed into the path of the machine. She was knocked down and dragged several feet under the left wheel and fender, suffering a fractured skull, from which she died an hour later at city hospital.

Enoch W. Galloway, 31, an accountant, of 5551 Clemens avenue, the driver, was held for the Coroner. Zike told the police the automobile, as it approached, appeared to be racing another car. This Galloway denied, saying he was going about 15 miles an hour. He related that he observed the couple ahead, and assumed the woman, like her husband, had observed his car approaching.

Woman Succumbs to Injuries Received When Hit by Automobile.

Mrs. Anna Seibert, 63 years old, of 1906 Cora avenue, died Friday night at Missouri Baptist Sanitarium, from injuries suffered the night before when struck by an automobile as she was crossing the street in front of 4610 Page boulevard. The driver of the car was Frank Gilgenberg, 28, a chauffeur, of 1514 Irving avenue, St. Louis County. He was arrested, but refused to make a statement. Mrs. Seibert, a widow, lived with a daughter, Miss Hilda Seibert.

OLDFIELD RENEWS HIS ATTACK ON SECRETARY WORK

Arkansas Congressman Denies Democrats Propose Government Ownership of Power Projects.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Representative Oldfield of Arkansas, acting chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, renewed his attack on Secretary Work of the Interior Department, in connection with reclamation matters, in a statement issued yesterday through the Democratic National Committee.

Denying the assertion of Secretary Work in a statement last night that the Democratic committee "now embraces in its category of proposals the Government ownership and operation of power throughout the United States," he said the only effort in behalf of the development of the Boulder canyon project on the Colorado River "came from representatives of the people of Los Angeles and the Imperial Valley and encountered the antagonism of the Republican administration."

"I would be interested," he added, "to see a statement from President Coolidge and from Mr. Work pledging themselves to the policy of giving the communities to be benefited priority in the purchase of power at wholesale."

AUDITOR OF U. S. STEEL CHARGED WITH PERJURY

His Companion on Hunting Trip Also Accused of Making False Statement in Obtaining License.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 18.—Warrants charging perjury were placed in the hands of Sheriff Earle Brown of Hennepin County here today for the arrest of A. I. McQueen, auditor of the United States Steel Corporation, and William Langanbaugh, head of the Berger Manufacturing Co., according to J. F. Gould, State Game and Fish Commissioner.

McQueen and Langanbaugh were recently arrested in Ottertail County on charges of hunting in Minnesota without non-resident hunting licenses. They were fined $50 each at Fergus Falls on that charge.

The more serious complaint, that of perjury, follows an investigation that has been conducted under the direction of D. A. Peterson, Chief Game Warden, and which, he avers, will disclose that the men are residents of Canton, O., but that they have been obtaining Minnesota resident licenses by giving Minneapolis addresses in their applications and affidavits. They have a hunting cabin in Northern Minnesota.

ST. LOUISANS RECEIVE LETTERS BY THE ZR-3

One From Old Friend of Late Waldemar Leo Tells of Germans' Interest in Airship Voyage.

The people of Germany were intensely interested in the flight of the ZR-3 from Germany to the United States the early part of the week, Heinrich Jarck of Flensburg, Germany, told Mrs. Martha Coppinger, a friend, of 3124 Vine Grove avenue, in a letter she received last Friday. The letter was sent on the ZR-3, bearing the postmark: "With the airship ZR-3 via Friedrichshafen."

Jarck said in his letter he intended sending it to the United States on the giant dirigible and he asked Mrs. Coppinger to "please let me know immediately on arrival of the ship all particulars of its trip, as we are intensely interested in the flight."

"The people here are wild with enthusiasm about the trip and if the big ship reaches the United States in safety it will be a great triumph of the skill of the German people," he wrote.

Close Friend of Dr. Eckener.

In his letter to Mrs. Coppinger Jarck told of the close friendship existing between himself and Dr. Hugo Eckener, German commander and builder of the ZR-3, who had charge of the dirigible during its flight to the United States. Jarck recalled the marriage of Dr. Eckener's parents, stating he was in attendance. He said he had known Dr. Eckener intimately since his childhood, the commander having been born and reared in Flensburg.

Jarck is 84 years old and was an intimate friend of Mrs. Coppinger's father, Waldemar Leo, retired cider and vinegar manufacturer who died a year ago. Since her father's death Mrs. Coppinger has continued a correspondence which her father and Jarck began when Leo came to the United States more than 60 years ago.

Mrs. Coppinger intends to present the letter to Dr. Eckener if he accepts an invitation that has been extended him to visit St. Louis during his stay in this country.

Bridegroom Beat His Letter.

A letter sent from Germany on the ZR-3 by George Wendrich of Kantersdorf, Germany, telling Miss Emmy Helen Cramer, who resides with Mrs. Coppinger, a cousin, of his intention to come to this country to marry her, was not received until Friday, one day after the wedding of the couple. Immediately after sending the letter Wendrich boarded the steamship Columbus and sailed for the United States. The couple will make their home here. Wendrich, an agriculturist and an authority on the cultivation of the sugar beet, will continue his work.

Two other St. Louisans have received letters sent from Germany on the ZR-3. Mrs. Frieda Frede, 3314 North Eleventh street, received a letter from a relative in Westphalia, Germany, carrying postage amounting to one mark and postmarked Sept. 29. It is marked "Mit Luftpost" (by air post), and "Mitt Luftschiff ZR-3 Befordert" (transported by the airship ZR-3). The sender was Mrs. Louise Kruse of Ludenscheid, Westphalia, a cousin of Mrs. Frede.

Nelson F. Gerkin, 4859 Labadie avenue, a stamp collector, was the other St. Louisan to receive a letter bearing the postmark of the ZR-3.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers.

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For Real Effectiveness, This Old Home-Made Remedy Has No Equal. Easily and Cheaply Prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

How Blind Man Has Increased Reading Among Blind Persons Here

Edward F. Endicott, Member of Library Staff Visits Their Homes and Induces Them to Learn Braille System.

A blind St. Louisan, at the head of the Department of the Blind in the St. Louis Public Library, within nine months, has increased the circulation of Braille books in that department by 2500 per cent. He is Edward F. Endicott, 3936 Evans avenue, who, until his association with the Public Library last February, was a practicing attorney.

His success largely is due to personal acquaintance and to personal visits among the blind people of St. Louis. He talks to them, hears their criticism of the library's service, tells them of the arrival of new Braille books, advises and guides as he can in their selections.

There are about 1000 blind persons in St. Louis, including those in schools and institutions. Some 300 of them use the Public Library. Until the first of this year its blind department issued about three books a week. Now it is issuing 75.

How He Conducts His Work.

When Endicott learns about a blind person he writes a letter and sends a list of books for the blind. If the response comes back in Braille he answers in Braille. If not he uses a typewriter. If Braille books are wanted he sends them. If the blind person expresses a wish to learn Braille, Endicott puts him or her in touch with the Missouri Commission for the Blind, which provides a home teacher where needed.

From a blind person's standpoint, he attacks his problem. He doesn't purpose that his readers shall have difficulties such as he encountered when he first sought the aid of Braille libraries.

"Your Bible," he told a Post-Dispatch reporter, "is in one volume. The Braille Bible is in 14 volumes. I sent to Washington and got the first. Some slow reader had the second. I might have become a Mohammedan and been seeking a chance to read the Koran by the time that second book reached me."

"So now the St. Louis library sends out the first two volumes of each Braille book, asking the reader to return the first before he starts the second. We try to have one on the way from the library, one in the reader's hands and one on the way to the library all the time."

Carried Postage Free.

The Government carries books for the blind postage free, so there is no need for the reader to come to the library. Indeed Endicott seeks to keep them from doing so. "Traffic downtown is bad enough for a man with sight," he says. "The strain on a blind person is intense." Yet he goes about alone continually, through downtown streets where some of the newsboys are among his readers, and out into resident sections all over the city.

In the Public Library are about 1200 books for the blind, and the list constantly is growing. These are circulated not only among St. Louis readers, but among blind people over the State as well. Readers are classified according to their speed in reading. Some will finish a work in a week, some take two, four, even eight weeks. The fast reader is given a preference in service because he keeps no one waiting.

"What do they read?" Endicott repeated. "Everything. Blind folks have tastes like anyone else, and just as varied. But the circulation shows about 60 per cent fiction, 30 per cent history, biography, and essays, and 10 per cent scientific and religious books."

Determination energy and understanding mark Edward Endicott. He walked out from the stack room at the Central Library, six feet of thick-built man, straight as an Indian, and walking in those accustomed aisles with a quick, firm step which almost gave the lie to blindness. His well-poised head is square of shape. His jaw is firm and determined, his face full of animation. He will talk eagerly—of his work.

Rather Show What He Does.

"But I'd rather show you," he said, "and that is how a Post-Dispatch reporter chanced to accompany him upon a series of afternoon visits.

Three were to girls. Kathleen, Genevieve and Louise, they may be called. Little brothers and sisters were playing on the floor of Kathleen's home, and a work-worn mother welcomed the Blind Book Man with the cheeriest of greetings.

"But why couldn't you come some other time," called Kathleen in jest, yet half in earnest from the other room where she sat with her ear glued to the radio. "Washington," she said, "has just made a run." But she left the radio, a crippled girl who could walk only when two friends aided her. There was Celtic merriment in her this face even under the burden of affliction. The Sunday before, her mother said, she had been at death's door.

"That is why I didn't get to go to the theater," she apologized. And the talk turned to books. Eagerly she heard that Dumas' "Three Musketeers" would soon be available in Braille. She had been reading Peter B. Kyne's "Kindred of the Dust" and Zane Grey's "Lone Star Ranger." The latter, she said, pleased her most. She could just see the open spaces.

Learn From the Radio.

Endicott left that she might go back to the radio and the ball game, but not until the reporter had been thanked for K. S. D. radio programs. "They pass long hours so quickly," said Kathleen, "and you learn so much. The music is beautiful, too."

"Do you love music?"

"Yes. I used to play a little."

The sightless eyes turned to a piano in the corner.

"We have some music in our library for the blind," volunteered Endicott. "I'll send you out a book. Maybe you will enjoy it."

Genevieve was bobbed of black hair, vivacious, active. A quick mind, sensitive finger tips—these make her a fast reader. "Can I have it first?" she said, when told of "The Three Musketeers," for she has read much and a new book is welcome. "I get books from the library at Washington, D. C.," she explained, "and from that at Springfield, Ill. So I always have three or four, and can take my choice in reading according to my mood." Genevieve liked fiction. "I never found but one story I didn't like," she said. "That is Scott's 'Talisman.' I have it now, and just can hardly finish it. The long descriptions put me to sleep."

Chatted About Blind Friends.

They chatted of friends among blind groups in St. Louis, their parties, their pleasures, their social life. "But I wish," said Endicott, after he had left that home, "we blind weren't quite so dependent upon each other. It would do us all good if we could mix more with sighted people."

Louise didn't have a radio, so that Endicott, who, having built a set of his own, is radio mechanic among his blind friends, didn't have to fix one. "But I can keep busy," she said. "She washes dishes, and dusts for me, and she can cook and sew," her mother explained, "and besides, Louise is a great reader. Often if I happend to turn on the light at 1 or 2 a. m. I will find her sitting in bed reading."

It was illuminating, that word, of the darkness. And Endicott told of playing penochle, he and three friends, on a summer's night when electric lights made too much heat, so that they were turned out and the blind men valued their hands by the Braille marks made on the backs of the cards, and melded and paid in their chips in the blackness.

Darkness Again Emphasized.

Another visit emphasized that eternal darkness. It was to a little cabin in a negro district. An elderly man, for years a yardman in a fine St. Louis home, was alone, his wife gone for the day's work as laundress. He brought in a basket he had been making. For each basket he receives one dollar. Usually he makes five a week, by working in the evenings. One week, working from 8 a. m. to 12, midnight, he managed to complete six.

"But working with these canes," he said, "makes my fingers thick and calloused, and I ain't doin' as well with Braille as I'd like to. Oh, but I wish I could read now." Yet he was cheerful and his face lighted up as he told of visits by Miss Addie Ruenzi, herself blind, and home teacher for the blind under the Missouri Commission.

The old negro went back to his baskets, inspired to keep on at Braille, by what Endicott could tell him of books that were waiting to be read. The reporter has seen enough of the difficulties encountered on the education of readers-to-be, and of the joy there is among those who have mastered Braille and who use the St. Louis Library. With his blind guide he walked back toward the library.

Always the other walked half a foot behind him. "Thus you telegraph me," said Endicott, "which way you are going to step—down or up. Don't try to guide me. Forget that I am blind. I will do better.

How He Gets Around.

"It's not difficult to get around. We blind have only to fear that which is below our waist line. That is why we carry canes. Really you

JEWELRY AUCTIONS IN PROHIBITIVE MEASURE

Proposed Ordinance Intended as Protection Against Shoppers in Downtown Area.

Jewelry auctions in the downtown and central portions of the city would be prohibited by a proposed ordinance introduced in the Board of Aldermen Friday. The bill was drawn and sponsored by the Better Business Bureau, to protect the public against sharpers who misrepresent value and quality of their goods and to protect regular dealers from the inroads of itinerants who set up temporary shops for auctions, especially before Christmas.

The district where auctions would be taboo is bounded by Fourth street, Chouteau avenue, Kingshighway, Easton avenue and Wash street. The chief effect of creating this district would be to bar the auctioneers from downtown, where crowds make their work worth while.

Provision is made for licenses for auctions outside this area of jewelry in general, diamonds or other precious or semiprecious stones, stationery, rugs, carpets, furniture, furs or musical instruments. The fee would be $5 per day and auctions would have to be held on successive days, for not more than 30 days. Only persons or firms in business here for one year previously could obtain licenses, and they would have to file with the License Collector an inventory of the merchandise to be auctioned and make affidavit that they had owned it six months.

Other provisions of the bill are for posting of $3000 bond with the city for protection of customers, prohibition of employment of "cappers" or "boosters" to stimulate bidding, delivery of invoices to customers showing quality of merchandise purchased, limiting auction hours to 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. in winter and 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. in summer, revocation of licenses by the Mayor on complaint, after hearings, and fixing punishment for violation as a maximum fine of $200 or up to 90 days in jail.

The practical effect of the ordinance would be to prevent such auctions altogether. There is speculation at city hall as to whether private sales of collectors could be held under this ordinance. The City Law Department does not consider jail sentences for violation of an ordinance legal.

Another bill introduced would prohibit parking of vehicles in public alleys throughout the city from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., but exempting commercial vehicles while loading and unloading. This follows complaint of the police Traffic Bureau that alley parking is causing trouble.

AMERICAN WAR SUPPLIES IN FRANCE NEARLY ALL SOLD

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—The stocks of leftover American war supplies, the sale of which, while incidentally helping the French Treasury out to the amount of about 6,000,000,000 francs, developed so many stories of graft, will be entirely liquidated, it is now thought, in about 10 years. They are almost entirely out of Government hands so that the Minister of Finance no longer includes the proceeds from them in estimates of the year's receipts.

If one goes to the right places it is still possible to find big piles of khaki breeches, shirts and coats, along with all sorts of odds and ends from the war. They are principally in the hands of secondhand dealers, having successively passed from the big operators to wholesalers and thence to foreign governments or French "hand-me-down" establishments.

China, Albania, Turkey and Armenia provided large markets for old American uniforms and about 8000 overseas caps went to Albania. Miners in Northern France, newsboys, bicycle messengers and cart drivers around Paris have been the most faithful individual customers of khaki breeches.

HOW BLIND MAN HAS INCREASED READING BY BLIND

know, we often have guides who do not know it. Suppose I want to cross the street. There is no street car—if there was one going in a parallel direction I would know I would be safe if I walked with it. But I stand until a group comes along. I hear them talking, and a foot to the side, and six inches to the rear I follow them. If there is danger I know they will stop.

"It isn't hearing," he protested. "People give us credit for more acute hearing than the sighted have. I love the theater, but I will miss as many of the actor's lines as you will miss. So will most blind folks. It is feeling guides us rather. Any object that is in motion creates its rush of air. If it is about the waist line I can feel that rush on my hands or face. But below, I need the cane. One feels the rush of air from a door, and so knows where to turn in. It is present also where there is an open hole in the sidewalk, though an open hole is usually betrayed by some dirt, sand, or gravel lying about. Just let me feel that under my feet and see how quickly that cane comes into play."

REV. W. FRANK IRWIN TO SPEAK

The Rev. W. Frank Irwin, D. D., of Irvington-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., will give the principal address Friday, Oct. 24, at Lindenwood College, at 10:30 a. m., in a dedicatory program for Irwin Hall, a students' dormitory which has been named for his father, the late Dr. Robert Irwin, president of Lindenwood from 1880 to 1893. A son-in-law of Dr. Irwin, Rev. E. W. McClusky, of Lebanon, Ill., and another son-in-law, the Rev. W. F. Jones, of Carlinville, Ill., will assist in the exercises. Miss Agnes Gray of St. Louis will give musical numbers. The new dormitory cost $250,000. It stands on the south side of the campus and houses 75 students.

MISS VIRGINIA C. LINK SUFFERS SCALP INJURY IN ACCIDENT

22 Stitches Required to Close Wound Received When Automobile Strikes Projection.

Miss Virginia Cabanne Link, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Link, 5661 Cabanne avenue, who was a debutante and maid at the Veiled Prophet ball two years ago, suffered a scalp wound, which required 22 stitches to close, in an automobile accident Friday night.

She and her escort, William Stewart, 5646 Kingsbury place, were seated in the rear of an open car, driven by Francis Reder Jr., 6346 Pershing avenue, who was accompanied by Miss Ruth Krause, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Krause, 4540 Lindell boulevard, a debutante of this year. They were returning from Jefferson Barracks, about 10:45 p. m., and were just beyond the city limits on South Broadway, when a tire burst, and the car struck a projection of a culvert.

Miss Link and Stewart, seated in the rear, were thrown clear of the car, the young woman striking on her head on an ash heap. Stewart, though badly dazed, escaped with bruises. A passing motorist brought Miss Link to Barnes Hospital. She was unconscious for about 12 hours and it was at first feared she had suffered a fractured skull. An X-ray examination, however, disclosed the injury was not that serious.

STUDENTS DESIGNING POSTERS TO ADVERTISE FASHION SHOW

Classes of St. Louis School of Fine Arts Aiding Churchwomen's Club in Exhibit.

Students in the costume, design, illustration of commercial art classes of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts are designing posters to be used to advertise the Churchwoman's Club Fashion Show, which is to be given at the Odeon on Nov. 11 and 12 for the benefit of a number of philanthropies and social service agencies of the Episcopal Church. The posters will be placed on exhibition in a downtown location, and a prize is to be awarded the best one.

The Fashion Show will include a half hundred of the most prominent young society women of the city as models, who will show gowns, furs, coats, hats and shoes of leading specialty shops and department stores of the city in a pageant with music and taleaux. Boxes for the show may be obtained from Mrs Arthur Garrison and the tickets will be placed on public sale tomorrow (Monday) at 1004 Olive street, or may be obtained from Mrs. T. Fitzhugh Turner, 4943 Lindell boulevard.

14-YEAR-OLD GIRL DECLARES THREE MEN ATTACKED HER

Tells Police She Was Lured Into Automobile Truck, Taken to Woods in County and Brought Back.

Julia Darashas, 14 years old, of Benld, Ill., reported to the police at 11:30 o'clock Friday night that she had been lured into an automobile truck at Fourteenth street and Cass avenue earlier in the evening, taken to St. Louis County and attacked by three young men.

She was visiting at the home of her sister, who lives on North Fifteenth street, she said, and was standing on the corner waiting for a street car when the men drove up and asked her to accompany them to a party. When she hesitated, she said, one of the men took her by the arm and pulled her into the machine, but instead of taking her to a party, drove to a wooded section in the county and then brought her back to the city, putting her out of the truck at Fifteenth street and Cass avenue. The girl was treated at the city hospital.

A young Italian, said to be owner of the truck, was arrested yesterday pending investigation.

FISHERMEN ENRICHED BY RUN OF HERRING IN NORTH SEA

Hauls of Extraordinary Size Made by Englishmen — Value of Catches Thrice Those of 1923.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The fishing is mighty fine up in the North Sea just now. It hasn't been so good since before the war, when there were no mines floating around and every now and then exploding with consequent destruction among the finny tribes.

For some reason the North Sea teems with herring this year and the wallets of the fisherfolk are taking on a happy and unexpected bulge. Even old salts who hardly ever bothered to take out a boat in the hard-luck years of the recent past are unwinding their nets this autumn and putting out to sea.

Hauls of extraordinary size have become quite the usual thing. One day recently at Lowestoft the haul consisted of 15,000 crans, or about 15,000,000 herring. That meant as much as £300 to some of the fishermen, enough to keep a large family happy through the winter.

In September the value of the catches brought into Lowestoft totaled £112,000, or nearly treble the haul of September, 1923. Other herring ports are expecting [illegible] prosperity and it will not be a winter of discontent in Yarmouth, Grimsby and the neighboring towns, even if the rest of the country does suffer from unemployment.

BOY BURGLARY SUSPECT SAYS POLICE BEAT HIM WITH HOSE

Webster Groves Lad Released, Companion Who Repudiates Confession of Maplewood Thefts Is Held.

John McCune, 16 years old, of Webster Groves, was dismissed from custody, and Herbert Deala, 15, of 6438 Wade avenue, was held on charges of burglary and larceny at a preliminary hearing before Judge McElhinney at Clayton, Friday. Deala's trial will be on Nov. 17 in Juvenile Court.

Deala and McCune were arrested on a street in Maplewood at 2 a. m. Oct. 3 when their actions excited the suspicion of Police Chief Caldwell of that suburb. Deala made a confession that the two had participated in a series of burglaries in which a total of about $900 in money and jewelry had been stolen from Maplewood homes.

On the stand Friday Deala repudiated the confession, which, he said, was false and had been obtained from him by policemen who threatened him with a rubber hose. McCune, who repeatedly has denied participation in the burglaries, testified he had been beaten with the hose.

MANY ORGANIZATIONS FAVOR GOOD ROADS PROPOSITION

Business, Civic and Political Bodies Supporting Issue to Be Voted on in November.

The Missouri Statewide Good Roads Association has been advised by many business, civic and political organizations that they are supporting Proposition No. 5 to be voted on at the November election, proposing a tax of 2 cents per gallon on gasoline and an increase of approximately 50 per cent in State automobile license fees to make possible much more rapid progress in road building.

Among the organizations which recently have approved the proposition are the Association of Master Plumbers, the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association, the Tenth Ward Improvement Association, the North St. Louis Business Men's Association, the Citizens' and Taxpayers' League, the Travelers Protective Association and the Twenty-seventh Ward Republican League Club.

Miss Dorothy Simmons' Marriage to Walter J. Hock of Detroit a Colorful Affair Ceremony Yesterday Afternoon Held on Lawn of Bride's Parents' Home on Hanley Road — Miss Simmons Wore Gown of White Satin Trimmed in Michael Angelo Lace —Will Motor Through Adirondacks on Honeymoon.

A BRIGHT autumn sun paused yesterday afternoon to reflect its rays on a brilliant spot of color which moved slowly over a spacious lawn where Miss Dorothy Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Simmons, and one of society's favorites, was married to Walter J. Hock of Detroit. Pale yellow tints shaded into brown, and almost mahogany, in the costumes and flowers of the attendants, while the deeper tones of red, combined with blues and lavendars in the new autumn frocks of many of the guests. The floral setting was white. Great clusters of white chrysanthemums dotted the greensward surrounding the Simmons home on the Hanley road and formed a bower for one of the last large garden weddings of the season.

Six young women who are contemporaries of the bride, the Misses Audrey Faust, Eleanor Simmons, Elizabeth Luyties, Elizabeth Mau-, Eleanor Jewett of Detroit and Roberta Lewis of Chicago, and the seventh, Miss Virginia Simmons, a debutante of this season, attended her. They wore clinging frocks of peachbloom chiffon over crepe of the same shade, made simply with straight panel backs, and three circular flounces which trimmed the front, and formed a low waistline. The peach-y tint was combined with the shades of brown to complete the picture. A huge soft bow of chiffon velvet in almost a mahogany shade was fastened at the side back, and they wore large picture hats with velvet crowns and maline brims of the same tint, adorned with a single uncut velvet chrysanthemum.

The six bridesmaids carried shaded dahlias, and Miss Faust, who was maid of honor, carried sunburst roses. Each bouquet was tied with a maline bow to match their hats. Miss Faust's costume differed from the rest in a nadre blue chiffon overdress.

An orchestra played the wedding march as the procession moved from the house through a white-carpeted satin aisle caught at intervals with tall wicker baskets of white chrysanthemums, to a semicircular hedge where Mr. Hock and his groomsmen met them. Here a temporary altar was built. White marble pedestals flanked it on either side, and a profusion of white flowers made it more beautiful. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Leahby, formerly of Detroit.

The fresh blonde beauty of the bride was well set off by the simply made white satin wedding gown.

A bertha of rose point outlined the neck and drop shoulders, while the skirt drapery was caught at the left side by a pearl cabauchon. A broad band of the rose point cascaded over this drapery and after looping at the hem line was also fastened at the hip. Michael Angelo lace purchased by the bride in Italy last summer draped from both shoulders, and a second train of satin gave a background for the exquisite lace. Her simple tulle veil was held at the back by a lace coronet, and as she walked to the altar, her face was partially covered by a shorter one. She carried lilies of the valley.

Francis Hock was his brother's best man, and the groomsmen were John Reynolds and George Hendrie, both of Detroit; Carl Koehler, Whitelaw Terry, Mahlon B. Wallace Jr. and Willis Brodhead.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the flower-bedecked home, and later several hundred guests danced in a smilax-covered tarpaulin marquise built off the living room.

Mr. and Mrs. Hock will motor through the Adirondack Mountains on a three weeks' honeymoon trip, returning for the wedding of Miss Faust and Mr. Wallace Nov. 8, when Mrs. Hock is to be matron of honor. Their home in Detroit will be completed in November and until then they will occupy an apartment. Mr. Hock gave his bride an exquisite diamond and sapphire ring set in platinum for a wedding present, and his groomsmen platinum cuff links. Mrs. Hock gave her attendants leather traveling clocks.

Few young women have enjoyed the popularity in St. Louis society as has Mrs. Hock. The past few days have been crowded with parties for her, and many were left ungiven because of lack of time. She is a graduate of Mary Institute and the Westover School in Connecticut. In 1922 she made her debut at a large reception given by her mother, and became a member of the Imperial and Junior League that year. Her mother was Miss Mabel Filley and a member of the old St. Louis family of that name. Mr. Hock is a son of Mrs. M. W. Hock of Grosse Pointe, a suburb of Detroit. He is a graduate of Cornell University.

The out-of-town guests included Mrs. Hock and Edward Hock, another brother of the bridegroom, and Miss Betty Henry and George Henry of Detroit; Misses Marion and Katherine Lewis of Chicago; Estelle Manville of New York, Mr. and Mrs. James Sprankle, brother-in-law and sister of the bridegroom, of Cleveland.

Holiday parties for the younger school set are being arranged, until the calendar between Christmas and the New Year has hardly a day in which there is not at least one affair for them. Mr. and Mrs. Ben G. Chapman Jr. of 58 Kingsbury place, will be hosts at a dinner dance at the Bellerive Country Club Dec. 23 in honor of their young daughter, Miss Alice Louise Chapman. The guests will include some members of her class at the John Burroughs School and other members of the sub-deb set.

Mrs. J. W. Jacob of Hotel Chase will give a dinner party Thursday night at the St. Louis Women's Club in honor of Mrs. Henry Meier, formerly of St Louis, who is visiting here, and who will depart Oct. 26 for her home in Pasadena, Cal. There will be 16 guests. Tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock Mrs. Robert Atkinson will give the first of a series of talks on current events at the club, and Thursday Mrs. Lon Hocker will speak on Palestine at the conclusion of the table d'hote luncheon Mrs. Hocker cruised the Mediterranean with a party of friends last summer, spending some time in the Holy Land, especially in Syria. Her talk, which will be informal, is to be illustrated with pictures taken there.

Miss Alma Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Vernon Clark of 5734 Westminster place, has sent out invitations for a luncheon bridge the afternoon of Oct. 28 at the Bellerive Country Club.

Numerous Parties on Social Calendar Keep Debutantes Busy Remembering the Dates

Mr. and Mrs. Leland D. Breckinridge to Entertain at a Buffet Supper Tonight—Miss Ruth Cornet Will Be Hostess at a "Tacky" Party Thursday Night — Miss Jessie Carr Will Make Her Debut Nov. 21.

INVITATIONS to parties flood the mail, until even with the help of engagement pads and the trustworthy memories of their mothers the young buds are kept busy remembering the date, time and place of the next party. The following are a few of the latest ones announced:

Mrs. J. R. Eakin, 5017 Washington boulevard, has sent out cards for a debutante luncheon, Nov. 4, at the St. Louis Woman's Club, for her daughter, Miss Margaret Eakin. On Dec. 5, Miss Eakin will be presented formally to society at a dinner dance to be given at the Bellerive Country Club by her parents. Two hundred guests, including the debutantes and their escorts, will be invited.

Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Leland D. Breckinridge of Enright avenue will give one of a series of buffet suppers they plan for the winter. Sharing honors will be Misses Louise Fownes of Pittsburg, Miss Jane Whiteside's guest, and Miss Ellen Cook of Atlantic City, who is visiting Miss Eakin. Tomorrow night Henry Shoemaker will be host at a theater party for Miss Fownes.

In tomorrow's mail will be found invitations for a debut reception for Miss Barbara Bay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield Bay of Cecil avenue, at the Bay home Nov. 7. A number of men will be invited for dinner at 6 o'clock, followed by dancing. Miss Bay will share honors with Miss Elizabeth Bemis at a theater party Nov. 3 by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene B. Stinde of the St. Regis apartments. Mrs. Harry Woods of the Kingsbury apartments will give a luncheon Friday, Nov. 7, at the Woman's Club for Miss Whiteside.

An innovation in entertaining, while not for the debutantes, is a "tacky party," for which invitations were received Friday. Miss Ruth Cornet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Cornet, 4550 Pershing avenue, will be hostess and her visitors, Misses Marjorie Dwyer and Madeline Cousens, both of Detroit, will be the honor guests. The invitations, written on yellow stationery, bear two stanzas of jingles, which begin:

"I always knew you were a hick,
So be at my back door
On Thursday night, the twenty-third,
In clothes you always wore."

Miss Jessie Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peyton T. Carr of 67 Vandeventer place, will be introduced to society at a ball at the St. Louis Country Club the evening of Nov. 21. The party is one of a few of its kind in a season replete with teas and dinner dances, and is expected to be one of the most brilliant of the season.

Miss Harriet Moore, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Moore, 2361 Tower Grove avenue, will be the guest of honor at a Halloween dinner dance at the University Club Oct. 31, at which Col. and Mrs. Albert T. Perkins will be the hosts.

Egg parties, which for the past few years have become almost an institution by way of midnight entertainment, were inaugurated for the season after the debut reception and dance for Miss Mildred North at the St. Louis Woman's Club Friday, when about 40 of the buds and their escorts motored to the home of Miss Elizabeth Bemis, 5 Kingsbury place. The guests all repaired to the kitchen, where the eggs were prepared to suit the taste of the individual, and each did his own cooking. The North party was voted a success by the debutantes. It was given by Dr. and Mrs. Emmett P. North of the St. Regis apartments, for their daughter, and was the first formal function of the year. The Woman's Club was transformed into a bower of chrysanthemums and autumn foliage, and dozens of baskets of roses sent to the debutante by friends of the family gave n added color note. Miss North wore brown crepe georgette and silver lace, and carried an arm bouquet of dahlias. Mrs. B. R. Hart and Miss Jane Whiteside received the guests with the debutante and her mother. Some of Mrs. North's friends came without hats, and assisted. A number of men and a few of the young married set were invited from 7 to 9 o'clock for dancing.

Miss North will be honor guest at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Charles A. Houts of Webster Park the afternoon of Oct. 21 and later in the week will share honors with Miss Whiteside and Miss Pamela Harrison at a dinner at the Bellerive Country Club by Mrs. J. O. King.

The Theta Mu Gamma Sorority entertained its members and their guests at the home of Miss Dorothy Chazen, 1350 Bayard avenue, Oct. 11 Dancing and games were played during the evening. Those present were Misses Blanche Sievers, Rose Berkin, Rose and Gertrude Hoffman, Anna and Mae Sievers, Edell and Mary Nelson, Ruth and Deve-a Rotman, Dorothy Tepper and June Banet, Messrs. ENGAGEMENTS AND WEDDINGS OF THE WEEK

The marriage of Miss Herma Anheuser Rombauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Rombauer of 3646 Flora place, and Thomas E. McCary Jr., took place at 8:30 o'clock last night in the Rombauer home, the Rev. Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, officating. The autumn shades in the decorations gave a pleasant contrast to the pastel tints of the frocks worn by the bride's attendants. An archway was built in the living room and this, covered with smilax and studded with yellow and brown chrysanthemums, formed a setting for the ceremony. Miss Dorothy Nall, a cousin of the bride, wore green crepe, made with a bouffant skirt trimmed with ostrich, with an ostrich ornament at the waist line. Her slippers and a wreath worn in her hair were of silver. She carried an inverted leghorn hat filled with pink roses, and looped over her shoulder with pink ribbons. Margaret Malcom, who was flower girl, wore a flesh-colored crepe frock and carried a French basket of roses. Anheuser Rombauer, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride's gown was chiffon velvet beaded in crystal and made on straight lines without sleeves. A tulle train depended from her shoulders, and she wore a tulle veil which covered it and fell over her face in the front. Her flowers were valley lilies. An informal reception followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. McCary departed for their honeymoon. They will be at home after Nov. 15 at 3615 Lafayette avenue. Mr. McCary is the son of Mrs. T. E. McCary Sr. of Lee's Summit, Mo., who attended the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Ambruster of 3726 Gravois avenue entertained with a dinner Monday evening, Oct. 14, in honor of Miss Alvina Altvater and E. T. Koepp of Toledo, O., whose marriage took place Tuesday, Oct. 14. Mr. Koepp is a cousin of Mrs. Ambruster.

The betrothal of Miss Noel Elliott Baird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Atkinson Baird of 4936 West Pine boulevard and Alfred Henry Kerth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Kerth of Clayton, was announced yesterday at an informal bridge party given at the home of the prospective bride's parents.

Miss Baird attended Washington University and is a member of Pi Beta Phi. Mr. Kerth is a graduate of the Law School at Washington University, and a member of Phi Delta Theta and Delta Theta Phi fraternities. The wedding date is not announced.

The guests were Mmes. Robert A. Baird, Henry P. Kerth, Harry H. Bruce, Walter D. Lindeman, and Misses Isabelle Oatman, Florence Hemsley, Helen Bechtell, Virginia Gorin, Dorothy Martin, Sarah Selby, Marie Bopp, Ruth Stinson, Dorothy White, Madeline Closs and Linnetta Oehler. After they arrived, little Betty Graham entered the room carrying a French basket filled with wrist corsages fashioned of tea roses, with hearts bearing the names of the couple attached by silver cord. A corsage was given to each guest.

Mrs. Frank Darrow Hiller of Holywood, Cal., formerly of Webster Park, was hostess at a tea Thursday in honor of her niece, Miss Elise Haywood, at which announcement was made of the engagement of the honor guest and Bronson Storrs Barrows, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Barrows, 6173 Waterman avenue.

About 100 guests attended. The announcement was made in an unusual way. The occasion being also in celebration of Mrs. Hiller's birthday, individual cakes were served, each of which was adorned with an imitation tulle-tied candle, which, when unrolled, proved to be a card bearing the news.

Miss Haywood and her uncle and aunt resided in Webster Park until

Blackheads Go Quick by This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this, get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly, while the simple application of calonite powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

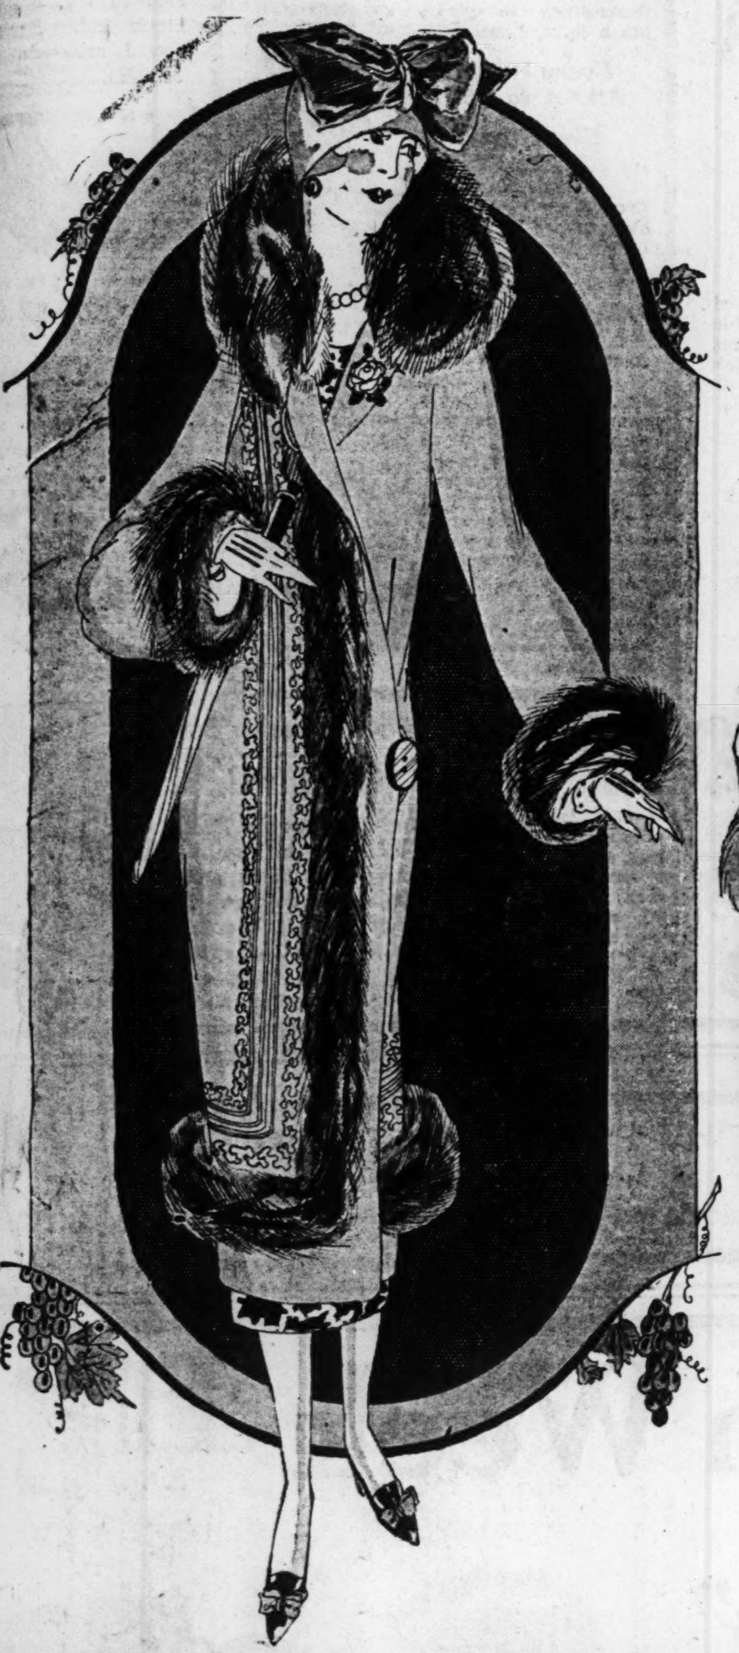
A TRIUMPH IN COAT UNDERSELLING

An annual event, planned jointly with our affiliated stores, involving the purchase of several thousand new Coats at concessions that only a sale of this magnitude can command. The importance of this event cannot be over-emphasized, and our patrons are urged to share in these remarkable savings.



SUCH an exceptional sale is possible because so many Coats were purchased—because of our organization's prestige in the market—because of the thousands of dollars of buying we do at regular prices—and because we determined to make this the outstanding Coat event of the season.

YOU will be impressed with the lavish way in which fur is used to adorn these Coats. There are large fur collars and cuffs, fur borders, fur panels, fur-edged fronts, fur-trimmed pockets. And if you ask your furrier the cost of these trimmings, you will be amazed that we can offer such Coats at $45.

Eyestrain Headaches Are Unknown to These People

Pain in any part of the body is simply nature's method of warning you that there is something the matter with your physical mechanism that requires immediate attention.

When pain is experienced in the back of the head and down the cords of the neck, or seems to be localized in the eyeballs, it's a ten to one chance that you are suffering from eyestrain headaches and that your eyes are demanding corrective lenses to assist them to perform their normal function.

The only Glasses that will do this for you are those that have been prescribed for your particular vision defect as a result of a careful and scientific eye test.

Guilbault Glasses are carefully ground and scientifically adjusted to correct your error in vision, and no other—that is why Guilbault Glasses are worn and endorsed by over 30,000 people to whom eyestrain headaches are unknown.

NEWS AND GOSSIP IN SOCIETY CIRCLES AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Mrs. Coolidge emerged from the mourning period she has been observing for her son Calvin Jr., during which time she has not attended any social functions or the theater, to attend the concert by Emilio de Gorgorza at the National Theater here on Thursday.

Mrs. Coolidge looked lovely in her black gown and black hat with white underbrim. She was accompanied by Miss Camilla Irvine, daughter of the principal of Mercerburg Academy, Pennsylvania, which her sons attended last year. Miss Irvine is a guest at the White House and Mrs. Coolidge has endeavored to see that she had some informal social pleasures while here.

Much interest has been attached this week to the Cabinet wedding in which Miss Beatriec Henning, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of Labor and Mrs. E. J. Henning became the bride of George Shaw of Washington. Many officials and their families attended the ceremony.

The next trip President and Mrs. Coolidge will take out of Washington will be to Northampton, Mass., on election day, where they both will cast their ballots. They will not remain long in the New England city, but will return to Washington almost immediately.

Mrs. Philip North Moore of St. Louis, who has been in Atlantic City, is now in Washington, and will make her headquarters here until after the quintennial of the International Council of Women at the National Club of the American Association of University Women. Mrs. Moore will take part in the fortieth anniversary celebration of the District of Columbia Association of University Women. Mrs. Moore will also be a representative of her organization as president of the National Council of Women at the Anti-Narcotic Conference to be held in conjunction with the January board meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Miss Bessie McKeldin, stepdaughter of Rear Admiral Leigh Palmer, a Missourian here and Miss Janet Moffett and a group of other debutantes are among those who play tennis on the historic Dubarton Club courts. Another devotee of the Dubarton courts is Assistant Secretary of War Dwight Davis who has won many laurels in tennis matches.

Mrs. James Carson Breckinridge, sister-in-law of Mrs. Genevieve Champ Clark Thomson, entertained at luncheon in her quarters at the Marine Barracks last week for Mrs. John A. Lejeune, wife of the commandant of the United States Marine Corps.

Miss Nancy Benoist, daughter of Mrs. Lee Benoist of St. Louis and Washington, who is to be a debutante of the season, has gone to Ardmore, Pa., where she was one of the assistants at a tea given by Mr. and Mrs. James Crosby Brown to present Miss Gladys Pomeroy Jenkins, daughter of Mrs. Brown.

The Minister of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, Dr. Ante Trosich Pavichich, left Wednesday for St. Louis where he remained for several days.

Rheumatism Is A Joint Ailment

New German Discovery Gives Quick Soothing Relief for Creaky, Swollen, Painful Joints.

Medical science has definitely proved that rheumatism is an ailment of the joints and nerves and is caused by an internal infection such as a blind pus pocket in a tooth or an infected tonsil which throws off poisons absorbed and carried by the blood to the delicate membrane lining the joints. An infection of the joint tissues follows which thickens the membranes and dries up the joint fluid causing stiff, swollen and enlarged joints which bring about a pressure on the nerves of the joint causing the intense, agonizing pain of rheumatism.

German science working from these newly discovered facts has at last produced a wholly different remedy which gives the same quick relief from rheumatic pain as aspirin does for headache pain—a remarkable powder dissolved in a blend of rare penetrating oils which when applied to the affected parts, penetrates clear through the skin to the underlying nerve fibers. It gives instant relief from pain by bathing and saturating the nerve fibers ending in the tissues just beneath the surface of the skin, and the soothing sensation of pain relief is carried along the nerves to the joints.

Because this remedy, known as Buhler Oil, ends rheumatic pain by getting at its immediate cause—the infection of the delicate membrane of the joints, and because it has given relief to thousands of rheumatic sufferers, each bottle is accompanied by a written guarantee to refund the purchase price if you do not secure relief. You are relieved from pain or you get your money back from any of the following dealers: Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores (3 stores), Keiffer Drug Co. (2 stores), Enderle Drug Co. (6 stores), Johnson Bros. Drug Co.

SULPHUR Heals Itching Scalp

Any breaking out of the skin, even itching eczema of the scalp, can be quickly healed by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist.

For any unsightly skin eruption, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ-destroying properties nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation, which soothes and heals the skin and leaves it clear and smooth.

Get a small jar of Bowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

A PARTNER OF SUNLIGHT

Cod-liver oil has aptly been called the partner of sunlight. Both out of Nature's storehouse of energy are of supreme importance to a child with rickets.

Scott's Emulsion

and sunlight have been used for decades to give strength to weak-bones. A little of Scott's Emulsion with each feeding does wonders for a malnourished child or adult.

Keep your boy or girl out in the sunlight and give them Scott's Emulsion everyday—regularly!

An Ensemble Suit

AUTUMN'S rich color and the soft, gray haze of October days are the guiding themes of this Fawnskin Ensemble Suit. Its full-length coat, with long-waisted pockets, raglan sleeves and brown fox trimming, is as sleek as that of the animal from which the material derives its name. A tunic dress of chenille-embroidered Marquisette with Fawnskin underslip, lends its richness to complete the Ensemble, tiny lapels and a picoted four-in-hand of the heavier cloth supplying an unusual tailored effect........ $150.00

THE geographical difference between France and America in no way disconcerts the 18th century youth and maiden portrayed on either side of this handsome bag. Beauty
A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hairbrush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c

Gas on Stomach Gone—Sound Sleep C

"After just ONE bottle Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) pain in my side (due to gas on the stomach) is gone and I now eat good and sleep WONDERFUL. I feel like a new person." (Signed) Mrs. O. McGinnis.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a liquid preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a complete system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It cleans out BOTH upper and lower bowel and removes foul matter which poisoned the system for months. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the intestinal canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much MORE foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach or sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, [illegible] in cases of obstinate [illegible] standing stomach trouble [illegible] direction of your physician.

HOME FOR AGED NEGROES TO BE BUILT IN SAVANNAH

New York Woman Provides Funds in Memory of Her Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mills.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 18.—In memory of her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. George J. Mills, a home for aged negro people, which will be known as the Mills Memorial, will be erected in Savannah by Mrs. Henry Wilson Hodge of New York.

This announcement was made yeterday at a meeting of negro people called to discuss with Mrs. McLeod of the State Welfare Board plans for such a home, which they have had under consideration for many years and for which a small sinking fund already has been established, representing both races. Mills was a very wealthy Savannah retired banker. He died several days ago.

C. OF C. ISSUES AN APPEAL TO PASS AMENDMENT NO. 7

Plea Directed to Rural Communities Where It Is Feared Misunderstanding Might Defeat It.

An appeal has been issued by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce for support at the November election of proopsed Constitutional Amendment No. 7 to authorize St. Louis and St. Louis County to vote on the question of whether there shall be chosen a Board of Freeholders to prepare an annexation plan for the city and county.

The appeal has been sent principally to rural communities, where it has been feared that lack of interest will cause many voters to vote against the amendment without realizing what it is. Attention was directed to the fact that adoption of the amendment will mean a change of boundaries and that there cannot be a change unless the voters of the city and county, voting separately, shall approve it.

He is going upon an invitation transmitted to the French Government through Secretary of State Hughes as a return for the compliment paid by France to the American actor, James K. Hackett, who was invited to appear in a number of special Shakspearian productions at the Odeon two years ago.

Premier Herriot sent his best wishes for the trip and his thanks to the United States and to Hackett in a letter to the American actor.

MOVE STARTED FOR BETTER MOTOR TOURISTS' CAMP HERE

Meeting Called for Oct. 30 to Discuss the Problems of Location and Equipment.

Committees have been appointed by Frank W. Bradley, chairman of the Associated Clubs' Tourist Park Committee, to study ways and means of giving St. Louis an up-to-date motor tourists' camp in place of the one in Forest Park and to get out representatives from all business and civic organizations in the city for a meeting which will be called for Oct. 30 to discuss problems of location and equipment.

Plans under consideration now call for a park of some 50 acres with adequate sanitation and cooking facilities to accommodate several hundred tourists. The cost is expected to be about $200,000.

The Committee on Plans and Site comprises, Robert E. Lee, chairman; F. C. McDonald, Harry M. Schmidt, Albert von Hoffman, Fred W. Pape, Matt F. Morse and Dr. Edward F. Randall. The publicity committee includes J. G. Flech, chairman; M. Lippmann, Paul V. Bunn, J. M. Bloodworth, Oliver F. Remmers, K. F. Niemoeller, Victor Stempf, D. F. Hyland, C. B. Nicholson and P. M. Fahrendorf.

Puny Babies Can Grow to sturdy children

Note which foods best agree. Be quick to stop constipation with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

PARENTS need not despair because a baby is frail. Progress often rests upon the most trifling change in or addition to the diet.

Watch diet, digestion and elimination. There should be two or three stools a day, and as solider food is eaten, one or two. If there are less, and there is belching, wind, bad breath, symptoms that indicate constipation, give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and by morning you will have a healthy youngster again.

Not all laxatives, however, are suited to young children, as many contain opiates and narcotics. Syrup Pepsin is entirely free from them, and is a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on every package.

Experienced mothers like Mrs. T. Breeman, 65 Lewis St., Paterson, N. J., and Mrs. Walter Morris, Shively, Ky., have discarded all other laxative medicines for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. They find that this mild, gentle laxative answers every purpose and is a great improvement over the old-style harsh cathartic pill and calomel, which children hate to take.

Buy a bottle of Syrup Pepsin at a drug store, the cost being less than a cent a dose, and if it does not come up to these claims your money will be refunded.

A laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can be used by all members of the family, for it is safe and yet effective. It has been successfully sold for over thirty years and is today the most widely used general laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles being bought by the public annually.

Use it for constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, flatulence, indigestion, headache, fevers and colds, and all other disorders associated with imperfect or infrequent passage. Many people use it regularly once a week as a mild flushing of the bowels, and in that way escape the dangers of constipation altogether. Just a spoonful now and then is a wonderful stabilizer of health.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not inclose postage. It is free.

A decision affirming the convictions and life sentences of 41 negro soldiers of the Twenty-fourth United States Infantry, for participation in the Houston race riot of 1917, was handed down here yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The opinion was written by Judge Lewis, with Judges Sanborn and Kennedy concurring.

On Aug. 23, 1917, 14 persons were killed and eight injured in rioting in Houston, Tex., between negro troopers detailed from Fort Sam Houston at San Antonio, and white civilians. On Dec. 1 of the same year 13 of the soldiers were legally hanged, in accordance with sentence pronounced at general courtmartial. Forty-one others, also convicted, were sentenced to life imprisonment with hard labor at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Subsequently it was announced that the sentences of six of the 41 had been reduced.

Habeas Corpus Had Been Denied.

In an endeavor to free the prisoners, application for habeas corpus writs were filed in Federal Court at Kansas City. When Federal Judge Pollock denied the application, an appeal was taken, with the result that Pollock's decision was affirmed here yesterday and the prisoners must stay at Leavenworth.

An argument made for the application was that the ninety-second article of war provided no person should be tried by courtmartial for murder "committed within the geographical limits of the States of the Union and the District of Columbia in time of peace." Although the United States was at war with Germany on the date of the riot, it was contended the state of war did not extend to Texas, and therefore the courtmartial had no jurisdiction and the cases should have been tried in State court.

Contended Rights Were Violated.

Another argument advanced was that the defendants' constitutional rights were violated when they were tried on four counts: Murder, assault, mutiny and disobedience, although, it was asserted, the counts all related to one offense.

In its decision of affirmation, the Appellate Court takes "judicial notice" that war existed in Texas, as well as overseas, on Aug. 23, 1917, and therefore trial by courtmartial was allowed. The court also rules that trial on the four counts was a proper procedure.

City life and Constipation—fellow conspirators

If you are one of these necessary people in the business world—the woman or man whose duties demand your continuous personal attention—you must guard not only against constipation, but also against laxatives that interrupt you during business or disturb your nightly rest.

Pluto Water is the physic for you to take because it acts within 30 minutes to two hours. It gives your intestinal tract a thorough cleansing at a time that is convenient to you. A water physic, it is safe and nongriping.

Time counts. Neglected constipation is positively perilous to general health this time of year. Keep a bottle of quick-action Pluto on hand in your home always. Physicians prescribe it, druggists sell it, and it is bottled at famous French Lick Springs, Indiana.

SAYS NEGRO MIGRANTS HAVE ADAPTED SELVES

Urban League Secretary Asserts Most of Them Have Proved Themselves Fit.

Negroes who migrated here from the South in the last few years for the most part have adapted themselves to local living conditions, William V. Kelley, industrial secretary of the Urban League, declared in the following statement:

"Two years ago a general topic of the day was negro migration. Many questions were asked, 'Why is the negro coming North? What is he going to do when demand for common labor closes down? Where is he going to stay? Is he adaptable to Northern conditions of social, religious and industrial life? Will he not go back when hard times come? Many answers were volunteered. He was coming North for personal freedom. The other questions were open to speculation.

"The migrant gave rise to the question and has answered it for us. We have witnessed a great struggle for existence. An overwhelming proportion of those people have proved themselves fit to survive, and by their frugality have caused the Northern negro to realize his own possibilities. As lamentable as it may seem, it is true that much of such progress has been made, not because of, but in spite of Northern city residents. The better classes have long since been forgotten as migrants, for they have intrenched themselves in the economic life of the community by their perseverance and thrift.

"On the other hand, there have come large numbers who are unable to survive through their own efforts. Some of these have come to appreciate their inability for honestly caring for themselves and have gone back South to the plantation where an existence is guaranteed by the plantation owners. For those of the last-named class who persist in remaining, the public must be responsible.

"The employment department of the Urban League feels very keenly that responsibility, for the public is constantly calling for high-class help that we were able to furnish a year ago, but is offering extremely little for such help. The difficulty is obvious. Even under such a handicap, we were able to place 445 persons in employment for September, bringing the total for the first eight months of 1924 up to 3876."

The fund provides for 10 scholarships of $500 each. Charles Mayo Goss, B. A., Yale University, 1921, of Peoria, Ill., was among those given the awards this year.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

POSTAL DELEGATION APPEALS TO DAVIS

Democratic Nominee for President Promises "New Deal" for Employes if Elected.

A "new deal" in the Postoffice Department was promised to a delegation of postal organization officials who called on John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee for President, at Hotel Jefferson yesterday to ask for his support in the movement they sponsored for improved working conditions.

The delegation comprised executive officers of the Railway Mail Association of Missouri, Kansas and Colorado; the Allied Postal Committee, the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, the National Association of Letter Carriers and the National Association of Postoffice Laborers.

Spokesmen for the delegation asked the candidate to promise he would clean out "the bureaucrats in the Postoffice Department at Washington, and give a new injection of blood to the entire postal system." They blamed the "bureaucrats," they said, for the defeat of the postal employes' salary bill and charged that President Coolidge had been misled by departmental officials when he vetoed the bill.

Davis gave the callers his pledge that he would give them a new deal and would not be fooled by propaganda as to the actual conditions of the postal establishment and workers.

NUMEROUS SUGGESTIONS FOR NAME FOR THE ZR-3

Suggested Titles Being Listed for Inspection of Secretary Wilbur.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Scores of suggested names for the American Zeppelin ZR-3 have come to the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics since Secretary Wilbur's announcement that the ship would be christened "Los Angeles."

Titles culled from India, mythological and purely American civic lore are among those pouring into the bureau, where, under instructions by Wilbur, they are listed for his inspection.

Gov. Cox of Massachusetts, in a letter, urged that "Concord," "Lexington" or "Bunker Hill" be chosen. A Chamber of Commerce in a Southern city entered "Knoxemall" and cities in every section of the country have put forward claims for representation in the air.

Among the Indian names suggested are "Nokomis," "Appomattox" and "Oweenee."

REPORT THAT SENATOR LODGE WILL RETIRE SOON IS DENIED

Will Undergo Another Operation, However, of Minor Character.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—A report that Senator Lodge, who submitted to an operation recently, would retire before the expiration of his term because of illness, was denied today by relatives. The Senator will be in Washington in all probability late this autumn, according to relatives, although at present the date of a second operation, said by physicians to be necessary, has not been determined. This will be a minor matter, it is said. Senator Lodge's doctors say "his progress and his physical strength are exceptional," according to the statement.

TO PROPOSE LOWER TAXES FOR FRENCH WHEAT FARMERS

Minister Also Asks Lower Duty on Fertilizers to Encourage Nation to Feed Itself.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Declaring that France's bread supply must be independent of foreign crop conditions, Minister of Agriculture Queuille is framing legislation with a view to encouraging wheat growing.

As soon as Parliament assembles he will introduce a bill reducing the price of German fertilizers delivered on the reparation account. He will also propose the abolition of customs duties on fertilizers and will attempt to obtain a reduction in railway freight charges for fertilizers, seeds and other agricultural necessities. Finally, his plan would bring about reduced taxation for farmers agreeing to sow an adequate area in wheat.

American Drama Season To Open With "Hamlet," Starring Fritz Leiber

Other Announcements Are "Rain," "The Swan," "Saint Joan," "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," "Seventh Heaven" and "Aren't We All?"

THE American Theater will open its regular season of drama and musical plays next Sunday night, when Fritz Leiber will appear in "Hamlet." His repertory for the week is as follows: Monday, "The Taming of the Shrew"; Tuesday, "Macbeth"; Wednesday matinee, "The Three Musketeers"; Wednesday night, "Romeo and Juliet"; Thursday, "The Merchant of Venice"; Friday, "Julius Caesar"; Saturday matinee, "Hamlet"; and Saturday night, "The Three Musketeers."

A new version of Dumas' novel has been written for Leiber's use, and he will make his first St. Louis appearance in the role of D'Artagnan. A large cast and an elaborate production are promised.

Zoe Akins' "Footloose" on List.

THE American's announcement of its repertory for the season includes several famous successes of the stage and a number of prominent actors and actresses. On the list are the following:

"The Swan," by Molnar, with Eva La Gallienne. This work played all last season at the Cort Theater, New York, and is now at the Blackstone in Chicago.

"Saint Joan," the Theater Guild production of George Bernard Shaw's latest play, but with Julia Arthur in the title role instead of Winifred Lenihan.

"Seventh Heaven," by Austin Strong, with Helen Menken. This play ran two years in New York

"Rain," after a story by Somerset Maugham, with Jeanne Eagles. "Rain" is now in its second year on Broadway.

"Aren't We All?" by Frederick Lonsdale, with Cyril Maute at the head of the cast.

"Meet the Wife," by Lynn Starling, with Mary Boland.

"Laugh, Clown, Laugh," with Lionel Barrymore in the Belasco production.

"Merton of the Movies," with Glenn Hunter.

"Footloose," by Zoe Akins, with Margaret Anglin and William Faversham.

"The Rivals," a revival of Sheridan's famous comedy, with Mrs. Fiske, Tom Wise, Chauncey Olcott and Lola Fisher.

Revues and Musical Plays.

REVUES on the schedule include the 1923 Ziegfeld "Follies," Irving Berlin's "Music Box Revue," George White's "Scandals" and Earl Carroll's "Vanities." Henry W. Savage will send two musical plays—"The Magic Ring," with Mitzi, and "Lollypop," with Ada Mae. There will be also two negro revues—"Runnin' Wild," with Miller and Lyle, and Sissle and Blake in "The Chocolate Dandies." Howard Thurston, magician, will have his usual week.

Length of runs in other cities will determine whether the season will include Eddie Cantor and Mary Eaton in the Ziegfeld production of "Kid Boots," and Fred and Dorothy Stone in "Stepping Stones." Tentatively booked also are "White Cargo" and "Hell Bent for Heaven," last year's Pulitzer prize play.

"In the Next Room," Mystery Play, at Shubert-Jefferson.

A MYSTERY play, "In the Next Room," follows "Cyrano de Bergerac" at the Shubert-Jefferson, opening tonight. It is by Mrs. August Belmont, formerly known to the stage as Eleanor Robson, and Harriet Ford, who derived it from a story by Burton E. Stevenson. Winthrop Ames and Guthrie McClintock are the producers.

In the cast will be Fred L. Tiden, H. Langdon Bruce, Betty Linley, Arthur Albertson, Dillon Deasy, John M. Kline, Phil M. Sheridan, William J. Kline, Frances Goodrich and Virginia Gregory. "In the Next Room" is being played at St. Martin's Theater in London.

Next Sunday evening the Shubert will present one of the typical big Shubert revues, "Vogues and Frolics," with Odette Myrtil, Parisian dancer, singer, mimic and violinist. Flavia Arcara, of the Municipal Theater Co., will be in the cast, and also the celebrated jugglers, the Pasquali brothers. This will be followed by Constance Binney, in "Sweet Little Devil," and by Gallagher and Shean who, during the week of Nov. 9, will present "In Dutch," a musical frolic.

Neil O'Brien's Minstrels are playing this year at the Odeon, where they open a week's engagement tomorrow night. O'Brien appears in a new sketch called "Hot Dog." "Sugarfoot" Gaffney and Tex Hendrix have a dance turn called "Spanolo Jazzolo," in which they cavort as blackface Valentinos. Billy Beard has a new monologue, and Maxine and Scotti McCoy will yodel. The company includes James Berardi, Lea Laird, Gene Pearson, John Hinton, T. M. Bullock, Walter Anderson, Charles R. Wright, Herman Williams, Sherman Carr, Ed Leahy, George Bracken, Joe Cronin, Billy Henderson and others. There is a finale in three scenes which promises unusual settings.

New Play at Pershing.

A COMEDY new to this city, "Two Fellows and a Girl," is the week's bill at the Pershing. It is by Vincent Lawrence, who received some assistance from George M. Cohan. It was produced in July, 1923, at the Vanderbilt Theater in New York. The central incident is one in which a girl tosses a coin to see which of two swains she will marry. The two fellows will be played by Edward Darney and Edward Schilling, and the girl by Rhea Diveley.

The sister troupe at the Empress will play "Up Stairs and Down," by Frederick and Fanny Hatton, in which a gifted philanderer, Capt. Terrence O'Keefe, is the principal character. This role will be taken by J. Glenn MacFarlane.

The Orpheum features the annual Gus Edwards song revue, called "Fountain of Youth of 1924." In his company are "Sandy," a Scotch comedian; George Douglas, Doris Walker, Hazel Johnson, Peggy Hoover, Helen Lynd, Margie Rooney, Margery Ewing and Billy Bradford.

Fritzie Brunette at Orpheum.

ON the bill also are George Whiting and Sadie Burt, in talk songs; Fritzie Brunette, motion picture actress, in a comedy playlet called "Spring and the Moonlight;" Joe Keno and Rosie Green, Harry Hines, Hazel Johnson and Doris Walker, and Sultan, a trained horse.

Newhoff and Phelps, with Chauncey Gray's Orchestra, lead the offering at the Rialto, which includes Del Chain and Lou Archer, Bobby Henshaw, Thomas P. Holey and a company, and Amazon and Nile. The new bill, beginning Thursday, is headed by Mabel McCane.

The list at the Grand Opera House is: Walter Ford and the Intercollegians; Jerry Mack and a troupe, Howard Smith and Mildred Barker, Coffman and Carroll, Sally Goldie and Madeline Beatty, Sammy Pierce and Villa Arrow, August and Fred Bramino and Jerry D. Martin and Josephine.

In Stock and Burlesque.

THE announcement at Liberty Music Hall is "The Silk Stocking Revue." One of the features is a brand-new song, "You Started Something," by Policeman K. A. Steinhaeufel, who directs traffic at Grand boulevard and Olive street. The film is "Daring Chances," with Jack Hoxie.

The German Stock Company, at the Odeon tonight, presents a celebrated comedy, "Krone und Fessel" ("Crown and Chain"), by Walter Howard and Siegfried Lutz. It depicts the adventures of an American army officer in one of the Balkan states. The burlesque announcements are "Go to It," at the Gayety; and "The Bobbed-Hair Bandits" at the Garrick.

Molnar's "Guardsman" Is Admirable Comedy

By HEYWOOD BROUN,
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.

THE best light comedy of the new season is "The Guardsman," by Franz Molnar, which was presented Monday night at the Garrick by the Theater Guild. Often lightness in the theater is achieved by the simple device of putting very little in the container, but this time we have a true deftness of touch and a dancing mood with an ample wealth of incident.

The device upon which the comedy has been founded is simple enough and has served before. A jealous husband tests the love of his wife by disguising himself as a rival and paying court to her.

Fortunately the scheme is credible as played by Alfred Lunt. His original role is that of a popular actor married to an equally popular comedienne. At any rate, the question of respective theatrical popularity and ability is an issue between them and a draw seems a fair verdict after listening to the testimony of each.

Seven or Nine?

THE actor fancies that his wife is in the mood for a new romance and he gathers that her desire is for a lover somewhat different from all the others. They are mentioned only incidentally but acrimoniously. The husband places the number at seven and is indignant when the friend of the family fixes the tally at nine. It is at this point that the husband declares he will not calmly hear his wife's reputation aspersed.

However, he does believe that she would be receptive to a guardsman, and so he chooses for his disguise something military, princely and Russian. This impersonation of Lunt's is so altogether admirable that one is entirely willing to accept the fact that the wife is fooled for a little while. Just how long the deception succeeds with her is a matter which the playgoer must determine for himself. In the end she declares that she knew her husband all the time and this is the explanation which that disturbed man, with some misgivings, accepts.

The playgoer with less at stake may choose to reject this statement of the heroine in whole or in part. Your reviewer feels that she did not know a little before the end of the make-believe and amused herself by turning the game against the husband. The playwright and the players do not choose to make any definite decision in the matter. To this extent each spectator may write the comedy for himself and place the

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN MOVIE STUDIOS

For the filming of the galley slave sequence in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production of "Ben Hur," Director Fred Niblo has taken his entire company to Leghorn, Italy. Here, 15 miles out on the Mediterranean, several thousand Roman soldiers and sailors are recreating the famous scenes enacted during the reign of Caesar Augustus in the first century. Ramon Novarro is playing the part of the galley slave, Ben Hur, and Frank Currier is portraying Arrius, the Roman naval commander.

Alec B. Francis will finish work in the George Fitzmaurice production, "A Thief in Paradise," within the next ten days. Francis has just signed a contract to play the principal role in "The Bridge of Sighs," an original story by Hope Loring and Louise Leighton, which will be produced by Warner brothers. "The Bridge of Sighs" derives its title from that famous bridge over which the prisoners must pass on their way from the courtroom to the cells. Francis will appear in prison garb in this production, in direct contrast to the ecclesiastical robes which he wore in the picture he has just finished.

There were counts, barons, baronets, a General and other officers of less rank in the cast which made Gloria Swanson's latest pic-

Mae Murray in A Circe Role At Two Houses

On Local Bills Also Are "A Story Without a Name," "Unguarded Women," "Those Who Dance," and "Wine."

MAE MURRAY stars this week at Loew's State and Delmonte Theaters in "Circe, the Enchantress," written for her by Blasco Ibanez, the famous Spanish writer. It is a story dealing with the adventures of a modern siren whose power over men was as compelling as that of Circe of Greek mythology. In the cast are James Kirkwood, William Haines, Charles Gerard, Thomas Ricketts, Gene Cameron and Lillian Langdon.

Short subjects complete the Loew's State screen program, while on the stage for the second week the Original Versatile Sextette and Orchestra presents a complete change in music, song and dance. Loew's State Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Don Albert, presents as an overture selections from "Madame Sherry." There also will be special music and stage features at the Delmonte.

"The Story Without a Name," featuring Agnes Ayres and Tony Moreno, is featured at the Missouri Theater this week. The story tells of a young inventor working for the U. S. Government who has just perfected a "death ray" machine, an invention destined to revolutionize modern warfare. The instrument has been successfully tested and the scientist is making preparations for his departure to Washington to turn over his invention to the proper officials when something absolutely unlooked-for happens.

The cast includes Tyrone Power, Dagmar Godowsky, Maurice Costello, Jack Bohn and others.

The third Missouri Sunday Symphony Concert with the enlarged orchestra, under the direction of Poseph Littau, will play the following program: "Peer Gynt Suite No. 1" (Grieg); "Blue Danube Waltzes" (Strauss); selections from "The Chocolate Soldier" (O. Strauss); Meditation from "Thais" (Massenet); violin solo by A. Roth. Finale from "Fourth Symphony" (Tschaikowsky). An interpolation on the program will be an organ solo, "Southern Fantasy" (Hawke), by Milton Slosser. Paul Whiteman's Collegians are retained for a second week.

The Grand Central this week offers Alan Crosland's paramount picture, "Unguarded Women," featuring Bebe Daniels, Richard Dix, Mary Astor and Walter McGrail. The West End Lyric and Capitol have a Thomas H. Ince production, "Those Who Dance," with Blanche Sweet, Bessie Love, Warner Baxter and Robert Agnew.

Herb Wiedoeft and his Cinderella Roof Orchestra of Los Angeles, occupies the stage at the Grand Central in a West Coast concert of syncopation.

Both "Unguarded Women" and "Those Who Dance" are jazz pictures, but they have widely different atmospheres. "Unguarded Women" is a strictly society drama dealing with the mishaps of a young widow who is left alone in the world and with a young man who believes the mistakes of her life are due to an act which he committed, or failed to commit, in the war, when her husband was killed.

"Those Who Dance," on the other hand, is a story that commences with "society" parties, but which drifts into the underworld when the heroine decides to go after the bootleggers who have brought ruin to her young brother.

A "high life" picture called "Wine," is shown this week at the Kings and Rivoli Theaters. It deals mostly with dangerous pastimes of society.

The story concerns a little debutante, played by Clara Bow, whose father is forced into a bootlegging partnership. The bootlegger, posing as an Italian Count, presents such a flattering offer that the impoverished social leader cannot refuse. Accordingly the debutante's father becomes half owner of the "12-Mile Limit Cabaret," and a roadhouse.

The girl enters into the gay set of which her bootlegging father is now the leader. Unknown to him she takes to gin parties and the like. But finally the split-up ture for Paramount, "Wages of Virtue." Most of them were either French or Russian. Allan Dwan became accustomed to all the European social formality. During the course of the filming of the picture the set was visited by the Princess de Bourbon of Spain.

"Peter Pan" is the most popular set in the Paramount West Coast studio. Players from all parts of the big plant gather around to watch Herbert Brenon directing Betty Bronson, Ernest Torrence, Cyril Chadwick, Virginia Brown Faire and Anna May Wong. The nursery scene proved especially interesting.

Jack Holt, featured with Ernest Torrence, Lois Wilson and Noah Beery in the Paramount production of "North of 36," is recovering from a severely sprained ankle received during the filming of a cattle stampede scene in Texas.

Dimitri Buchowetski, who is directing "The Swan" for Paramount, has added Dora Mills Adams to the cast for the role of "Princess Deminica."

Jane Jennings and Lucius Henderson have been given roles in Richard Dix's second Paramount starring picture, "A Man Must Live."

Gloria Swanson has taken the beautiful private hotel of the Marquise de Brantes at 10 Place des Etats Unis, which she will occupy during the production of the Paramount film adaptation of "Madame Sans-Gene."

James Rennie has been signed for one of the featured roles in "Argentine Love." Bebe Daniels and Ricardo Cortez head the cast which includes Mario Majeroni, Mark Gonzales, Julia Hurley, Aurelio Coccia, Alice Chapin and Russ Whital.

James Kirkwood has been signed to play the lead in "The Top of the World," which Famous Players-Lasky is to produce as a Paramount picture. "The Top of the World" is a Jack Cunningham adaptation of the novel by Ethel M. Dell. The story is laid in England and South Africa.

One of the largest and most picturesque outdoor sets ever built at Paramount's Long Island studio occupies the entire lot in the rear of the main studio building. The set, made for Rudolph Valentino's newest starring picture which Joseph Henabery directed for Paramount, "A Sainted Devil," is an exact duplicate of a picturesque hacienda of modern Argentine.

King Vidor utilized the large swimming pool on the Jacob Danziger estate in Beverly Hills for a scene from Cyril Hume's "The Wife of the Centaur." Several dozen extras appeared in the scenes which he took there, as well as the principals, including John Gilbert, Aileen Pringle, Eleanor Boardman, William Haines, Philo McCullough and others. This swimming pool scene does not illustrate and typify the wildness of American youth, but for a change merely portrays an afternoon diversion.

"Kings in Exile," one of the best-known novels by Alphonse Daudet, the author of "Sapho," has been selected as Victor Seastrom's next production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It is a story of Paris as a refuge and rendezvous for unthroned monarchs, and in this glamorous setting of Parisian sophisticated society Daudet's characters enact a most alluring romance.

T. Roy Barnes, the comedian, who has starred in many successful productions of the speaking stage and the films, has been added to the cast of "Seven Chances," the next Buster Keaton feature length comedy. Barnes had a leading role in the Cosmopolitan production of "The Great White Way," released by Metro-Goldwyn.

Marshall Neilan, now back at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Culver City studios, where he is completing "The Sporting Venus," managed to keep pace with the flyers who recently circled the globe in remarkable fashion. Neilan witnessed the start of the tour at Clover Field, Santa Monica, just before leaving for Europe to begin work for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer on "The Sporting Venus." He was in Paris when they landed there, and again in London, on the field, when they descended in England. He was back in New York on Mitchel Field to see them land, and was again on Clover Field, Santa Monica, when they finished.

Just to prove that geography holds no restrictions on the screen, Hunt Stromberg announces that his next Harry Carey feature—a photoplay version of Bret Harte's "Tennessee's Pardner"—will be known when released as "The Man from Texas."

recognition scene at any point he wishes.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne.

THE play seems to me altogether excellent and—or if you please—it makes severe demands upon the players. A false step could send it tumbling. It is only for sure-footed folk. Such a cast has been found. The roles of the actor and the actress fall to Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, and both give brilliant performances. Neither is ever caught flat-footed.

The tribulations of these folk must never be stressed to the point where the sympathies of the audience are too much caught up. The object is mockery and the play must go on. Regrets are no part of its mood. The actor must be torn with jealousy. The actress must weep. All this must be real, and yet it is essential that it shall never get out of hailing distance of the comic spirit. Poignancy has no part in the play. The contract is fulfilled.

The cast is good throughout. Helen Westley is exceedingly amusing as a stage mother. Dudley Digges does well with the one colorless part in the play, and Philip Loeb makes a creditor seem charming.

Philip Moeller directed the piece for the Theater Guild and did a good job.

A Comedy by Eden Philpotts.

THE grim chronicler of Dartmoor has turned comic. There are pompous and blustery citizents of Devon who look and talk and act quite silly. The Eden Philpotts whose "Children of the Mist" came to life in a stage version called "The Shadow" two seasons ago, only to find its gloomy outlook too deep in the dumps to please the Broadway trade, has returned with a new and happier peek at the same old English countryside. His "Farmer's Wife," at the Comedy Theater, is a poetized drama with a rambling, sluggish pace.

The author, who has been a prolific salesman of the Devonshire dialect in our literary markets for more than a quarter of a century, clings to his style and even to his characters, but here they are grouped in a cheerier day. It is not a very good play, but it provides an evening of laughs which defies even the strictest dramatic disciplinarian.

Out of the continuous flow of rosy speeches it became evident that a very self-secure, blunt and aggressive widower had determined upon taking to himself a new wife. Throughout the three acts he is found systematically jotting down and approaching, with the aid of his meek and worthy housemaid, the most desirable of the female singles of the region.

Gets Many Rejections.

BUT by each of these he is rejected, and in the end the old boy makes warm and eloquent love to his humble companion. She accepts him, and immediately his rejectors fly in upon him with kittenish offers to reconsider. Quite naturally, it is too late. This is your drama. But this play is not content to do with a solitary romance. Two other sets of adoring ones march sweetly on to the delirious inevitable, making it a large and glowing two hours of love among the simple folk.

There is a second act scene wherein the clan of the hills gathers in at a house party which is interesting and really funny at times, due largely to the amazing contrast of types on view. In America you would find such a roomful at a Sunday school sociable three miles east of Little Rock, Ark.

Stark Young's "The Saint."

A WELL-KNOWN critic of the drama, Stark Young, has ventured into playwriting with a drama called "The Saint," which had its first showing at the Greenwich Village Theater, with Leo Carrillo in the title role. Marietta, the heroine, sent her love out on two roads, physical and spiritual, the spiritual never came back. Only Dedaux, knife-thrower from Tip Thompson's Variety Show, remained. He loved her body. The saint had slipped away to his devotions.

Still, it was "the Saint's story and as such deserves to be told. He was a Texas cowboy entering the priesthood. Between him and his religion came the figure of Marietta, rehearsing with Tip Thompson's troupe on the fringe of his seminary town. He ran away from God to be an actor.

Down in the straggling towns of Mexico where they were playing, Dedaux, handsome despite the thin scar under his eye, whispered her away from him. After that they met only once, briefly and to part forever, before the portico of the Franciscan Seminary.

Leo Carrillo played the Saint, and a sound job he made of it. He was best in his moments of deathly indecision. Only when he went to extremes—imitating Charlie Chaplin and falling before the effigy of Christ—did he seem to sacrifice conviction for sheer emphasis.

Russian Actress Succeeds.

HELEN FREEMAN and C. Henry Gordon played Marietta and Dedaux acceptably if somewhat on the surface. Yet it was Maria Ouspenskaya's performance of an old trouper who trained pigeons that stood out. She is one of those who stayed behind when the Moscow group sailed off to Russia. Speaking virtually no English she mastered for her part the meaningless sounds of an alien idiom. But the cutting edge of her performance was the bitterness of her expression and the droop of her thin shoulders. They seemed the finest single points in the production.

These, then, were the materials. They formed a play at all times intelligent, occasionally brilliant, and never actively engrossing. The graceful element of comedy was conspicuously absent. The emotional advances failed somehow to attain exact objectives. With all its discerning craftsmanship and snatches of illusive beauty the tingle of sincerity and the play of pungent life seemed strangely lacking. "The Saint" remains an image rather than an inspiration.

"The Red Falcon."

THERE camped on the stage of the Broadhurst Theater last week a somber and sentimental scenario of Sicily in the sixteenth century, which is on its way to Hollywood. "The Red Falcon," unless I am a poor judge of character, cherishes in its heart a deep and abiding desire to be of the bigger and better things.

If this should come to pass Mr. McKay Morris will be relieved of a vexing burden of much, but not very good, English. Mr. Rudolph Valentino, or some other gay Latin swanker will inherit a fat and juicy role; the screen will show you Sicily and Italy in all their grandeur; and the stage will not be greatly the loser.

Also a Play About a Priest.

THE two authors, George Broadhurst and Mrs. Trimble Bradley, whose combined efforts brought to this same stage so recently the ludicrous "Izzy," have done many weeks of writing in order to bring out this melodrama. A prologue, three acts and an epilogue are required to tell the story of a young, attractive, unhappy and deranged priest.

In the beginning we find Morris acting the part of a cruel, killing, marauding leader of the army of Sicily's oppressed. He is the "Red Falcon." He has burned the village, and now marches his mob into an aristocratic convent. Here, in a very ungentlemanly manner, he forces the Mother Superior to give herself to him. And the little drama begins.

The Son of the Falcon.

TWENTY-EIGHT years later, the "Red Falcon" long since slain, Morris appears as the Falcon's son, living, his identity cloaked in mystery, with his mother. He is a priest. But in his veins runs the chili sauce of the great Red terror, and he is found struggling with strange and uncontrollable emotions.

In the second act he does a murder. A moment later he walks serenely on the scene, oblivious to the deed he has committed. Throughout the following acts and scenes his life is one long siege of conflicting desires and kaleidoscopic passions. The fact of the matter is that this young and troubled priest finds himself almost continuously between the devil and the Holy See.

In the end, after the girl he has loved is given to another in marriage, he walks into a monastery.

This is one of those big productions. It seems ever to be occupying most of the stage, and it is couched in long and fervid speeches delivered by persons who seem entirely worthy. Mr. Morris does the very best he can of it, and Thais Lawton, as his mother, is a figure of properly poignant despair. If you ask me quick, as Gene Buck says, I should say this is not a very good drama.

"Clubs Are Trumps."

AT least one distinct surprise is provided by "Clubs Are Trumps," a comedy by Leslie Hickson and W. Lee Dickson, which was presented Tuesday night at the Bijou. In the last act the hero plays a golf match with his hated rival and is beaten. The rest of the piece is less revolutionary. While it is true that the hero misses the cup, he does get the girl.

Golf and advertising are the two chief threads of the play. The first act furnishes one brief scene of excellent satire on advertising modes, but the rest of the entertainment is commonplace. Now and again a good gag is introduced, but the playwrights are not proficient in doing much with the intervals between the snappy sayings.

Harry Green, well known to vaudeville patrons in his one-act play, "The Cherry Tree," is the featured actor. He gives a performance which is often effective. His method is one of intense repression, and by the time the third act comes around this technique has pretty much lost its savor. A somewhat greater variety is necessary, although the play itself offers no great incentive for spirited acting.

At times the piece is within hailing distance of good comedy, but it is too bogged with crudities to be anything more than harmless third-rate entertainment. The acting is well below the established standard. There is a good performance by Walter Allen in a small role.

People who don't know anything about golf are not likely to get any fun out of "Clubs Are Trumps." Those who do know the game may derive mild amusement. The play does not seem to be a permanency.

Orchestra Betters Personal With New Players

IN an effort to improve the quality of the Symphony Orchestra, the management has engaged 18 new players for the coming season, making 38 changes in the last two years. For first bassoon, always a weak spot in the orchestra, the society has obtained Max Fuhrman, reputed to be one of the best performers on this instrument in the country. He comes from the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra.

Ermete Simonazzi, the new first oboe, held that position in the State Symphony Orchestra of New York, directed by Josef Stransky, and has played under Arthur Nikisch, Max Fiedler and other famous leaders. In the inscription on a photograph, Nikisch described Simonazzi as "a superb artist." Joseph Faerber and F. L. Lathrop are new recruits in the first violin section, and Alfons Van Reck of Chicago is considered an important addition to the contrabasses.

Special Rehearsals This Week.

DIRECTOR GANZ has arranged three specials rehearsals at the string players for next Friday afternoon and Saturday afternoon and evening. Regular rehearsals will begin a week from tomorrow. Many members of the orchestra are attending conferences at the Musicians' Club with Assistant Director Fischer concerning works to appear on the season's programs.

One of the important features will be a series of five concerts for children, which will be held at the Odeon on the afternoons of Nov. 20, Dec. 11, Jan. 8, Feb. 5 and Feb. 26. Mrs. Charles M. Rice, chairman of the committee of women in charge of these concerts, reports that a considerable proportion of the Odeon seats has already been disposed of through subscriptions.

Mrs. Horace M. Rumsey, in charge of ticket sales for the regular concerts, announces that the sales now excel those at a corresponding date last year.

Schuman-Heink's Program.

IN her recital at the Odeon on Oct. 31, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink will be assisted by Florence Hardeman, violinist, and Katherine Hoffman, pianist. Among other numbers, Miss Hardeman will play "Humoresque," by Albert Stoessel, a native St. Louisan who is conductor of the Oratorio Society of New York. The program is announced as follows:

"My Heart Ever Faithful"	Bach
"Helistrahlender Tag," from "Odysseus"	Bruch
Mme. Schuman-Heink.
Rondo	Mozart-Kreisler
"Oh Days of Youth," from "Eugene Onegin"	Tschaikowsky-Auer
"Tambourin Chinois"	Kreisler
Miss Hardeman.
"Die Junge Nonne"	Schubert
"Du Bist die Ruh"	Schubert
"Wohin"	Schubert
"Ave Maria"	Schubert
"Allerseelen"	Strauss
"Fruehlingsreiger"	Fleischmann
Mme. Schumann-Heink.
"Humoresque"	Stoessel
"Russian Lullaby"	Grandei-Brown
"Danza Espagnole"	Huerter
Miss Hardeman.
"Allah"	Chadwick
"Cry of Rachel"	Salter
"Trees"	Rasbach
"Lullaby"	Edward Collins
"Kerry Dance"	Malloy
Mme. Schumann-Heink.

Two Sousa Concerts.

THE two concerts which John Philip Sousa and his band will give at the Odeon on his seventieth birthday, Nov. 4, will feature compositions by the leader, such as his "What Do You Do on Sunday, Mary?" "Looking Upward," and a march, "Ancient and Honorable Artillery." Another number will be his "Music of the Minute," an interpretation of current jazz.

Miss Eleanor Meesey, pianist, and Miss Hedwig Meyer, mezzo-soprano, will give a recital Saturday afternoon at Vandervoort Hall. Stoughton's cantata, "The Woman of Sychar," will be sung at a vesper service this afternoon by the choir of Bethel Evangelical Church, Garrison and Greer avenues. Roland Buchmueller is director.

The first of Charles Galloway's free organ recitals for this season will be given between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon at Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University. He will play a program of numbers by Rheinberger, Shelley, Harwood, Clokey, Lemare, Stoughton, Torjussen and Widor.

At the home of Mrs. Sidney Goldberg, Thursday afternoon, the Ladies' Friday Musical Club heard a vocal and piano program by Mrs Henry Cohn, Miss Edna Feldman, Mrs. Robert Friedman, Miss Dorothy Davidson, Mrs. Fannye Block Enzinger and Mrs. Robert Burnett. Mrs. David Goldsmith led the discussion.

MASONIC PARADE AND CORNERSTONE LAYING

Exercises at New $4,000,000 Temple on Lindell Near Grand Tuesday.

The cornerstone of the new $4,000,000 Masonic temple on Lindell boulevard, near Grand, west of the new Scottish Rite Cathedral, will be laid Tuesday afternoon after a parade in which 50,000 members of the Masonic and Eastern Star organizations are expected to participate.

The dedication will fit in with the program of the 104th annual assembly of Grand Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Missouri, which will open at 9 a. m. at the cathedral. Joseph E. McIntyre will direct the parade and the ceremonies at the new temple.

About 2000 delegates from 695 lodges in Missouri are expected to attend the assembly and participate in the parade which assembles at 1:30 p. m. on Kingshighway. Led by Gen. Eugene J. Spencer, as Grand Marshal, the procession will move east on Lindell boulevard to the scene of the ceremony at 2 p. m.

The first hour of the morning session of the assembly will be open to the public, this being an innovation by Grand Master McIntyre. Mayor Kiel will welcome the delegates and children of the Masonic Home will give a concert. At Tuesday's evening session, the chief address will be by Dr. Stratton Brooks, president of the University of Missouri, and on Wednesday evening by Jesse W. Barrett, Attorney-General of Missouri. Grand Master McIntyre's annual report will show that Missouri has 110,000 of the 4,000,000 Masons in the United States.

When the First Gray Hair Shows —Use Sage Tea.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

In Studio and Gallery

DURING the coming year, some of the most important transactions of the City Art Museum will be the consideration and acquisition of some of the objects selected in Europe this summer by Director Sherer who returned last Monday from a three months' journey abroad. If nothing prevents their shipment, a number of highly significant objects will arrive for the consideration of the Administrative Board within the next several months. Selection of these pieces has been made by Sherer with the idea of enlarging and perfecting some of the Museum's smaller collections, the nucleus of which necessitates rare and splendid amplifications. French enamels, English silver, Italian Renaissance bronzes and Greek, Roman and Egyptian antiques are among the important objects selected.

Sherer's accounts of his quests for these treasures would provide material for individual essays. Centers where works of art are produced and abound and those where works of art are sold are not always the same. Without question, he observes, but three important art markets exist in the world: New York, London and Paris. The two European markets present for the purchasers of museum objects a wider field of selection than does New York. This, no doubt, is a consequence of their proximity to the source of the treasures. The important dealers of Paris and London are highly skilled and specially trained to whom the expertizing of fine art objects is a creed. For the most part, they come of a long line of ancestors having contributed their share to the realization of the fine point at which the businesses are now operated.

No more intriguing subject can be imagined than the career of the handling of art objects, either from the standpoint of the buying or the selling. No parallel for this engaging occupation can be found anywhere in any other channels of business pursuit. An art amounting to an esoteric cult that is recognized only by those in the traffic is required of both buyer and seller in order for one to survive the other. A decided respect is felt from both standpoints when the fine ort in conducting these necessary negotiations is intelligently accomplished.'

A profound knowelge of art, abounding good taste and a sure sense of value plus keen wit, strict poise and firm judgment are some of the qualifications of the purchaser of important art objects. The possession of these qualifications, with a natural talent for the understanding of the beautiful, makes for the intelligent acquisition of fine treasures at reasonable prices.

In speaking of the prices of art objects procurable in Europe, Sherer emphasized again the well-known fact that fine ones are not to be snapped up for a song. Wide-awake dealers and collectors in every country, including America, make sure of that impossibility. It is folly to believe that the scores of great dealers are always on the "lookout" for fine things, who have the taste and knowledge to discriminate, and the money with which to secure them are going to lose track of any of the outstanding objects which may be obtainable from time to time when in circulation from one famous collection to another. And it is only such outstanding objects in which a museum would be interested.

At Venice, Italy, not many weeks ago, Sherer visited the International Exposition, which was in progress, and was tremendously interested in the American representation. At least a dozen paintings which have been exhibited in the City Art Museum's annual American exhibitions within the past three years, were included there. Also, four or five of the pictures which had been invited for this year's show now in progress at the museum, had been sent there instead.

Oscar Berninghaus' painting, which was among the group of pictures from the Taos colony, was one of the foremost in the division. Finding a St. Louis painter's work in Venice was like a greeting from home. The fact of the painting's entrance into this show is significant of the artist's ability and generalized reputation.

A NEW series of British railway posters has arrived at the Public Library and has been added to the group which has been exhibited in the Art Department for the past several weeks. Some of the new posters are shown with the first division in the art room although most are placed in the main delivery hall on account of the requirements for space.

All of the latest arrivals are the works of internationally famous English painters, the majority of whom are Royal Academicians or Associate members.

Advertising the service of the London Midland & Scottish Railway Co., Sir D. Y. Cameron, R. A., portrays in sturdy, burnished colors the "Scottish Highlands." Sir William Orpen, R. A., in his poster of "The Night Mail," shows two brawny enginemen in the cab of a speeding locomotive, the glaring flames beneath the boiler tearing a yellow hole through the rushing darkness.

The British Empire Exhibition at Wembley is most alluringly suggested by G. Spencer Pryse's colorful posters of "The Abundance of Africa," "the Glamour of the East," "Queen Elizabeth attending old St. Paul's after the defeat of the Armada," etc.

"Steel" and "Cotton" of the "British Industries" are represented by powerful posters by Richard Jack, R. A., and Cayley Robinson, A. R. A., respectively.

"Speed" by Sir Bertram Mackenna, R. A., "To Ireland" by Norman Wilkinson, "Nottingham C[illegible] tle" by Arensby Brown, R. A., [illegible] "Carlisle," the Gateway to [illegible] land," by Maurice Greiffen[illegible] R. A., are other outstanding [illegible] tures.

Get Ideas and Forget "Selling Talk," Mencken Tells Young Authors

Letters of Recommendation Irritate or Disappoint Editors—Vanity Leads to Great Majority of Manuscripts.

By H. L. Menken,

Co-Editor of the American Mercury Magazine With George Jean Nathan.

IN Mark Twain's autobiography, lately published, he refers four or five times to a plan that he was in the habit of executing every time some one out of a job came to him for a recommendation. Mark had an enormous acquaintance and much influence, and so he was constantly beset by such applicants. But he always refused to help them directly. Instead he gave them advice.

"Go to the man you want to work for," he would say, "and offer to work for him for nothing. Tell him you want the job and the chance, not the money—that you are ambitious, not needy. If he turns you away, go back. Soon or later he will give you your chance. After that, getting money out of him will be simply a matter of a short wait. If you are good he will press it on you, for if he doesn't someone else will."

Mark says that this scheme, in his experience, never failed to work. He gives four or five examples. I may add some more. I got my first newspaper job—indeed, the only job I ever asked for—that way, and during the years that followed I took in at least two dozen other men on the same terms. The good ones were getting wages within a few weeks; the incompetents were out of work again in the same short time. Once, as city editor, the warning moans of the business manager forced me to start a promising probationer at wages that were cruelly small. I lost him in two weeks to a rival paper, and afterward had the pleasure of luring him back at three times his first salary. I made room for him this time by discharging a reporter of long experience but no brains.

IT is now many years since I last blew up a speaking tube or made out an assignment book. My lines, in these melancholy later decades, have run away from five-alarm fires and in the direction of beautiful letters. Thus, young men ambitious to shine as journalists no longer tackle me. Instead, I am a mark for young men (and women) who aspire to stagger humanity as poets, as novelists, or as critics. That day is rare, indeed, which does not bring a manuscript to be read, pondered and appraised and that manuscript is almost as rare which is not accompanied by a request that I commend it to a publisher.

This request, at long intervals, I am sorely tempted to yield to, and, being weak, I usually do so. The result is nearly always disastrous. A year later either the publisher damns me for letting him in for a loss or the author accuses me of barking and catching for a nefarious publisher. There have been exceptions, to be sure, but not enough to ease the general biliousness. Thus I try to avoid the underlying folly as much as possible, and in normal times, when my health and resolution are good, I commonly manage to do so. Instead of a letter to Barabbas, the publisher, I give the applicant a few whiffs of good advice. It is, in substance, exactly like Mark's.

Nor is my motive in offering it any more than Mark's was, the simple and lowly one of avoiding a nuisance. There is something sweeter and more altruistic in it. What I always seek to convey is the harsh but profound truth that letters of commendation, when it comes to marketing a manuscript, are worth exactly nothing—nay, a great deal less than nothing. For one publisher who is fetched by them there are at least 10 who are irritated and made suspicious. The whole proceeding introduces personal feelings into a transaction that should be arctic and businesslike. The publisher, for all I know, may dislike me secretly, and with sound reason, thus it galls him to have to be polite to me, and prejudices him against the author I introduce. On the other hand, he may like me and even venerate me. In that case he is annoyed by the thought that his sentiment may intrude upon his judgment—that he may, and probably is, letting himself in for a loss in order to indulge a friendly impulse.

Yearns to See Letter Writers in Hell.

HERE I do not theorize in the empty manner of campus spychologists, for I am, in a way, a publisher myself, and for 10 manuscripts that young authors send to me in the hope that I will urge them upon others, there are at least 500 that carry the hope that I will buy them on my own account. Thus I may be presumed to penetrate accurately to the dark chambers of the publishing soul. What I find in my own recesses, when a manuscript comes in with a letter hitched to it, is simply a vast yearning to see its author down with the stone and the author of the letter in hell. The whole transaction is full of irritation. If the thing is bad, which it invariably is, I must write two nonsensical letters about it, full of transparent lies. And if it is good I am deprived of the pleasure of finding out the fact for myself—I am forced to admit in writing that someone else led me to it.

This pleasure is so great that being deprived of it is very unpleasant. In fact, I know of no experience connected with the publishing traffic that is one-half so agreeable. A publisher (or editor) when he finds anything good in the stream of garbage that gurgles over his desk all day is so happy that he sends for a bootlegger and kisses his wife. Such episodes splash his drab life with scarlet; they make any day a holiday. They thrill him as a surgeon is thrilled when he encounters a patient with gallstones, appendicitis, and a fractured skull. They are rare, and they are lovely. If they came every day he would go crazy with joy.

Yet the superstition survives, not only in the cow states but even in the great centers of culture, that publishers are inhospitable to newcomers in the literary shambles—that it is impossible to get a hearing without influence! What could be more idiotic? There is not a reputable publisher in America, whether of books or of magazines, who does not maintain a complex and costly machine for detecting talent through eight thicknesses of oak planking. He spends more upon it than he spends upon any other appliance in his works. He devotes half of his personal time to tinkering with it and watching it operate; he lies awake all night, groaning and tossing, whenever the suspicion rides him that it is not working smoothly and effectively. For some day, he hopes and hopes, it will seize for him a pearl of great price. Some day it will throw a "David Harum" into his till and so set pigeon blood rubies into the eyes of his elk's head watch charm and buy his son a seat on the Stock Exchange.

Ideal Manuscript Comes Without Letter.

IF young authors only knew how easy it is! The postoffice, for a few cents, provides all the introduction that is necessary. All else is supererogation and worse. The ideal manuscript, welcomed with hosannahs in every publishing office in the republic, whether it comes from a novice or a veteran, from the steppes of Iowa or the swamps of Mississippi, is one that arrives without any letter at all—one that contains no selling talk whatsoever, but simply the name and address of the author in the upper left-hand corner of page one—one that is typed neatly on opaque paper, so that it may be read without risk of blindness, and has every page numbered, and no corrections, and no blots of ink, and no thumb prints. Such a manuscript, however humble its source, gets a cheer everywhere, provided:—

There is something, alas, in the "provided." I put it down at once. The most perfect typing is not enough. Freedom from blots and thumb prints is not enough. Even the absence of a passionate letter from the critic of the Evening Patriot is not enough. There must be something more. Not to put too fine a point upon it, there must be what is roughly called, by the trade, merit—that is to say, there must be some sign that the author has something to say and knows how to say it—more, that it has not been said before—at all events, not more than a thousand times before. In brief, there must be some hint or indication in the manuscript, however arch and delicate, that the author composed it because ideas were raging and bubbling in him, and not merely because he wanted to write.

Vanity, Not Ideas, Urges Many to Write.

NINE beginning authors out of ten—perhaps 99 out of 100—come to grief by putting his horse behind its cart. They are led to try their hands at beautiful letters, not because they are urged by ideas, but simply because they are urged by vanity. The public prints make much of authors; they get a great deal more attention than the common run of men, and some of them even grow rich. It is whispered about that Cabell has bought a yacht, that Miss Cather has gone to her palace at Fiesole, that Masters gets $10 a line for his antidotes to "The Star-Spangled Banner." Dreiser's diamonds glitter from all the rotogravure sections; Sherwood Anderson is a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Hergesheimer breeds Kerry Blues.

The result is the avalanche of rubbish that makes editors gray and keeps publishers poor. Dreiser and Anderson are imitated and reimitated until the leter carrier begins dragging in imitations of the fifth degree. The trite, the obvious, the dull, the unimportant, the not true—all these dreadful things are squeezed and squeezed again. There is no life in this stuff, but only the ashes of books. It is flabby, pale, weak, trashy, second rate, secondhand. No direct and vivid experience of life is in it, no feeling, no thought. It is as bare of ideas as a college yell, an harangue before a rotary club, an editorial in a newspaper. It is born dead, and it stays dead.

But now and then a beginning author puts the books aside, and forgets Dreiser's diamonds and Hergesheimer's kennels, and goes to life itself for his material. Perhaps he has a sharp eye: he actually sees something. Perhaps, also, he reports accurately what he has seen. That was Sherwood Anderson's way—and the result was "Winesberg, Ohio." That wass Miss Suckow's—and there began to issue from her a series of strange and moving stories of the Iowa peasants. That was Ring Lardner's—and for the first time the baseball player, gaped at unseeingly by a thousand sports reporters for a generation, began to live and breathe.

I WAS FAT

NOW I ONLY WEIGH 130 POUNDS

Took Off 50 Pounds in 8 Weeks—No Diets, Exercises, Creams, Dangerous Drugs or Worthless Reducing Girdles.

Read About "SAN-GRI-NA" Latest French Way to Take Off FAT—It's Safe and Lasting.

"Dear Fat Folks: Let me tell you the truth about fat. Do not be fooled by believing you can check a fatty condition in your system by going through weakening diets, strenuous exercises, rubbing your body with creams or lotions, or by using any of the old drugs for reducing. If these were effective, THERE WOULDN'T BE A FAT MAN OR WOMAN IN THE COUNTRY today, as diets, exercises, creams and old remedies have been tried for years. Do not think for a minute that you can take off fat by wearing so-called reducing girdles—it cannot be done. I personally know the horror of being fat—I went through it. Not only did I feel ashamed of my figure, but, worse still, I never was well or happy like the rest of the girls—I always had pains in my back or limbs, my feet ached, my head was dizzy—ALL THAT BECAUSE I WAS OVERTAXING MY FRAME WITH 50 POUNDS OF EXCESS FAT WHICH NATURE DID NOT INTEND FOR ME TO CARRY. I had spent a small fortune trying everying known to reduce, but never succeeded until I found out about 'SAN-GRI-NA,' the discovery of a French scientist, who has devoted his life to the study of 'obesity' and has been able to compound in a small, tasteless tablet the ingredients necessary to gradually and safely eliminate fat from the body. If you want to reduce and at the same time improve your health, go to-day to your drug store, get a package of 'SAN-GRI-NA' (make sure it is 'SAN-GRI-NA'), take two small tablets before each meal and watch your weight go down. 'SAN-GRI-NA' is GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS. Not only does it do away with fat, but it acts as a tonic on the entire system. Do not accept any substitute, as 'SAN-GRI-NA' is the only thing which ever reduced me, and which I can truthfully recommend."—Madame Elaine, New York City.

3,000,000 NEW TREES FOR THE HOLY LAND

Slopes and Valleys of Palestine Being Reforested Under British-Jewish Direction.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, Sept. 20.—The treeless slopes and valleys of Palestine are gradually being reforested, according to an official Government statement just issued, which states that nearly 3,000,000 trees and 1,000,000 vines have been planted in the Holy Land between 1920 and 1924, the first four years of the administration of Sir Herbert Samuel as British High Commissioner.

Palestine became denuded of its forests owing to Turkish misrule and neglect, says the statement, which resulted in the abraison of some of the best soil from the hillsides and in the accumulation of malaria swamps in the valleys.

The work of the afforestation began 40 years ago when the first Jewish settlements were founded, but received a great impetus after the war when, under the British mandate, greater opportunities for development were opened to Jews.

The Government department of agriculture planted 1,285,062 trees during the past four years; the Palestine Foundation Fund and the Jewish National Fund, affiliated agencies of the World Zionist Organization, 672,933 trees; the Supreme Moslem Council, 14,700; while the balance were planted by individuals, mostly settlers on the Jewish agricultural colonies.

One of the first trees to be planted in Palestine was the Australian eucalyptus, which is now called by the Arabs the "Jew's Tree." Owing to its great power of absorbing water, the eucalyptus has been very useful in the draining of marshes, thus promoting the health of the country.

Voice of Union Labor and the Radical Press

The Post-Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorial or other articles in organs of labor unions and the Socialist and Communist Parties showing the tendency of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizens.

And Peace Reigned.

(From the Seamen's Journal, Labor.)

"ALL strikers who were not killed in the fighting were in hiding, in hospitals or in jails."

The foregoing is the last paragraph of an Associated Press dispatch from the Island of Kauai, H. T. Sixteen Filipino cane strikers and four policemen paid with their lives to re-establish industrial peace on the sugar plantations of the Hawaiian Islands. The strikers who were not stretched out in the morgue were in the hospitals, in jail or in hiding.

And peace reigned again!

The situation thus revealed should make Capt. Dollar green with envy. The Captain originated the idea of settling strikes by sending strikers to the hospital. On Kauai the morgue and the jail were added to the list. Can any one blame the balance of the Filipinos for going in hiding?

By the way, these Filipinos were imported by the Hawaiian sugar planters to break the economic strangle-hold of the previously imported Japanese laborers. Can it be that this is another case where the remedy proved to be worse than the disease? The census of 1920 showed 21,031 Filipinos as residents of the territory of Hawaii. The overwhelming majority are employed in the plantations.

Will the massacre of those 16 Filipino strikers make their countrymen more submissive to the planters' will? We doubt it. Industrial peace is established through just industrial relations. It is maintained by the frank recognition of the fact that workers are more than mere cogs in the treadmill of modern industry.

The Way to Peace.

(From the Seattle Union Record, Labor.)

THE way to disarm is to disarm, says the Nation. Little Denmark shows the way, for her Prime Minister is to introduce a bill in Parliament wiping out the army and navy and providing merely for an armed constabulary.

We are inclined to rank this as one of the greatest international happenings of the year. Of course by every imperialist and militarist teaching, such as is inculcated by our army and navy officials, Denmark is craven and cowardly and is ready to relinquish its national existence at the threat of an invader. To us this decision is the wisest step that Denmark could take, and the example ought to be followed at once by the other Scandinavian countries, by Belgium and Holland.

It is preposterous for a nation like Belgium to maintain an army. It can have only three probable enemies in the future—France, England or Germany. Against any one of them it would be helpless if it came to battle. Not by mobilizing its entire manpower could it hold its position for more than a day or so. The result of the war with Germany proved that. So why waste money and deprive its industrial life of hundreds of thousands of workmen for nothing? If Denmark remains unarmed and unafraid and is then attacked, it will have an infinitely greater power of appeal to the moral opinion of the world than if it were to throw away 40,000 or 50,000 of its citizens in a fruitless struggle.

Robbing People.

(From Milwaukee Leader, Socialist.)

THE capitalist press points the finger of scorn at Soviet Russia for exporting grain to foreign countries while millions are starving at home. How these pillars of capitalism love the poor people! If exporting wheat and starving citizens is an outrage in Russia, then exporting gold and denying credit to deflated farmers is an outrage in America. The Soviet Government does the one, the old party Government in Washington does the other.

Has the individual producer in the American Republic the right to dispose of his own product as he sees fit? Theoretically the capitalist editors claim he has. In practice he has not. When the Federal Reserve Board in collusion with Wall Street and old party Cabinets deflates the people, juggles the currency and helps the gamblers through the Departments of Commerce and Agriculture to fix prices against the people, the mass of the fundamental American producers are robbed outrageously.

The Moscow Government takes the wheat from the individual farmer, but pays him a good price and cuts out all the middle men and speculators. The Washington friends of the farmer connive with the predatory interests in beating the farmer out of his reward and then bonding him to the robbers. The Moscow Government can excuse its wheat exports by the undeveloped railroad system of Russia and the need for foreign credits. The American Government has no such excuse for serving Wall Street and pauperizing the people.

Sherwood Steel Racers Free During October

In Sherwood sidewalk Steel Racers all of the time-tested features of standard construction have been retained, while weak points and faults have been eliminated.

Built of finest quality steel throughout, wheels specially designed for free rolling, minimum friction and longest possible wear.

The reinforcing ridge, embossed on top and bottom of bridge between heel and toe plate, gives firmness and rigidity, prevents sagging or bulging and doubles the strength of the Racer without adding weight.

All bearing points are hardened and ground to prevent wear. The four-point contact of wheel bearings insures free and easy rolling against strain at any angle; balls cannot bind or pile up in ball race, thus minimizing ball breakage. Rubber cushions under the bolster absorb shock, provide easy running, and a short turning radius.

DLENESS AND RUSSIAN LOAN BIG ENGLISH ISSUES, LLOYD GEORGE WRITES

nterference With Justice in Case of Communist Editor Outrages British Traditions, He Says.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,
War Time Premier of Great Britain.

Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

is difficult for those who are engaged in a battle to present a ear, and almost impossible for them ever to give an impartial, ccount of it, even after the fight is fought and won. How can be expected to do so when the struggle is raging and he him- is one of the combatants? Nevertheless, there are certain fea- of this combat which may be recorded with confidence, even before the issue is determined.

is the bewildering effect of three-party system on the ping of the belligerent parties. the last election, Liberal and r directed the heaviest fire on Conservative position. The inant issue of that election was free trade or protection. If Tories had won, a general tariff d have been set up and Brit- would, for at least a genera- have become a protectionist try. Then the last citadel of trade would have been storm- nd the world would have pre- d the spectacle of an unbrok- eries of nations engaged in a f war against each other.

is easy to say that the fol- ing election would have result- a verdict which would have red the reversal of this policy. re is no example of such re- tion. Once the tariffs had set up, industry would have its best to adapt itself to the conditions—the old indus- built on the free trade basis, ld have collapsed and new in- ries, reared under the shelter the tariff wall, would have wn. New vested interests would been thus arrayed against a ge and the nation, as a whole, ld have been loth to face a new of business.

d From Protection.

From this contingency, the Lib- and Labor defense of free saved the country. It was no means a combined opera- for whilst they both attacked Tory lines at the same time, eral and Labor waged fierce fare against each other in hun- ds of constituencies. But on main issue of the struggle they in accord and the conse- was that, in constituencies e only a Liberal or a Labor idate stood, in one case Labor Liberal and in the other Lib- voted Labor.

w the process is reversed. This the main issue upon which Labor party challenged the ict of the country arrays st them both the older par- On the Russian loan and in- erence with the course of jus- in the prosecution of a Com- ist editor for inciting army iny, Liberals and Conservatives united. They both regard the as an act of pernicious folly the latter as a peril to the al order. The result will be t, in constituencies where the servatives have no chance of ing the seat, they will be more ined to stand aside and vote ral, in order to defeat the So- ist; and similarly, in constitu- es where a Liberal has no ce of being ejected, the party be disposed this time not to est the seat and vote Conser- ve, rather than Labor.

nless I am mistaken in my es- ate of the state of mind of the ion, it profoundly dislikes the of lending money to the Rus- Communists; and interfer- with the course of justice, ow- to pressure of a political char- r, outrages the traditions and incts which arise from the his- ical struggles that once rent this ntry into warring factions and mately led to civil war. The t for emancipation of the ju- ary from the control and direc- of the executive lasted for erations and is associated with of the most discreditable, but with some of the most glorious odes in English history.

is a far cry to the days of the rts, but national memories are erbially long and it is well that should be so. The fight for ependence of the judicial ad- istration and the final triumph associated with the greatest es in the annals of British Liberalism. Hence the attitude adopted by the Liberals of today towards the Government action in the Campbell case. Had the Attorney-General, after due reflection, decided not to institute prosecution on the ground that it was not worth while giving this wretched communist print, the advertisement inseparable from a state trial, then no Liberal would have questioned his discretion.

The circulation of the offending paper is, or was, only 3000 a week. A prosecution would have distributed its mischievous appeals to soldiers and sailors amongst millions of readers. There was therefore much to be said for ignoring the obnoxious paragraph. But once the Attorney-General had issued his warrant and the widest publicity had been given to the case, to withdraw it under pressure from politicians was to revert to the spirit of the Stuarts and to subordinate justice to political expediency. It was creating a dangerous precedent. Hence the feeling excited amongst the Liberals by the action of the Government in this case.

The Real Struggle.

But the real electoral struggle will center around the Anglo-Russian loan and the conspicuous failure of the Government to deal with the problem of unemployment. The country does not much relish the idea of making arrangements to lend Germany £12,000,000 ($60,000,000) to enable her to extricate herself out of her currency difficulties and to place herself in a position to regain competitive prowess in the world markets. But it is, on the whole, prepared to acquiesce in that loan, seeing that it is part of an international compact to which all the great Powers have agreed. At any rate, no one doubts that Germany will repay the money advanced her.

But the Russian loan is on quite a different footing. The loan will be thrice that of the British share of the German loan and Britain is to stand alone in finding and guaranteeing the whole of this money. The advance, moreover, is to be made to a Government whose fundamental policy is the repudiation of all obligations entered into with capitalists and capitalist governments. There is no security that the money which reaches Russia will not be spent on strengthening the bolshevik army or in some way tightening the grip of that ruthless despotism on the millions it now holds in bondage.

Both the Liberal and Conservative parties are as deeply committed to legitimate trading with the Russian people as the Labor party is. And as to the question of recognition, the soviet government is no worse, in many respects, than the czarist regime. On the whole, it is less corrupt. During the war, it is true, huge advances had to be made to Russia by France and ourselves to keep the Russian armies from utter collapse in the early days of the war. But no British Government would ever have dared to suggest, in prewar days, that Britain should guarantee a loan of any kind to the government of the Czar.

Which of the three parties will win first place in this election and which second? It is too early to predict, but I feel confident that the Russian loan will not secure the majority.

Unemployment Issue.

On unemployment, the Government has also a bad case to submit to the electorate. Here they had for years pitched their promises at an altitude which was beyond the height of a normal electioneering platform. They unquestionably led the working population of this country to believe that they had, ready for application, schemes that would solve this problem. They have failed to produce one of these ambitious plans. They have lived exclusively on the ideas of their predecessors. During their term of office, the numbers of unemployed have increased. Their handling of the question has lacked vision, imagination and courage. They will pay heavily at the polls for this failure. Here the contrast between promise and performance is yawning to be bridged over by any acceptable explanation.

These are some of the reasons why I am of the opinion that the high hopes of Labor will be dashed in this election.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Twenty Years Younger.

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair with a simple home mixture.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, 1/4 oz. of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off.

I want the names of 15,000 people who are suffering from deafness, dullness of hearing or head noises caused from catarrh. I have an original home treatment for these distressing conditions which I want you to try without cost or expense. I suffered for many years with catarrh, deafness and head noises, tried many different treatments. Had two surgical operations all of which failed to give permanent relief. I began experimenting with myself and finally found a treatment which completely healed my catarrh, restored my hearing and stopped the terrible head noises. I want you to try this splendid treatment entirely at my own expense.

15,000 TREATMENTS TO BE GIVEN THIS MONTH

FREE!

I am so proud of my treatment and so anxious to help others suffering with deafness, head noises or catarrh that I will have packed and ready for shipment 15,000 demonstration treatments which I will give away in the next 30 days absolutely free. I am doing this to quickly introduce my original home treatment to sufferers of deafness or head noises caused from catarrh. 2000 TO SOLICIT FUNDS FOR NEW MASONIC TEMPLE

Workers Organized in Campaign to Raise Money for Completion of New Building.

50,000 MASONS TO BE ASKED TO SUBSCRIBE

Structure Will Cost $3,000,000 of Which $2,000,000 Has Been Raised—Goal Now Is Million.

A campaign organization of more than 2000 men and women has been formed to seek funds the latter part of this week for the completion of St. Louis Masonic Temple, now in course of erection on Lindell boulevard, just west of Grand boulevard. The structure, when fully completed, will represent an investment of more than $3,000,000. About $2,000,000 already has been raised for the building, and an additional million is the goal of the solicitors, who will begin their canvass this week.

Julius Seidel, chairman of the Executive Committee of the campaign organization, said last night that the plan of raising funds provides for the solicitors to call on about 50,000 Masons and members of the Eastern Star in city and county. He said it was the expectation of the Executive Committee that the soliciting would not take more than ten days, and that the solicitors would raise in the neighborhood of a million and a half.

Will Hold Opening Dinner.

The 2000 or more solicitors will gather for an opening dinner at Moolah Temple on Thursday evening. At this meeting the instructions of the campaign will be reviewed and the names of prospects given to the solicitors.

William A. Sommers, chairman of the Campaign Committee of the money-raising organization, said last night that more than 300 teams of solicitors were in the course of organizing. He said about 250 of these teams already were fully enlisted and that the others were minus an average of one or two team members. There will be eight members on each team.

"The first report on the progress of the campaign will be made at a noonday meeting to be held at Hotel Statler on Monday, Oct. 27," Sommers said. "The campaign organization is so large that we will not be able to accommodate all the members at the meeting. We have arranged to have all chairmen and captains present and in addition one team member from each team. This will give us a gathering of more than 700 persons.

"These report meetings will be daily for the week of Oct. 27. They again will be resumed on Nov. 3.

Funds Needed.

"The members of the board of directors of the Temple Association cannot continue work on the temple unless funds are available, and in an effort to obtain the money the campaign plan was adopted."

The proposed new Temple is just west of the St. Louis Club and the Scottish Rite Cathedral on Lindell boulevard. It will be equivalent to a 14-story building. The iron work has been virtually completed and the placing of the stone work will begin shortly, it was announced last night.

The vice chairmen of the campaign are W. Frank Carter, Edwin H. Conrades, William F. Gephart, Clarence H. Howard, William T. Koken, John G. Lonsdale, M. E. Singleton, Aaron Waldheim. The Executive Committee is composed of 150 business and professional men. Dorsey A. Jamison is president and James M. Jonas secretary of the association in charge of the temple.

To Speak Here on Missions.

Mrs. Oner S. Dow, president of the Des Moines branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, will be the principal speaker on a program to be given at the Eden M. E. Church, Nineteenth and Warren avenue, at 10:30 a. m. today, by the Young Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. The latter group is composed of the daughters of members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary organization. The purpose of the program is to raise funds by voluntary contribution to carry on missionary work in other countries.

OBSERVE 'FATHER'S DAY' TODAY

Members of Lions' Club Will Attend Special Services.

Members of the two St. Louis Lions' Clubs will attend special Fathers' day church services tonight at the Hagerty Methodist Church, Bompart and Fairview avenues, Webster Groves. Today will be observed as Fathers' day throughout the world by Lions' Clubs, the idea having been fostered by that organization. At tonight's services the Rev. Dr. Draper, pastor of the church and a member of the Lions' Club, will deliver a special address. A musical program will be given.

A CAUSE OF WOMEN'S ILLS

WOMEN OFTEN THINK THEY HAVE HEART TROUBLE, INDIGESTION, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, ETC., WHEN IT'S SIMPLY IRON STARVATION OF THE BLOOD.

Many women believe they are weak and nervous as a result of age, worry and overwork; they think that their disturbed digestion, headaches, heart palpitation, shortness of breath, pains across the back, etc., are due to some serious disease instead of the real cause—iron starvation of the blood. This is proven by the fact that when many of these same women take organic iron for awhile all their alarming symptoms quickly disappear and they become strong, robust and healthy. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living cells and tissue. Without it nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the strength out of it.

If you are not strong and well do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, but take some organic iron—Nuxated Iron—at once. But be sure it's organic iron and not metallic iron which people usually take and which is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Organic NUXATED IRON is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples and it often increases the bodily and mental vigor of weak, worn-out women in two weeks' time.

Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.

Superfluous Hair, Roots And All, Quickly Go!

At last! A genuinely effective method of removing unsightly hairy growth has been discovered. The phelactine process does not merely take off the hair-ends; it actually removes the roots! It does this quickly and harmlessly. It does not act anything like the depilatory, electrical, or other methods. Phelactine is non-odorous, non-poisonous, non-irritating. Get a stick of it from your druggist, follow the simple instructions, and have the satisfaction of seeing the roots themselves removed.

Time to Face the Facts

"So much has been said against the use of patent medicines that I have had a strong prejudice against them. But after four years doctoring with six different doctors, without results, for acute indigestion, gastritis, constipation, appendicitis and other ailments I was said to possess, I was encouraged to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, seeing what it had done for a friend similarly afflicted. I also was entirely relieved of my trouble, and am sure this medicine will do all and more than is claimed for it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

BOSTONIAN GIVES $25,000 TO RESTORE ENGLISH CATHEDRAL

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, England, Oct. 2.—The fund for the strengthening and repair of Lincoln's glorious thirteenth century Gothic cathedral has been increased by a donation of $25,000 from A. Farwell Bemis of Boston, who has long been interested in the work which has been going on here for several years.

It was discovered 10 years ago that Lincoln Cathedral, the Angel Choir of which Ruskin declared to be as fine a piece of thirteenth century architecture as the world holds, was in danger of collapse. Great rifts and cracks in the towers and walls of the fabric were traced to an unusual phenomenon in England. This was an earthquake back in medieval times, whose ravages on the cathedral structure were not disclosed until a few years ago.

The work of strengthening this medieval fabric is accomplished by pumping liquid cement into the cracks and fissures.

WIRE FENCE TO GUARD CROWD AT NEW SPEEDWAY

Innovation at Track in North Carolina Expected to Prevent Auto Racing Fatalities.

Special precautions to prevent fatal accidents when racing cars skid have been taken on the new automobile speedway at Charlotte, N. C., which is to be opened Oct. 25 with a 250-mile event in which 15 of this county's most noted drivers are entered.

The Charlotte "bowl" is a mile and a quarter in circumference, banked to an angle of 45 degrees; is almost circular in design, with grandstands on both sides of the inclosure; has accommodations for over 75,000 spectators, who are afforded a clear and unobstructed view of the entire track and of all the thrilling happenings upon it; has parking space inside the track for over 8000 cars, and outside for 10,000 more, and above all else, has the latest and most effective safety devices, for drivers and spectators.

There will be no "board fence" between the track and the infield—a fruitful source of accidents when madly careening racing cars plunge through them, as through a hoop of tissue paper, once the cars escape the control of their drivers. It is this type of fence which has occasionally permitted injuries to spectators.

Neither will there be the rigid, unyielding concrete guard fence, which, while usually protecting onlookers, is death to drivers and mechanics whose cars collide with it at high speed.

The "danger spots" will be protected by a strong, yet resilient, heavy steel wire guard fence, which has been subjected to thorough tests and has been shown to be capable of successfully resisting the plunge of a racing car. It offers at at once complete protection to on-

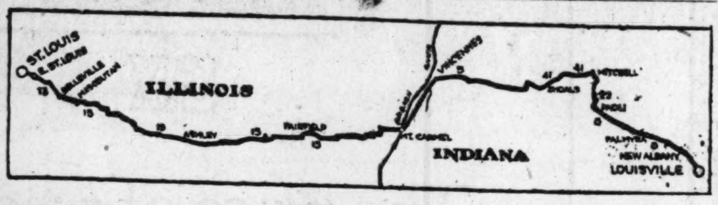
It is this type of fence which has occasionally permitted injuries to spectators.

Neither will there be the rigid, unyielding concrete guard fence, which, while usually protecting onlookers, is death to drivers and mechanics whose cars collide with it at high speed.

The "danger spots" will be protected by a strong, yet resilient, heavy steel wire guard fence, which has been subjected to thorough tests and has been shown to be capable of successfully resisting the plunge of a racing car. It offers at at once complete protection to onlookers, and the best chance of any type of fence to drivers, owing to the resiliency combined with strength of the material used, which is wire of square mesh and continuous, interlocking weave.

Among the drivers who are entered in the Oct. 25 event are Roy Harroun, Harry Hart, Ira Vail, Bob McDonough, Antoine Mourre, Ernie Ansterberg, Earl Cooper, Benny Hill, Harlan Fengler, Tommy Milton and Peter di Paola.

Saving of 42 Miles Driving Between St. Louis and Louisville Now Possible



ST. LOUIS and cities in Southern Illinois as far down as Cairo are now 42 miles nearer any all-weather road to Louisville and that part of Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky as a result of recent opening of Highway No. 15 from Belleville across Illinois to Mount Carmel and completion of road projects in Indiana. There is a saving of about an hour and a half in driving time as compared with the route hitherto used through Vandalia, Marshall, Ill., Terre Haute and Bloomington, Ind. Also, by the new route Eastern motorists bound for Memphis, New Orleans, Little Rock and other parts of Louisiana and Texas save time and distance.

From St. Louis go through East St. Louis, Belleville, Ashley and Fairfield to Mount Carmel. As has been told, this highway now is concrete, except for a mile or so of cinders west of Okawville and six miles or so of dirt road, that does not get bad when wet, east of Fairfield. From Mount Carmel go north two miles to the upper ferry, just below the falls of the Wabash River, then follow gravel road northwest to Vincennes, then go east on gravel on Route No. 5 to Shoals, Ind., then east on No. 41 to Mitchell, then south on No. 22 to Paoli, and southeast on No. 5 to Palmyra, New Albany and Louisville.

Except for a detour east of Palmyra, which is only fair in dry weather, the route in Indiana is over good gravel roads.

The distance from St. Louis over this route are: Mount Carmel, 151.2 miles; Vincennes, 174.7; Paoli, 258.3; Louisville, 305.0.

COLLINSVILLE DETOUR ON INDIANAPOLIS ROAD NOW DONE AWAY WITH

THE highway to Indianapolis and Chicago via Collinsville, Effingham and Marshall, Ill., is again open all the way, except for a short detour just beyond Terre Haute, Ind. There is no longer a detour at Collinsville.

Traffic from St. Louis to Chicago has pretty well swung away from the Marshall route and, instead, is going via Springfield, Ill., and Bloomington.

AUTO CLUB PATROL TRUCK GOES TO AID OF AIRPLANE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—When the fleet of highway patrol service trucks was put in service by the Automobile Club of Southern California to cover daily 2000 miles of main roads, it was not expected the drivers would have to rescue aeroplanes. This is what happened, however, a few days ago near Capistrano Mission on the coast highway between Los Angeles and San Diego, where a mail plane had been forced to land.

The driver of a patrol car saw the plane make the forced landing and, having been a member of the British air service, realized that something was wrong.

LITTLE CHANCE OF FEDERAL TAX UPON GASOLINE

Opinion at National Capital Is That Attempt to Enact Such a Law Is Sure to Be Vain.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Indications now are that any attempt in Congress to impose a Federal tax on gasoline will be defeated. Also, the next session is likely to see a determined effort to do away with Federal taxes on automobiles, trucks and parts. The American Automobile Association, the National Automobile Dealers' Association and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce are expected to lead this fight.

While there may be further agitation for a Federal tax on gasoline, such a tax cannot be put through chiefly because the states are more and more resorting to the gasoline tax. They are raising large sums of money by it and so object to the Federal Government invading the same field.

Moreover, the automobile interests of the country and organizations concerned in the welfare of the owner of the auto vehicle are strongly opposed to a Federal auto fuel levy.

One Attempt Failed.

Efforts were made by the Treasury Department about two years ago to impose a general horsepower tax and a gasoline tax on all autos and to require Federal registration. This recommendation was made to the House Ways and Means Committee. But such a protest arose from the country against such a plan that it was blocked.

Under the Federal law there is a 3 per cent tax on trucks and a 5 per cent tax on other automobiles. Last year about $150,000,000 was raised by this levy.

Congress last session cut the tax on accessories, tires, and parts from 5 per cent to 2½, a reduction

FEBRUARY TO SEE USUAL SPRING CAR SHOW IN ST. LOUIS

Dealers Hope to Make It Eclipse in Interest Any Show Yet Held in This Country.

By CAPT. ROBERT E. LEE,
Manager of the St. Louis Automobile Shows.

The attendance at the fall closed automobile show, which was held the week of Oct. 6 to 11 in the Downtown garage building at Ninth and Walnut streets, was not nearly so large as is the attendance always at the regular spring show which is held in February.

The automobile dealers of St. Louis did not expect that the attendance would be large. They were offering a somewhat exclusive line, all closed motor cars, and their purpose was to place before interested buyers who were in the market for winter vehicles only the lines they wanted to see. We succeeded in doing this in a highly interesting way, as every distributor of motor cars in St. Louis except one, showed his entire line of closed vehicles at our show.

Show Expensive.

From the standpoint of sales of motor cars and of the names of prospects gathered the show was a brilliant success. It is doubtful if ever in the history of any city there were as many and as varied a line of motor cars shown as our closed car show. We displayed cars there that have not before been seen in any city in the United States. They were new lines just out of the factory, not yet in the hands of dealers and St. Louis, therefore, led the entire country in showing 1925 lines of closed automobiles. Other cities such as Chicago and Philadelphia are now or a little later showing the same cars.

An automobile show is expensive to stage. Rental for the building necessary is very high. Decorations, in order to give cars the proper

NIGHT TRUCK OPERATION ON BIG SCALE SUGGESTED TO EASE CITY CONGESTION

Manager Smith of American Automobile Association, Visiting St. Louis, Discusses Ways to Solve Traffic Problems.

By JIM LANCE.

Putting trucking in large cities on a 24-hour basis, with operation of the larger trucks mostly at night, as a means of solving the traffic problem in congested districts, is suggested as a possibility by Ernest Smith, general manager of the American Automobile Association, who was in St. Louis the past week. Smith, who is the active executive of the largest association of motorists in the world, predicts great things from the organization of bus and truck operators which the A. A. A. is fostering.

"In every city," said Smith, "there is constant complaint of congestion and traffic jams in business districts between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. These districts are virtually deserted from 6 p. m. until 8 a. m. Much of the congestion is due to the thousands of trucks that operate in the daytime. It is entirely possible that the day will come when most of these trucks will be operated only at night in business sections, and that railroad warehouse and store-receiving and shipping departments will be open all night. There really is no more reason why trucks should cease operating at night than that railroad trains should tie up at sundown.

Would Lessen Congestion.

"I do not mean that all truck operation should be stopped in the daytime. But I do say that thousands of trucks could be gotten off the congested streets days, and that stores, for instance, could deliver at night to the suburbs and outlying districts and then redistribute to homes in the daytime. I saw this idea worked out in Indianapolis during the war, when we handled a tremendous amount of short-haul freight that way."

Smith, naturally, is a close student of the traffic situation and in his tours of the country and work at Washington headquarters of the A. A. A. has gotten some definite ideas on safe driving and control of motoring. Something sane and practical must be done to reduce the number of traffic accidents, he believes, or enactment of drastic laws will make the situation worse than at present.

License Driving Tests.

As to the moot question of examining car owners before issuing licenses to drive automobiles Smith said: "Unfortunately, there is much difference of opinion over this. In the Western states, which are so largely agricultural, there seems to be general objection to tests for driving licenses. In most states, you just walk in, pay down your money and get your license. In the East, where greater traffic congestion has forced realization of the menace of the incompetent and irresponsible driver, there is more general acceptance of the idea that there should be inspection of one's qualifications before he should have a license to take an automobile or truck on the public roads.

"I think that eventually we must have some sort of control and some idea of a man's ability to see and hear and drive intelligently. There are too many persons driving cars who can not even read and understand road signs, laws or traffic regulations. No man can drive a street car or a locomotive, which run on their own rails, unless he has proven that he is capable of doing it intelligently and safeguarding the public as well as the property of his company. Yet in most states any man, no matter how untrained, no matter how incapable, can take an automobile and ramble as he will over the highways. We have records of cases without number where persons driving cars for the first time have caused accidents. Such a

CONFERENCE IN ST. LOUIS OVER AUTO CLUB ROWS

A. A. A. Official Comes as Peace Emissary to End Differences in Illinois and Kansas City.

An effort to bring the various associations of motorists in this part of the country into direct affiliation with the American Automobile Association and to iron out the differences that at times have been heated, is now reaching a climax.

In furtherance of it Ernest N. Smith, general manager of the A. A. A., conferred in St. Louis Thursday with representatives of the automobile clubs of Alton and St. Clair County, Ill., and left the same night for Kansas City to discuss with the Automobile Club of Kansas City its differences with the Automobile Club of Missouri.

Situation in Illinois.

Most of the motorists' clubs in Illinois are affiliated with the Illinois State Association, which cannot, or will not, join the A. A. A. because of conflicts growing out of the agreement, when the A. A. A. and National Motorists' Association recently merged, that in places where there were two automobile clubs the younger would drop out or consolidate with the older. Thus far, also, it has seemed impossible to agree on a basis for affiliation of the Illinois State Association with the national association.

The Springfield (Ill.) club has withdrawn from the State Association and has joined the A. A. A. Other clubs in Illinois have asked for affiliation with the A. A. A. and have been told that they could join if they withdrew from the Illinois State Association. Those who attended Thursday's conference, which was held at the Automobile Club of Missouri, were optimistic as to the outcome.

The Kansas City Trouble.

The situation in Kansas City re-

AUBURN

Forget, if you can, all the brag and bluster you hear every day about automobiles. The only way to know what a motor car is and what it can do is to put it to test—and then compare. Do this with the new Auburn 8-In-Line—today. It is nothing new to offer a demonstration—but it is new to promise that no salesman will ride along with you and talk, talk, talk—trying to make black seem white and white seem black.

Open the throttle of the Auburn 8-In-Line as far as you dare. There are cars today that shout about 60, 65 and 70 miles an hour as if there were something wonderful about such speed. Try the Auburn 8-In-Line! Then pace it down to a walk, to a crawl—feel the easy, silky pull of those eight cylinders in line—not a jiggle, no funny little noises to make you want to shift gears—a motor as smooth at 2 or 3 miles an hour as it is at the top of its stride.

Then tackle a steep hill. Take the bottom at just a loafing speed—then feed the motor gas—then slow up—then speed up again—in other words, do things on a hill you have never done before, or ever dared try before. Then bend your ear over the hood of the Auburn 8-In-Line and, while somebody presses the accelerator, listen to the sweet low-toned purr of it.

Last, and very important, compare the price of the Auburn 8-In-Line with the prices of other eights. We want you to get right down to fundamentals—judge an honestly built product as it should be judged—judge it strictly by its fine performance. Boiling it all down, and without using flowery language, Auburn is quality merchandise at a daringly low price.

GRAVOIS ROAD WORK PROGRESS REPORTED

Concrete to Point Two Miles Beyond Fenton Should Be Finished by Dec. 31.

Good progress is reported by the State Highway Department on the improvement of Gravois road from the end of the concrete to and around Fenton. Traffic out Gravois road is being detoured at Sunset into Denny road and then via Watson road, while other traffic goes out Big Bend road into Denny road and Watson road.

Construction is being pushed on the bridges between the concrete and the bridge over the Meramec at Fenton, on the new bridge about 1000 feet down the river and on the bridge at House Springs. It is hoped to have the concrete laid to the river and to the Jefferson County line, about two miles beyond Fenton, by Dec. 31.

His Moral Right.

The time is coming when the man who takes pride in knowing nothing about his car will be questioned as to his moral right to drive.

NIGHT OPERATION OF TRUCKS ON BIG SCALE SUGGESTED

condition of affairs is not sensible, and it can not continue.

A Card System.

"Probably some satisfactory compromise will be worked out. For instance, in some places a driver is given a card and a license without examination. Every law violation or accident for which he is blamable is noted on the back of the card at the time by the police officer. This serves as a guide to prosecutors and magistrates. Also, after a man has had a few notations on his card, he naturally hates to have to show it. He may not regard one or two notations seriously, but when he has several he is likely to be far more careful than before.

"There are possibilities in development of that idea. A certain number of notations on the card could mean automatic deprivation of the right to operate one's car or any other motor vehicle. In that way, those who now object to a licensing examination might be placated and at the same time the careless, reckless or incompetent driver could be gradually eliminated."

Opposes Headlight Dimming.

"Headlight dimming also is a moot subject," Smith said. "Much correspondence, impressions gained on trips through the country, and summing up apparent newspaper opinion, convince me that the general feeling is that headlight dimming is wrong in principle. Most motorists seem to feel that this problem is best met by keeping lights on and using the proper lenses to do away with glare.

Just the other day there was a serious accident in Maryland which was directly in point. Two motorists, coming from opposite directions, encountered a group of people on the highway. Both dimmed their headlights. The result was that neither could see clearly what was the exact situation, and there was a bad smash. If they had kept their lights on, they would have seen what was ahead and could have stopped in time. If lights are focused so that they do not glare into other drivers' eyes, why rob the driver and the rest of the motoring and walking public of the protection to which they are entitled?

"Here I would like to emphasize something—and that is the advisability of pedestrians keeping on the left-hand side of the road so that they face approaching vehicles. It is easy for them to walk on one side of a road as the other, and so doing is a great safeguard."

Trucks and Bus Problems.

Turning to the bus and truck road problem, Smith said: "We all know that bus and truck operators and passenger car drivers have been growing apart in their conception of road use and courtesy. This situation must be met, and this is one of the reasons why the A. A. A. is organizing bus and truck operators. The truck man must be brought to realize that mere size does not give the right to exclusive use of a highway and that he is responsible to the car owner whose vote and taxes have made possible the good roads on which he operates his truck. At the same time, the car owner must realize that many of the good roads and other motoring advantages he enjoys would not be possible but for the commercial possibilities of the highways.

"A number of State Legislatures have been vaguely aware of what they erroneously deemed the menace of big commercial vehicles to their roads, and the result has been a number of ill-considered laws which have made interstate motor truck traffic increasingly difficult and expensive. They mean to protect the roads, but they have gone too far. For instance, in some States it costs as high as $50 a month in taxes and fees to operate a truck. This is prohibitive. A truck may start on an interstate trip carrying 28,000 pounds. It may run 100 miles and then, crossing into another State, be restricted to a load of 20,000 pounds. This also is prohibitive.

"We are keenly aware of the necessity of sane efforts to solve traffic problems, and have created a traffic and zoning committee, on which a number of the ablest men in the country will serve, to study the situation and draft a constructive program as the American Automobile Association's contribution toward making traffic safe as well as expediting it.

"In the same way, we hope that through the bus and truck division we will be able to put into effect a constructive program for equitable and uniform legislation, sane regulation and taxation, and also to foster a practical road construction program that will bring about highways of widths and thickness calculated for the kinds of traffic that must be carried."

of about $20,000,000 a year, and exempted truck chassis selling for less than $1000. This means a reduction of $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. In other words, there has been a reduction of between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 in the Federal taxes on the automobile industry and purchasers of machines.

Auto Taxes and Road Funds.

Because more states are applying the gasoline tax and in some cases raising the rate of the gasoline tax, the amount collected by the states is steadily climbing. This year the collections will be much larger than in 1923, when they totaled $36,813,951. In the first six months of 1924 they totaled $32,430,410.

This means that for the entire country the gasoline tax collections will exceed $64,000,000. The states also in the first six months of 1924 collected about $200,000,000 from registrations, licenses, and permits. Probably 20 per cent more will be collected from this source before next Jan. 1. The Federal taxes on the automobile industry this year, roughly, will amount to about $130,000,000.

These figures do not take account of the fact that 26 states also have personal property taxes against automobiles.

Taking all taxes into account, it will be seen the automobile in this country is bearing a tax of about $500,000,000.

Apporximately $1,000,000,000 annually is being expended in the entire nation on roads.

Reason for Being Careful.

Motor tourists are warned not to transport nursery stock, such as young white pines, from one place to another owing to the prevalence of blights and nursery diseases. One of the most common of these is the white pine blister rust now being found in the New England and Lake States. A young tree dug up and brought home may mean sacrificing a lot of shrubbery at home that is many times more desirable.

UTOMOBILE POUND QUIRY IN OHIO CITY

hile the National Automobile mber of Commerce is busy ad- ting a widely-criticised law ding for impounding cars d by motor law violators, are observing the diffi- being encountered by the of Cleveland in keeping peace its automobile "pound" or veyard" and are speculating on angle of this matter of en- ing respect for the law through drastic measures.

Cleveland officials are in the t of an investigation into con- that have developed in the "graveyard" for automobiles have been taken over by the from motorists who would r to be better off walking.

t seems that there has been lesale thieving of parts, even l units, of the cars so im- ded, and the officials are in- ted in learning how this sort thing happened while the ex- s were supposed to be under ce surveillance.

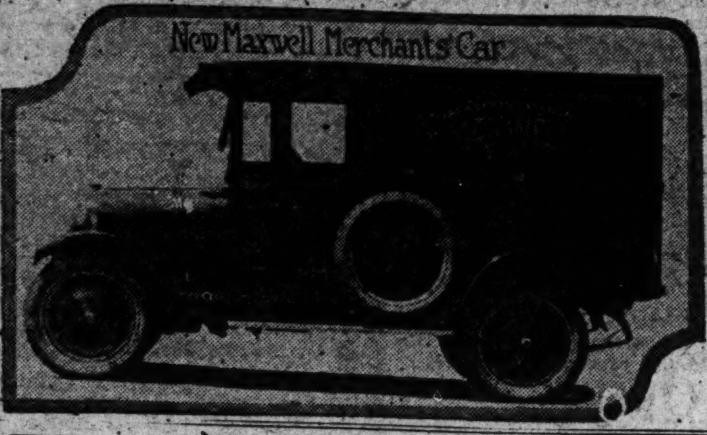
Tops, seat cushions, tires, spark , even whole engines, have steriously" disappeared, it is orted. Observers of conditions the Ohio city are speculating as whether these impounded cars not actually being transferred, cemeal fashion, into vehicles ch will serve the lower crust of torists just as well as the cars ch have been taken away from

There is also much speculation to whether a repetition of such ditions in all cities under the A. C. C. plan would not mean plete defeat of it and whether would not be better to seek some e for lawlessness that will not g in the possibility of police rruption.

MORE TRUTH THAN GAS.

British motorists still insist upon lling tyre with a "y," but just y is not clear, for in modern rds the guess has been pretty ll eliminated.

New Entry in Commercial Car Field



On Auto Row

Business Forces Expansion.

THE increase in Packard business being done by the Berry Motor Car Co. has made necessary extension of its quarters. Work has been started on a new building on the lot adjoining the company's quarters, at 2201 Locust street. The new building will provide a used-car salesroom in front and additional service facilities in rear. This additional service space will be used for adjustment and jobs which it is not necessary to send to the shop. Heretofore it has been necessary to send small, as well as the large, jobs up on the elevator because of lack of ground floor space. The new quarters are to be ready for occupancy about the first of December.

New Salesmen on Auto Row.

S. S. Scott, who for three years was manager of the City Club, is now a sales representative of the Moon Motor Car Co.

Gus Evens has joined the sales force of the Willys-Overland factory branch here. He is stationed at the Overland tent at Wellston.

Change in Ford Model.

An attractive change has been made in the Ford fordor sedan, which now is upholstered in a soft, durable cloth of slate blue background with royal blue stripe. Head lining and floor rugs harmonize in coloring, and the rear window curtains are in blue silk.

New Oakland Executive.

A. R. Glancy has been appointed vice president and assistant general manager of the Oakland Motor Car Co., and will be in direct charge of factory production. He has been president and general manager of the Waukesha Malleable Iron Co. at Janesville, Wis., another General Motors division.

Prizes Awarded in Contest.

The Willys-Overland Co. has just distributed $25,000 in prizes in its "pacemakers'" contest in which its sales organization all over the country took part. Winners of the principal prizes hailed from New York, Florida, Pennsylvania, California, Kansas, Illinois, Ohio, Virginia and West Virginia. The Illinois winner was N. Goldsmith of Chicago, there were 8249 dealers and salesmen in the contest which resulted in the sale of 25,743 Overland and Willys-Knight cars in the two months, July and August, that it lasted. The contest was so conducted that men in the small towns competed only against men in small towns of about the same size. Dealers were grouped in six divisions according to population of their cities. The prizes included six Overland touring cars, $11,225 in cash, 78 chests of silver and 500 gold medals.

Lee to Speak at Topeka.

A joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of Topeka, Kan., the automobile trade of that city will be addressed Tuesday by Capt. Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association. Lee goes to give the Topeka automobile trade the benefit of his experience in automobile association work and to talk to the Shows Trend of Car Sales.

Deliveries of General Motors cars by dealers to consumers in September totaled 49,188 cars and trucks, compared with 60,111 in the same month a year ago; and, further, with 54,871 in August this year. From Jan. 1 to the end of September there were delivered 543,924 General Motors cars and trucks by dealers to users, compared with 588,137 in the same period last year, a decrease of 7.52 per cent. Sales to consumers by dealers were as follows:

Sells Well in Its Home City.

Statistics published by the Missouri Motor List Co. show that the Moon ranks sixth in number of automobiles registered in St. Louis in September. This is the fifth constructive month that Moon has advanced in position or rank on the basis of number of cars registered in St. Louis, it having stood tenth in May, ninth in June, eighth in July, and tied for sixth place in August. During the past week the Moon Motor Car Co. received a telephone order from the Moon distributor in Los Angeles for 140 of the latest models, including 100 roadsters. The roadster has proven one of the most popular models yet produced by Moon.

Warning to Hold Speed Down.

Motorists are warned to slow down to State speed limits when passing through towns on Illinois State highways, as several fatal accidents have caused officers to be stricter than usual. They are especially rigid along Highway 25 between Kankakee and Urbana.

Another Anti-Carbon Discovery.

Another anti-knock ingredient for mixing with gasoline is being introduced in St. Louis by the Anzene Products Co., 105 South Second street. Anzene, as it is called, is said to prevent engine knock, prevent and remove carbon and increase mileage and motor power. It is the result of two years' experimentation and testing. It can be added to gasoline in automobile tanks or is mixed with gasoline by devices on pumps at filling stations.

They make a car quick and easy to handle, more responsive to the steering wheel, and better riding, for they lubricate the bearings all the time the car is in motion—constantly, positively, automatically. You simply use these automatic cups with your present lubricator fittings and fill occasionally with a Wedford-Critz, Alemite, Zerk, or Dot lubricator. Thousands of others are enjoying them. Why shouldn't you? See your dealer or us.

Why not be modern and drive a Star?

THERE are sound reasons for the full, modern equipment of the Star car.

The standard transmission—3 speeds forward and one reverse—is used by all of the better cars, because it is best adapted to gasoline motors. It saves fuel, increases speed on hills, and greatly improves control under all conditions.

Vacuum fuel feed with supply tank in rear of car is another modern feature found on the Star. This equipment insures ample supply to the carbureter as long as there is any gasoline in the car, regardless of hill grades, makes it unnecessary to get out of your seat at filling stations, and puts this inflammable material in a safe place back of the passengers.

Modern people demand modern facilities in their homes and have a right to expect them in their "home on wheels"—the family car.

The Star has full electrical equipment including self-starter, lights and ignition.

Other important modern features are demountable rims, Alemite lubrication, water pump, and many more that any Star dealer can show you—all included in the low prices.

FORD MOTOR OIL

At Last---a Real Motor Oil for Fords

Noticeably Better——Starts and Stops Smoothly

THE COLUMBIA OIL CO., INC., after extensive research, has perfected a scientific oil for Fords. Many so-called anti-chatter oils and compounds, though stopping the chatter in bands, have overlooked the great importance of lubrication, and some of these compounds have contained so high a per cent of fatty acids as to be extremely harmful to bearings and other parts of motors.

FORD COLCO OIL

is manufactured from a high gravity, triple filtered PARAFFIN base oil, which eliminates to the greatest possible degree the formation of carbon, and is guaranteed to contain nothing injurious to any part of a motor. COLCO immediately eliminates all transmission chatter and LUBRICATES PERFECTLY.

FORD COLCO OIL

is NOT an experimental product but has been TRIED AND PROVEN and has been successfully sold for over fifteen months. Now that it has been so generously accepted, we are broadening our field by giving everyone an opportunity to try it BELOW COST OF MANUFACTURE.

Considerable Difference.

Whoever started the story that one car is as good as another and that there isn't much difference in the basic ideas of automobile design ought to get the prize for making the worst guess. Get behind the wheel of a half-dozen cars and the results will surprise you. In some respects some cars are altogether different from others, and you'll be amazed to see what a mistake you've made in supposing that when John Jones shifted gears he was handling the same sort of clutch and transmission as you are accustomed to. There are a lot of sales points, to be sure. But it will pay you to investigate even if it merely serves to convince you that the automobile is going right ahead getting better every day.

Watch for This One.

It sometimes happens that after you have switched off the engine with the idea of stopping for a passenger to alight the latter will change her (seldom "his"?) mind and tell you to go on a little farther. Carelessly you switch on the ignition again and the engine starts off again before it has come to a dead stop. The danger lies in the fact that one of the cylinders may fire at the wrong time, reverse the engine and send a hazardous backfire through the intake.

THOUSANDS SEE HOW CHEVROLET CARS ARE MADE

Open House for Three Nights at Huge Assembling Plant in St. Louis.

More than 30,000 St. Louisans took advantage of the Chevrolet Motor Company's invitation to inspect its huge plant here three nights the past week, and saw one of the modern miracles—hundreds of pieces of steel and iron, wood and leather and fabric turn in an hour and a half into a complete automobile and dart out of the factory under its own power. The crowds each evening were so large that they taxed the ability of Chevrolet employes to care for them, and there was seldom a time that the crowds waiting to enter numbered fewer than 3000.

Few of the thousands realized before how large the plant is. It fronts some 800 feet on Union boulevard and runs back about the same distance along Natural Bridge road, with four wings, each 800 by 100 feet and three stories high. The site occupies 105 acres, and the plant has 1,050,000 square feet of floor space. At present it is divided in two, one-half being used for assembling Chevrolet cars, while the Fisher Body Corporation uses the other half for building closed bodies for Chevrolets.

Largest of 7 Plants.

The local plant is the largest of 7 assembling plants maintained by Chevrolet, the others being located at Flint, Mich., with a capacity of 550 cars a day; Tarrytown, N. Y., 550; Buffalo, N. Y., 350; Oakland, Cal., 350; Janesville, Wis., 350 and Cincinnati O., 300 cars daily. Parts of Chevrolet cars are manufactured in a number of Chevrolet plants. Motors are made at Flint, axles and forgings at Detroit, transmissions at Toledo, castings at Bay City, Mich., and the rest in other factories. The parts are then shipped to the assembling plants where they are put together and then shipped to the dealers in the various districts.

In 1923 the St. Louis plant assembled 124,870 Chevrolet cars and used 496,000 tires. Working at capacity, the plant can assemble 600 cars a day and turns out a car complete in an hour and a half. In a month it uses 4,500,000 feet of lumber, 25,000 gallons of paint and enamel and mountains of leather, fabric, springs and parts of various sizes.

Crowds Show Interest.

The crowds showed keen interest in every process. Women were most interested in the cutting, fitting and proper sewing of tops, curtains and seat and back covers and the trimming and upholstering of the bodies. Many of the men were impatient until they reached the assembly lines, where they could see motors and rear ends and chassis being put together. Everybody was interested in the flowing of enamel onto the bodies, which were then sent through 220-foot ovens to be baked, each body receiving three coats of the enamel. Fully as much interest was shown in the department where bodies of de luxe models were being given three sprayed coats of Duco.

There was always a crowd of men watching the cold and hot riveting of frames where the clatter of pneumatic hammers and the glare of rivet furnaces was incessant. Their attention was closest, however, when they reached the main assembly line and saw springs and rear end fastened to the frame, which picked up the motor and then started down the slowly moving line to receive a hundred and one parts from generator to steering gear, and finally the body, then a supply of oil and gasoline and, with a whirl of starter, dart off the end of the line and out the door for a test run.

Always there was a chorus of "Ohs" and "Ahs" for every step in the assembly, and always it was evident that most women were most interested in the externals of the car and that few women, but at least a goodly proportion of the men, cared for the things that make a car a moving thing that at times seems almost alive.

Arrangements for welcoming the crowds to the plant were in the hands of E. W. Fuhr, regional manager; W. J. Wildgen, plant manager; G. L. Thorpe, office manager, and H. J. Klingler, zone sales manager.

CHEVROLET DOES 27.34 M. P. G.

Result of 100-Economy Test on St. Louis Streets Is Announced.

The Chevrolet touring car which finished a 100-hour endurance and economy run in St. Louis last Saturday covered 2254 miles without tire or car trouble of any kind. The car was run quietly and at the speed which experience has shown is most economical for long-distance running.

The Big Four Auto Co., which conducted the test, reoprts that the car used only 82.5 gallons of gasoline in running the 2254 miles, givin gan average of 27.34 miles to the gallon. It reports also that only three quarts of oil were used and that three quarts of water were put in the radiator at the start of the run and no water was added at any time during the test.

The run was one of hundreds conducted by Chevrolet dealers all over this country.

Hiram P. Maxim

Calls Willys-Knight "Smoother Than Most Sixes and Eights"

HIRAM PERCY MAXIM, President of the Maxim Silencer Company, says: "The Lanchester Balancer certainly takes out the vibration. It makes the motor smoother than most six and eight-cylinders on the road today."

No Vibration

Ever since automobiles have been built, engineers have been everlastingly striving to conquer engine vibration. Now the new Willys-Knight achieves positive engine smoothness by a device so simple and efficient that all engineers are wondering why it wasn't invented years ago. . . .

The Lanchester Balancer . . . the discovery of Dr. F. W. Lanchester, F. R. S., builder of one of the most expensive motor cars in Great Britain. By securing the United States rights for the use of this remarkable invention, Willys-Knight introduces in America an entirely new conception of enjoyable motoring.

This is still another triumph for a car already famous for its engine. The Willys-Knight sleeve-valve engine actually improves with use. Never needs valve-grinding. Never needs carbon-cleaning. Owners report 50,000 miles and more without an engine adjustment.

Everybody is talking about Willys-Knight's vibrationless performance—and everybody who rides talks of the thrill of it. If only for the sake of a new experience, drive a Willys-Knight over the road today at all speeds.

Add Amazing Endurance to Unequaled Results

The success of the Chrysler Six, which has made it literally the talk of the country, is well founded.

It is not due to some single engineering innovation of a spectacular nature. It is a success that involves every phase of performance and ownership.

It is based on such fundamentals as power production and application, weight distribution, space engineering and the essentials of economy.

It is a success that has completely changed prevailing ideas of automotive design deemed essential for finer motoring. It has swept into the discard the cumbersome and the wasteful.

To cap the climax come such records as the recent performance at Fresno, Calif., when a stock model covered 1,000 continuous miles in 1007 minutes, 54 seconds. To unprecedented results is now added positive proof of amazing stamina and dogged endurance.

CLEVELAND SIX NON-STOP RUN TO BEGIN TOMORROW

St. Louis Distributor to Take Part in National Contest for $5000 Prizes.

A Cleveland touring car will start at 8 o'clock tomorrow on a 48-hour economy and durability run from in front of the Cleveland Motor Sales Co., 2650-52 Locust boulevard. The run will end at 8 a. m. Wednesday morning at the same place, and will be similar to others held all over the country by Cleveland six distributers in a national "one-shot" non-stop contest for prizes aggregating $5000.

Winners will be decided on the basis of most mileage on least gasoline consumption. Thus there will be no possibility of a car winning with a short run on which a freakishly low gasoline consumption record may be made.

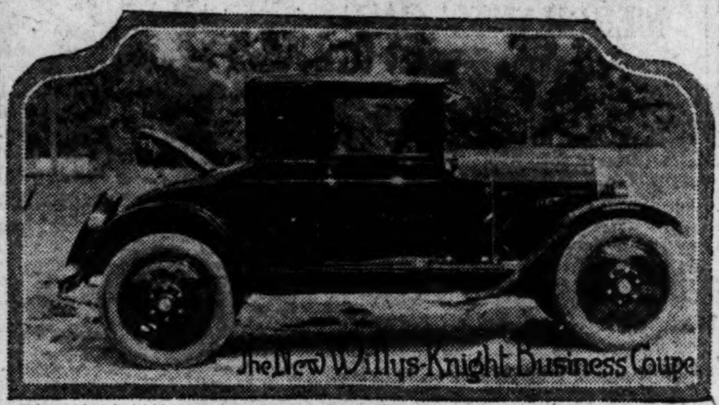
D. E. Sawyer, vice president of the Automotive Electrical Service Co., will act as official observer and will travel with the car. One of the drivers will be G. A. Morris, a salesman for the Cleveland Motor Sales Co. Ed Meissner, president of the company, will have charge of arrangements for the run.

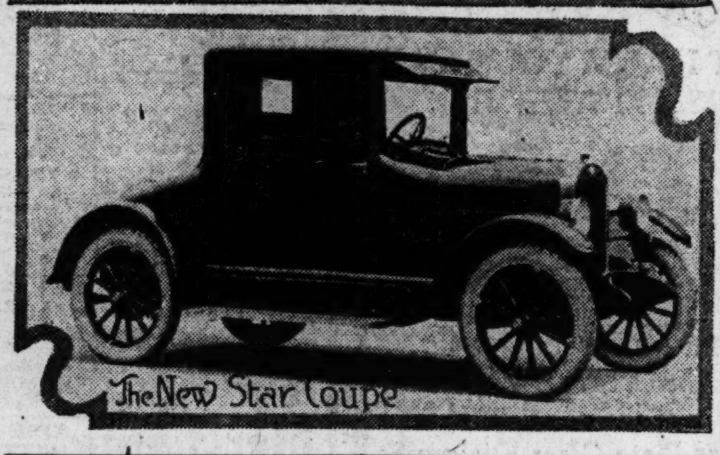
The hood of the car will be sealed when the run starts tomorrow morning, and an accurate check of gasoline, oil, water and mileage is to be kept.

All Cleveland cars entered in the national contest must be strictly stock and have balloon tires and full equipment. Tops may be lowered, but may not be removed.

The national contest is called "one-shot" after the Cleveland six's lubricating system, whereby pressure on a plunger lubricates 23 points on the chassis. Prizes include: Four-door Cleveland sedan de luxe, first prize; standard coupe, second; standard touring car, third, and cash prizes up to $300.

New Models in Well-Known Lines





CLEVELAND ADDS TWO NEW MODELS

Two new 5-passenger styles are announced by the Cleveland Motor Sales Co. as the later additions to the Cleveland Six line of closed cars for 1925. They are the 4-door sedan de luxe and brougham.

Patterned along European body design, which conveys an impression of length, accentuated by low, sweeping contour, blending in harmony with the radiator, rounded cowl and full-molded fenders, these cars are the most attractive closed types Cleveland Six has introduced.

The bodies are finished in blue devil blue below the belt and black above. The raised bead which runs around the car is in contrasting color, and raditors are nickeled.

An innovation is the new self-ventilating one-piece windshield.

The 4-door sedan de luxe and brougham, featuring the mileage motor, the "one shot" automatic chassis lubricating system, balloon tires and 4-wheel brakes—the latter optional equipment at a slight extra cost.

Handy Makeshift.

If the fan belt is slipping a little and there are no tools with which to raise the pulley, it is a good plan to sandpaper the inside of the belt. This cleans off any grease that might cause it to slip and gives it better traction on the pulleys.

DE LUXE MODELS IN ROLLIN LINE

Announcement is made by the Rollin Motors Co. of two additional Rollin models — a de luxe sedan and a de luxe coupe. They are not to supplant the present popular designs.

"So far as these de luxe models are concerned, we merely are adding custom bodies to supply the demand for richer designs and more costly upholstery with finer appointment," says A. E. Spielberg, head of the Franklin Motor Car Co. of St. Louis, which distributes Rollins.

All Rollin models are now coming through with two new chassis refinements — a new steering design which makes steering with balloon tires as simple and easy and free as steering used to be with the old-fashioned cord tires. Also, Rollin engineers have improved the transverse rear spring, which adds a quality of greater riding comfort not before attained. No change has been made in the motor.

These cars are specially painted. Cushions and seat backs are equipped with Marshall springs. They are upholstered in silk mohair, the same quality used in all the high-priced closed cars.

DODGE BUS MOTOR HAS 4 CYLINDERS

Through a typographical error, it was stated in the Automobile Section that a Dodge bus, which was driven here from Indiana, was powered with "the regular Dodge six-cylinder engine." The Dodge engine always has been four-cylindered. There is no intention of making it anything else.

Camouflage for Tires.

Where it is desired to paint old spare tires merely to make them look better, and not to preserve them against deterioration, paint one side and the tread of each tire, leaving the inner side just as it was so that when a spare is to be used the unpainted side can be displayed.

PAIGE BROUGHAM IN DE LUXE STYLE

The latest addition to the Paige line, a four-door brougham de luxe, is announced by the Newell Motor Car Co. It developed out of the desire of a factory official to drive a car that would be "different."

One of the Paige executives ordered a brougham finished in Buckingham gray for his personal use. When it was delivered it was placed in production and the new de luxe brougham is the result.

The soft gray of the body intensifies the long lines of a brougham. Striping in French gray, nickeled radiator and bumpers and the landau arms serve to add a touch of smartness.

The brougham has wide seats designed to accomodate five passengers. It is upholstered in gray mohair and equipment is complete.

Chassis and 70 h. p. motor are the same as in other Paige models. The brougham has 131-inch wheelbase.

sults largely from a revival of old differences between the Automobile Club of Kansas City and the Automobile Club of Missouri. Members of the State organization charge failure by the Kansas City club to make effective a definite agreement and insist that if the agreement is not carried out, the Kansas City club must be barred from mebership in the A. A. A., which since the amalgamation with the N. M. A. has 515 clubs in good standing and more than 600,000 members.

For a while after the Automobile Club of St. Louis became the State motorists' organization it had a branch office in the Kansas City club's office. Then a new board of directors took office in the Kansas City club and differences developed which resulted in the State club maintaining a separate brar until the recent agreement was made, since which time the branch office has been discontinued.

Charge Breech of Agreement.

When the A. A. A. and N. M. A. merger was proposed, the Automobile Club of Missouri was representing the A. A. A. in Kansas City. It was virtually decided that the Kansas City club would function as the Kansas City representative of the A. A. A., and as the office of State association in its territory, and also would carry on its social activities separately.

Here is where the new trouble has arisen. The members of the State Association assert that the Kansas City club is almost wholly social and does not provide properly for the average motorist in its district. Instead of becoming an out and out motorists' club, it is alleged, the Kansas City club has passed a by-law establishing a service division whose members have no right to vote on club activities, whereas control is in the hands of members of the club's social organization.

"We don't care what the Kansas City club does socially," said a director of the Automobile Club of Missouri. "What we insist on is that if it is to be affiliated with the A. A. A. and represent it and the State association in the Kansas City territory, it keep its agreement with us and become truly representative of motorists as a whole."

John Smith and His Car

by FREDERICK RUSSELL

IN packing his kit Smith thought he had left troubles out, but a second trip proved otherwise. Caught on the road "10 miles from the nearest garage" and two miles from the nearest farmhouse, there was nothing to do but to look for the cause of trouble himself. An idea of the incident can best be gathered from his version of it, as he gave it to me in our conversation upon his return home.

"I wasn't up in the air this time," Smith was saying, "because I followed your suggestion to keep eliminating the possible causes of the trouble until I found the bad actor."

"And you found it?" I asked.

"That was the real trouble," he retorted. "I didn't know how to remedy it. So there I was, beholding the trouble without the slightest idea of how to get rid of it. And, by the way, motorists aren't very friendly any more, are they? I waved my hands at the only four cars that passed, and none of them even slowed down. Fact is, I think they went faster."

"I imagine they did, Smith. Motorists have changed decidedly during the past few years, but I doubt if the rank and file of them are less friendly. Conditions have changed so radically that motorists naturally have to fit into the new scheme of things. A friend of mine who drove cars as far back as 1901 thought nothing of leaving his machine standing on the street in front of his office while he took the train for another city for a few days. Now, even though many cars are equipped with two locking devices, owners keep eagle eyes constantly upon them. It is the same with road travel. Comparatively few cars are stranded on the road nowadays. If a driver has trouble it is usually some small thing; and other drivers in passing figure that they would be intruding if they stopped. I have often had people stop to ask if I needed help when I was perhaps just making the gas mixture a little richer for the approaching hills. When a driver offers his services a few times and finds that they are not needed, he is very likely to pass by some chap who really needs assistance."

"Yes," Smith interrupted, "but I made it plain enough that I needed help."

"You made it too plain," I replied. "There's just another point. The automobile was once a novelty, used by a few pioneers for a mere handful of purposes, mostly for amusement. Now that conditions have approached the point where it is the exception not to motor, the automobile has proved itself useful in hundreds of ways. Many of these uses have been abused, naturally. Because of recent hold-ups those four drivers who saw you urging them to stop simply stepped on the gas and got away from you."

"Well," Smith commented, after a pause, "I'm just as well pleased, because I was literally forced to get out of my own predicament. When that cone clutch of mine stuck, I was certainly in a bad way. But I know what to do now."

"So? It was the clutch, eh?" I asked. "Driving along at a smart pace, admiring the scenery and forgetting to keep your foot off the clutch pedal so as not to be slipping the clutch? Then the facing swelled and the trouble commenced? Couldn't throw out the clutch, and so couldn't change gears?"

All of which Smith admitted. He also admitted that his "remedy" was to kick on the pedal until he strained the clutch mechanism out of adjustment. Then he began insinuating that I should have let him buy a car with a clutch of some other type.

"It's six to one—half a dozen to the other," was my immediate reply. "The fault of the plate or multiple disc clutch is slipping; that of the cone clutch is sticking and grabbing. Neither type of clutch will give any trouble if properly used. Learn to keep your foot off the clutch pedal when it isn't necessary.

"And if you are ever caught again with a 'frozen' clutch don't try to force it out. Simply stop the engine, placing the gears in 'low,' turn on the ignition and press your foot on the starter button. There will be a slight strain on the starter motor, but as the engine is warm it will start at once. If you will then run along fast in low speed the clutch will come out when you press down hard on the clutch pedal. The clutch seldom sticks fast when it is revolving at high speed."

Smith had made a pretty good fight against trouble, but he was ready to admit then that he could have saved himself a lot of expense and effort by using his head. It always pays.

Next week: Profiting by Trouble.

IMPROVEMENTS IN FLINT "55" CARS

A number of improvements have been made in the Flint "55" sedan and coupe, although the chassis remains unchanged. The length of the coupe body has been increased and the collapsible seat now has heavy upholstery and high back. One-piece adjustable windshield and instantaneous automatic window lift have been installed.

The appearance of the sedan has been improved by rounding the rear top corners to a graceful curve conforming to the general lines of the body. The rear seat is five inches wider, and easily carries three passengers without crowding. The color choice is blue, maroon or Flint gray, with velour mohair upholstery. An improvement is noticed in the artmetal hardware, inlaid with enamel. Closed car convenience has been greatly added to by the instantaneous automatic window lifts.

The one-piece adjustable windshield, with automatic window cleaner, is a new feature of the sedan. The cowl ventilator is flush with the body when closed.

REFINEMENTS IN NEW STAR COUPE

A new Star coupe is being shown by the Spalding Motor Co., distributor of Stars and Durants in this district.

It has many improvements, not the least of which is increased "leg-room" for the driver, and greater width o fthe seat, which accommodates three moderate-sized people.

An innovation is the one-piece windshield, with two ventilators above. There also is a cowl ventilator, which insures plenty of air in teh driving compartment. The windows have crank-type regulators, both doors are equipped with locks, and the interior hardware is nickel, satin finish. The upholstering is a brown stripe French velour. Inside door panels are covered with leather, and have pockets with fasteners. There is a large compartment in the rear deck.

The body is painted Flint blue, with two fine lines of white striping. The back panel above the moulding is covered with leather. Cord tires are standard equipment. Balloon tires and four-wheel brakes may be had at an additional cost.

MAXWELL BUILDS MERCHANTS' CAR

A merchants' car has just been added to the Maxwell line, it is announced by the Ward Motor Co., Maxwell and Chrysler distributor, and is built in three types—panel, low side express, and high side express. The panel body is for bakers, department stores, grocers and similar lines of business. The express bodies are more suited to the needs of plumbers, commission merchants, baggage transfer agents, wholesalers and the like.

Body rumbles have been eliminated by use of special anti-rattler strips. Special attention has been devoted to the comfort and convenience of the driver. Vestibule doors, for instance, slide on ball bearings parallel to the body and the driver can enter easily from either side. The panel body load capacity of 1000 pounds.

Bodies on the new model are by Martin-Parry.

SOLID VALUE

WHAT constitutes VALUE in a motor car?

In a country boasting more than 15,000,000 car registrations, we know that the public has learned to value motor cars for the quality and cost of transportation service they render.

The Durant Four line is characterized by substantial quality in design, finish, upholstery, appointments, equipment and engineering.

The low gasoline and oil consumption and small maintenance expense result in very low costs for the quality and comfort of the transportation service regularly rendered.

The elastic long-stroke motor, yielding exceptional hill-climbing power and minimizing gear shifting makes it "a delight to drive a Durant."

LOOP AERIAL OFFERS MANY ADVANTAGES

Picks Up Less Static and Has a Marked Directional Effect.

Not all radio receiving sets can operate with a loop instead of an outside antenna, and not all sets which can use a loop get the best results with it, due to location or shielding. But when a loop can be used, and where no special difficulties arise because of location or other unusual circumstances, loop reception offers many advantages.

First of all, it is a well-known fact that most aerials pick up the greatest energy from the direction in which the aerial is pointed. This peculiar property of an aerial is taken advantage of in a loop which can be rotated at will, thereby increasing the amount of energy from the station desired and decreasing that from the station not desired.

The benefit of the directional effect can be secured with a loop in a few seconds, whereas it may take hours to secure the same effect with an outside antenna.

Static, the familiar foe of radio, is not yet conquered, but the loop has been a most important factor in the advances which have been made thus far in controlling and minimizing it. A loop will not pick up a large amount of static, which an outside aerial does. Fans who

Picks Up Less Static and Has a Marked Directional Effect.

Not all radio receiving sets can operate with a loop instead of an outside antenna, and not all sets which can use a loop get the best results with it, due to location or shielding. But when a loop can be used, and where no special difficulties arise because of location or other unusual circumstances, loop reception offers many advantages.

First of all, it is a well-known fact that most aerials pick up the greatest energy from the direction in which the aerial is pointed. This peculiar property of an aerial is taken advtange of in a loop which can be rotated at will, thereby increasing the amount of energy from the station desired and decreasing that from the station not desired.

The benefit of the directional effect can be secured with a loop in a few seconds, whereas it may take hours to secure the same effect with an outside antenna.

Static, the familiar foe of radio, is not yet conquered, but the loop has been a most important factor in the advances which have been made thus far in controlling and minimizing it. A loop will not pick up a large amount of static, which an outside aerial does. Fans who use an outside antenna appreciate how much this means, especially in summer. And it means a great deal in winter, too, to be able to operate without climbing on the roof and putting up an aerial coated with ice which has fallen down into the back yard pulling all the spars and supports with it.

By the use of a loop, many adjustments are eliminated because to use an outside antenna properly the circuit must be tuned with the condensers in couplets which sometimes requires three additional controls. If a loop is used only one control is required usually making an ideal set. By turning a single dial the operator can select stations at will without further adjustments.

Women appreciate the advantages of a loop, because they are sightly.

Loops make it easier to locate the causes of trouble in a set when such develops. Many an amateur knows by bitter experience after tearing down a set to locate trouble inside, how often the trouble was due to the fact that a broken connection outside was grounded on a metal roof.

The Acme Apparatus Co. of Cambridge, Mass., has issued a booklet entitled "Amplification Without Distortion," which, among other useful information, explains in detail how to construct loops of various sizes to meet different requirements.

Wherever a loop can be used, there is very much to recommend it over an outside aerial. Even when distance is desired, sets operating on a loop and having efficient, low-loss condensers get exceedingly satisfactory results. It is not thought much of a trick nowadays to get the west coast now and then on a good four or five tube reflex set.

Effects of Location.

A radio set located in a frame dwelling will in many cases receive greater distances and will receive with more volume than a set located in an apartment house, which, as a rule, has a superstructure of steel. The steel structure, being a conductor of electro-magnetic waves, has the effect of absorbing radio waves, therefore taking away some of the energy that ordinarily would reach the antenna.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

THE ALLEN BRADLEY COMPANY, electrical manufacturers, announce new designs on all radio parts formerly made by them, and also the addition of several new items to their radio line.

The new Bradleystat, Bradleyleak, Bradleyometer and Bradleyohm have been reduced to less than one-half their former size. All are constructed for "one hole" panel mounting and suitable arrangements are provided for baseboard mounting, a feature of particular interest to the experimenter. These items are all made with graphite disc type of resistance which provides a non-inductive, noiseless and vernier control. They are attractive in appearance, all metal parts being highly nickeled and polished.

The Bradleystat may be used universally with any vacuum tube now being sold, and without any change in connections. The Bradleyleak is adjustable between ¼ and 10 megohms with terminals so arranged that fixed condenser may be mounted on the side of gridleak. The new table mounting construction permits it to be mounted in the rear of the set, if desired.

The Bradleyohm is a variable resistance used for resistance coupled amplifiers, "B" battery eliminators, filter circuits and in many other radio circuits. It is made in three ranges, 10,000 to 100,000 ohms, 25,000 to 250,000 ohms and 50,000 to 500,000 ohms.

The Allen Bradley Company also announces the Bradleydenser, a variable condenser in 11, 23 and 43-plate sizes. The Bradleydenser is a brass plate low-loss type, with one-bearing construction, which makes possible a very low minimum capacity. A detachable dust cap is provided over the stationary plates. The mounting plate and rotor are grounded, thus eliminating hand capacity effects.

Another new product is the Bradleyunit, a non-inductive, accurately calibrated fixed resistor, for resistance coupled amplifier hookups. They are obtainable in 12,000, 50,000 and 100,000 ohm ratings.

The Kurz-Kasch Company of Dayton, Ohio, has recently placed on the market a complete line of dials, the three and four-inch sizes of which are equipped with an extremely simple form of fastening. The dials are of genuine bakelite and can be obtained in either clockwise or counter-clockwise readings.

By means of a tapered and slotted brass bushing the usual set screw is eliminated. The dial and knob are separate pieces; the tightening of the knob on the dial causes the split bushing to contract giving a firm grip on the shaft.

Dials of smaller size can also be obtained which will match those of the larger sizes. All sizes can be obtained in either black or mahogany and the clean-cut engraving work is filled with a white filler that will not chip and fall out nor get yellow with age.

It remained for the Raven Radio Incorporated to evolve what probably is, at the present time, the simplest of superheterodyne "kits." The kit consist of an oscillator, filter circuit coil, and a unit consisting of three radio frequency transformers with as many sockets mounted thereon, and completely wired in a moisture-proof box with binding posts plainly marked. With this kit, superheterodyne construction becomes so simple that practically no previous radio experience is necessary to enable the complete assembly of a highly efficient receiver by a novice.

Charging from both sides of the wave has finally been accomplished, with the result that all of the current is used instead of only half. This gives double charging efficiency and cuts the cost in half.

This has been achieved by the Detroit Battery Charger Co. Because of its double charging capacity, it has been named the Debco Duplex.

It charges "A," "B" and "C" radio batteries and any type of automobile battery.

Another feature of the Debco Duplex Charger is that the primary and secondary windings are separate. This is different from most chargers on the market, which have but a single winding.

Where radio sets have "grounded" circuits and through oversight are left connected with the battery while it is being charged, the set is likely to be burned out in the case of single windings.

By keeping primary and secondary winding separate it is impossible to burn out the sets with the Debco Duplex because only sufficient current is allowed to pass through to charge the battery, and therefore cannot injure the set. No high voltage can possibly reach the battery or the set.

"Where's My Car?"

He demanded of the doorman, somewhat impatiently, after waiting on the theater steps.

"It's coming, sir," answered the doorman, "I can see it."

In a whimsical moment you may have addressed this question to yourself, or to empty space.

"It's coming, sir," answered the Future. "I can see it."

Just as surely as a man is ambitious and thrifty; just as surely as he loves his family and decides that they are entitled to all the health, happiness and comfort that another man's family enjoys, does the future contain a car for him.

It can be the very near future—today in fact.

There are many good cars, some comparatively new, exchanged for later models There are many others sold because the owners are leaving the city.

These cars are in the showrooms of progressive automobile dealers. They are listed over in the Classified "Automobiles" columns of the Post-Dispatch, and they are waiting for you to see them and buy the one that meets your requirements.

Wherever it is, your car is coming to you if you keep your mind on it. That means arranging all the necessaries. It means that you mean to have a car.

EASILY CONSTRUCTED ONE-TUBE RECEIVER

Employs Reflex Principle With Crystal Detector; Gives. Good Amplification.

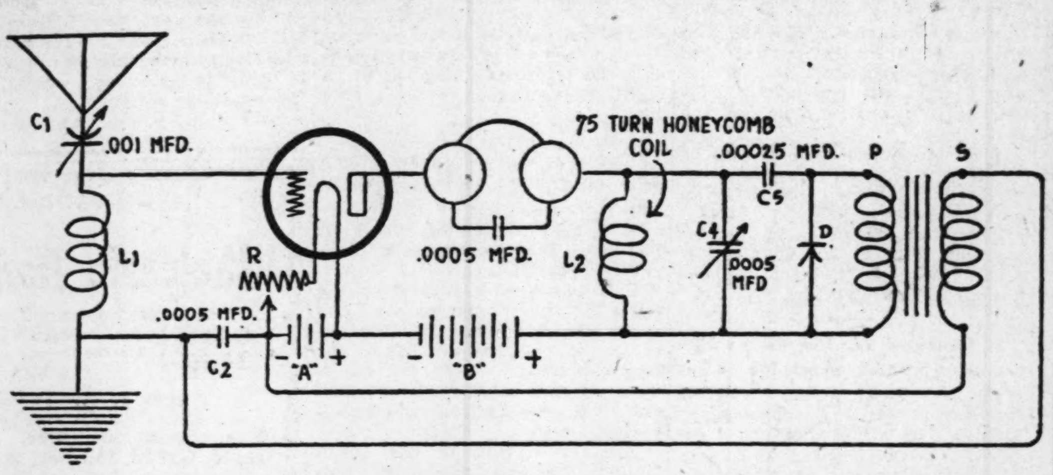
The circuit this week is ideal fo. the reader who is about to start in the experimenter's end of the game, because it is simple and will give the enthusiast an opportunity to study reflex action in radio circuits. The tube is the radio and audio frequency amplifier and a crystal detector is used for rectification. Parts needed are as follows:

1 .001 mfd. variable condenser.
1 Inductance coil.
1 75-turn honeycomb coil.
1 .0005 mfd. variable condenser
2 .00025 mfd. fixed condensers.
1 .00025 mfd. fixed condenser.
1 Crystal detector.
1 Audio frequency transformer.
1 Rheostat.
1 "A" battery.
3 22½-volt "B" batteries.

The antenna is connected directly to the rotary plate of the variable condenser Cl, which should have a capacity of .001 mfd. The stationary plates are connected to the grid of the radio frequency tube and also to one side of the inductance coil, Ll. This coil consists of 60 turns of No. 24 double cotton covered wire wound on a 3-inch tube. The other free end of this coil is brought to the ground connection, and also to one side of the .0005 mfd. fixed condenser, C2. From the other side of this condenser a connection is brought to the negative side of the "A" battery.

The plate of the radio frequency tube is connected to one side of the telephones and from the other side of the telephones a connection is brought to one side of the impedance coil, L2. This coil is a 75-turn honeycomb coil. A .0005 mfd. variable condenser, C4, is connected across this coil. The crystal detector is connected across the primary of the audio-frequecy transformer. The fixed condenser, C5, connected between the variable condenser, C4, and the detector, should have a capacity of .00025 mfd. In order to obtain reflex action the secondary is connected across the fixed condenser, C2. This positive side of the "B" battery is connected to lower end of the honeycomb coil L2 and the minus terminal of this battery is connected to the positive side of the "A" battery.

Reflex Circuit for the New Experimenter



ARRANGEMENTS BEING MADE FOR "NAVY DAY"

Department Officials Plan Linking of Many Broadcasters.

Preparations are being made by the Navy Department for a nationwide celebration of Monday, Oct. 27, birthday of former President Roosevelt, as "Navy Day." Under present plans an even more elaborate broadcasting program will be offered fans all over the country than on "Defense Day."

It has not yet been definitely decided just how many stations will be connected together to broadcast "Navy Day." Officials of the Navy Department hope there will be sufficient to make the program available from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast.

During the program a number of prominent men will deliver addresses on "Our Navy." Secretary of the Navy Wilbur will lead from Washington. He will be followed by Admiral R. E. Coontz, Commander in Chief of the United States fleet, who will speak at Salt Lake City, Utah. Admiral E. W. Eberle, Chief of Operations, will speak from Little Rock and Fort Smith, Ark. Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, will speak from Minneapolis, Rear Admiral H. T. Mayo at Chicago, Rear Admiral S. E. W. Kittelle at Chattanoogo, Tenn., and Rear Admiral Newton McCully at Charleston.

In addition to these, other speakers from among the ranking naval officers and prominent civilians have been assigned to other cities so that the entire country will be blanketed with the Navy day message by radio.

Definite plans have not been made for the operations of the Shenandoah on Navy day, owing to its present transcontinental flight, but it is haped that the dirigible may be used also for broadcasting "Navy day" speeches.

Importance of Perfect Contact.

The clips on the "B" battery should be bent up to provide a good spring connection to the wire. Likewise, spring contacts in the sockets must be kept at proper tension to engage the pins on the base of the tubes.

In the RADIO TESTING LABORATORY

CONDUCTED BY STUART C. MAHANAY

This column is a regular feature of the Sunday Post-Dispatch. In it will be found reports of tests conducted with standard manufacturer's parts and sets and appliances which have been submitted for examination.

Apparatus tested during the past week in the Post-Dispatch laboratory consisted of the following:
Balkite "B" current supply.
Garod Neutordyne, Model V.
Balkite "A" battery charger.

BALKITE "B" CURRENT SUPPLY.

THE new Fansteel Balkite "B" current supply, designed to replace dry cell "B" batteries, operates directly from the home lighting circuit in a very satisfactory manner. The hum present in some of the devices of a similar kind which are now on the market is reduced entirely to the point of inaudibility.

It was tested with a Garod 5-tube neutrodyne receiver, and a Kennedy regenerative receiver with two-step audio frequency amplifier. Various types and kinds of tubes were used and an Atlas loud speaker reproduced the sounds.

During all of the tests, it compared favorably with the dry cell batteries which were tried interchangeably several times in each case. The volume was practically the same. In fact, if there was any difference, it could not be distinguished by audible comparison.

The results were exactly the same regardless of the tubes employed. When dry-cell and storage battery tubes were tested, allowance was made, for the different types of tubes. From the standpoint of comparison of the dry cell "B" battery and the Balklite substitute the latter proved that such a device is now entirely practical.

A feature of the Balkite device is the wide range of voltages which may be obtained by connection to different binding posts which are plainly marked. They are 20, 50, 100 and 112.

GAROD NEUTRODYNE MODEL V.

"Powerful" is the only word which adequately describes the volume delivered by this new product of the Garod Corporation. It employs five tubes, four of the "A" type and a "soft" detector tube. Using 135 volts of "B" battery, a 4½-volt "C" battery and an Atlas loud speaker, the sounds could easily be heard a half block away (through an open window), with every station that was tuned in to maximum volume.

During these tests the outdoor aerial employed was a single copper wire, 100 feet in length and 25 feet high. The "ground" connection was made to a water pipe.

No provision is made in this receiver for the use of only four of the five tubes, but it is not necessary to tune the set to maximum volume. In fact, when listening to a program, the receiver was slightly detuned from the wave of the transmitting sation to reduce the volume. The tone quality was good.

The range of the set during the two evenings it was tested was from Nebraska to Georgia and Canada. It is not intended to convey the impression, however, that the range of this receiver is bounded by the "triangle" just referred to, for, under different conditions, the writer has no doubt but what this set will easily pick up stations on either the Atlantic or Pacific coast.

The apparatus is housed in a well proportioned cabinet of highly finished mahogany, 34 inches long by 11 inches high and 13 inches deep. The dials are of unusually large proportion and the first impression one gathers is that they must be awkward to handle. A few minutes of tuning, however, soon proves that their size is only an aid to easy control.

BALKITE BATTERY CHARGER.

The Fansteel Balkite "A" battery charger is based on a new principle, and it lives up to the claims made by the manufacturer, chief of which is that it is noiseless in operation. In fact, this is probably the outstanding feature. No bulb is required, a new metal called Balkite being used instead. This metal brings about the rectification from alternating to direct current without vibration or hum or flickering of lights usually attendent upon such operations.

The "test" consisted of connecting a Balkite charger to a six-volt radio battery at different times during the evening when different types of receivers were being tested. The result was—absolute silence. In no way did it affect the operation of the receiver in use at the time.

The device operates from 110-120 volts A. C. 60-cycle current and charges the ordinary six-volt battery at a three- ampere rate. A special model has been developed for 50-cycle current.

PATENT GRANTED ON MODULATING SYSTEM

New Method Equalizes the Generator Load at All Times.

A modulating system for radio telegraphy has been invented by Charles Le G. Fortescue of Pittsburg, Pa., and a patent granted upon it by the Patent Office.

This invention, which should be of interest to all amateurs, covers these points:

Means for controlling current of radio frequency and more particularly means for controlling the input to an antenna system.

A system for the control of radio frequency input to an antenna in which there is no arcing between the contacts.

A radio modulation system in which the period of oscillation of the antenna is reduced below radio frequency when a message is not being sent.

A system for controlling the input to an antenna in radio telegraphy in which the load on the generator is substantially constant in either the up position or the down position of the telegraph key.

Here is the description given by Mr. Fortescue of his invention in the patent granted him on it:

"The problem of control of the high-frequency radio input to an antenna in radio telegraphy has always been a difficult one. In my system I employ a tuned antenna circuit having an inductance coil therein, and located in inductive relation to the inductance coil is a controller primary inductance coil. A balancing inductance coil is connected in parallel with the controller primary inductance coil through contacts controlled by a telegraph key. A source of high-frequency current is connected to the middle points of the controller primary and balancing inductance coils, and the key controls the flow of current through said coils. Means may also be provided for maintaining the load on the high-frequency source substantially constant.

QRX

THE weather is improving and the static is becoming less and less noticeable. The DX stations seem to be coming through much better. The thing that impresses the writer more this season is the the few stations operating on 200 meters. Most of the stations are taking advantage of the extremely low waves, also of the band between 150 and 200 meters which is opened for all types of stations. This band was formerly divided up into spark, ICW, phone and straight CW bands. Most of the phone, ICW stations are near to the 150-meter point. This divides the BCL and the amateur still further. It is the writer's viewpoint that in the near future very few stations will be heard above 175 meters. The QRM will be much less and the complaints from the BCL's will practically disappear. What could be better than this for the amateur? It would be great if the silent period for the 150-meter band would be dropped, too. The use of coupled circuits would do wonders if all the transmitters used them. Let's see more of the inductively coupled circuits. It would be the means of stopping the silent period. The absence of any complaints would make the officials see the foolishness of any further time period. Let's start something.

2 CHK inclosed a clipping telling of the transmission by battery power of 6RY, who only used 100 volts of "B" battery, which is certainly low power, but, of course, pure DC, 6RY was heard by 9BAB, and 8RY, very QSA. He also carried on phone conversation with several 5s which demonstrated the kick behind small powered DC CW transmitters. 6RY'S phone has been reported very clear and distinct, with excellent modulation over 500 miles. This is indeed excellent and 6RY is to be congratulated on his good performance.

Pure DC plate current supplied by "B" batteries is becoming quite popular, as the writer knows quite a number of amateurs who are testing its ability to step out and have satisfied themselves that this sort of power is the coming thing.

At the recent radio show in San Francisco, Cal., the local radio club accepted radio messages for any point in the United States. Those stations who accepted the messages qsred them within 48 hours. This service made quite a hit with the BCLs who asked many questions about the ARRL service. Needless to say, there were plenty of hams there to answer them correctly.

The Fourth District seems to be there with the star phone stations. 4CS and 4IK are both on the air with real QSA fone transmitters. They have been reported QSA vy with good modulation by a number of the two stations. This is good DX for this time of the year. IK and CS handle local traffic on the mike and open up with their ICW and straight CW on the DX traffic. There seems to be plenty of good phone stations in the South by the numerous reports which the writer has received in the past few months. Wonder why they use fones down there?

9EFU is doing some wreat work with a 50-watter, being heard in all parts of the country. He is one of the loudest stations that comes through, according to a Canadian friend.

9AEJ is hitting the air hard these days and claims the new mast has helped his DX work considerably.

AEJ uses a pair of fifties, but comes through lately like a 250-watter. Good work.

Recently station KDKA at Pittsburg, Pa., has been transmitting on a wave length of 68 meters and its signals are very loud in daylight, as well as at night. Apparently many old theories are not quite correct. The explanation probably is that although the absorption due to daylight is greater in these wave lengths, the efficiency of transmission is much higher. In addition to this, the effects of static are almost entirely absent as compared with higher wave lengths. Station WGY is now transmitting on a wave length of about 15 meters, simultaneously with its regular broadcasting on 380 meters.

Country to Be Divided Into 6 Broadcast Zones

Radio Conference Also Agrees Upon a Reclassification of All Broadcasters.

The third annual radio battle is over and the clean-up squad of supervisors and technical experts has finished its work of rezoning stations and reallocating wave lengths. Unlike the world series, it was not a very bloody battle, and few casualties have been reported. Although the Government refused to change the power limitations, experimental licenses for high-power broadcasting are assured, and it is up to the radio engineers to show the radio supervisors and the listening public the benefits of high-power broadcasting. The engineers of the Radio Corporation, who propose to erect a 40 to 50 k. w. station outside of New York in the near future, are going forward with their plans and will request the first super-power broadcasting license under a revised class "D" development permit. As soon as the technicians work out the details of minimum interference and set up the station the public, within a range of 1000 miles of New York at least, will have an opportunity of listening in on the R. C. A. super-broadcaster. If the inspectors or the public find that this station interferes with the reception of other stations seriously, the department will cause the experimenters to close down the station, since this is a requirement of the special permit.

It is also probable that nine smaller broadcasters will also apply for permission to broadcast with 5-k.-w. sets under the same conditions, and as was pointed out, a broadcasting system of pure radio may soon be competing for popularity with the chain of the interconnected stations, which has made possible nationa-wide broadcasting.

Among the important decisions reached were: The addition of 30-wave channels for broadcasting stations, bringing the total to 100; the removal of the marine sparks to 800 meters from the broadcast band, and the designation of 600 meters for distress calls only, clearing the air programs of code interference. A re-classification of broadcasters and the transfer of all class "C" stations from 360 meters, improves the situation further, while the re-zoning of the country into 6 zones will further aid broadcast operation. This it is planned will provide a separate zone for the New England States, including New York City and part of New Jersey; Zone 2 will comprise the rest of the Atlantic States, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and the western part of New York; Zone Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, West Georgia, Alabama and Missisipi; the Central States are divided horizontally, the Southern States forming Zone and the Northern, Zone 5; all the Pacific States with Idaho, Utah and Arizona, constitute the Sixth zone. When assigning experimental stations power-higher than now permitted, the Department intends to use this system and in assigning new class one station waves.

Marine communications will be handled on 660, 730, 875 and 706 meters, giving the ships five channels instead of two, also removing coastwise interference and congestion. Amateurs retain substantially the same wave bands as heretofore, but benefit by low wave lengths recently assigned temporarily by the Department; all of which assures the amateurs an increase in channels over what they had a year ago, and permits greater latitude in 24-hour operation.

The conference voted not to interfere with broadcast programs, discouraging censorship definitely. The conferees found that simultaneous broadcasting of national events is practical over a large area and believes that nation-wide broadcasting by interconnecting stations deserves encouragement.

Additional funds for the administration of matters radio were urged of Congress in a special plea of the whole conference.

In closing the last session of the Third Radio Conference, Secretary Hoover said: "This has been the most constructive and most effective of all three national conferences that we have held. I do not say that in depreciation of the fine efforts which they put forth, but today we were faced with problems more complex than hitherto, and I consider it most remarkable, in face of the unusual technical difficulties, that you gentlemen have found such unanimity of solution. This conference represents every phase of the industry—the listener, broadcaster, manufacturer, and all elements, and there has been a fine feeling of compromise and willingness to make sacrifice to contribute to the advancement of the art. I wish, therefore to express my personal appreciation of all that you have done.

"I have no doubt that if we survive, we shall have another conference next year, and I have no doubt that it will be faced again with more complex problems, because there never has been an advent in the history of science that has produced such a great change as is going on here, and I think that in these conferences we have found a way in which the great thing could be given to public service. I wish to thank you for your attendance and hope that you will be back with us next year and that we shall have as successful a time as we had on the present occasion."

Previous to his remarks, Secretary Hoover had been thanked personally for his service to radio science, on motion of Earle C. Anthony of California, who said: "Mr. Hoover has practically given up his time day and night to this work, and it shows the interest of our Secretary in radio. I would therefore, like to call for a vote of thanks to Mr. Hoover for his personal interest." The motion was seconded and carried with applause.

A reading of the recommendations of the drafting committee, composed of subcommittee heads, followed, and by practically a unanimous vote the many paragraphs were adopted. During the noon hours the drafting committee went over the report of the co-ordinating committee, made up of members of the seven subcommittees, foregoing luncheon in an effort to report Friday afternoon. Previously, the seven reports of the subcommittees had been filed with the co-ordinators, in the form of a mass of papers including much technical data. This job was in itself a day's work, but the co-ordinating body worked fast in order that the drafting committee might proceed in rounding out a final report:

WILL STUDY RADIO MYSTERIES AT SEA

Cruising Laboratory to Carry Apparatus for Charting Ether Channels.

Radio is coming to play a very important part in the plans of the Conference on Oceanography called by the Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to outline a world-wide scientific study of the seven seas and the air above them. Among the many subjects considered by this conference, which met in the Hydrographic Office in Washington recently, was the improvement of radio communication.

The radio personnel of the committee included Dr. A. M. Taylor of the Navy; Dr. Louis Cohen of the Army Signal Corps; Dr. Austin of the Bureau of Standards; Capt. Ridley McLean, director of Naval Communications; Brigadier-General C. McK. Saltzman, Chief Signal Officer, and Lieutenant-Colonel C. A. Seaone, Signal Corps.

The Naval Hospital Ship Solace, acquired during the Spanish-American War, will be designated by the navy as a cruising laboratory, after she is recommissioned and equipped with the latest radio apparatus, and the first cruise will probably start in July, 1925, and cover the Gulf-Caribbean area. Later, cruises of the American scientists or their foreign associates, are being planned to cover all the waters and most of the ports of the world.

The chief aim of the scientists, as far as radio is concerned, is to reroute transoceanic radio traffic where atmospheric disturbances are found to be detrimental to direct transmission. For this reason one of the problems is to locate and chart centers of static disturbances, so that they may be avoided in setting up long-distance circuits. At the suggestion of Dr. Cohen a special investigation will be made of static centers both at sea and ashore. He has communicated with the American section of the International Union of Scientific Radio Telegraphy, requesting further co-operation in developing plans for collecting the data desired for the solution of radio traffic problems. It is understood that attention will be given to the study of intensities of radio signals from high-powered land stations when the Solace is at sea, and the co-operative efficiency of long and short wave transmissions. Although long wave lengths are used for distant transmissions today, there is a tendency toward the use of short waves, which may be found more efficient and less expensive to use because of saving in power. This, Dr. Cohen points out is an attractive field for experiment and may lead to the saving of millions in costs of operating long-distance stations.

When the Solace sails next summer, like the famous "Elettra" of Marconi, she will carry the most modern radio equipment and a sonic depth finding and ranging apparatus. She will be equipped for transmission and reception of radio waves through the air, the earth and water. The propogation of radio waves under the water will be a special problem to be worked out with the aid of some naval submarines.

Even the transmission of radio impulses through the solid earth will be investigated, for scientists are anxious to ascertain whether radio waves pass through certain geological structures or around them. The projection of radio waves directionally by a process of focusing the transmitting antenna will also be studied, in the desire to employ a radio beam, like that of a searchlight, in place of the ordinary broadcast method. The naval radio compass used over limited distances for finding directions and locating a vessel by aid of land stations, it is hoped, can be improved and its range extended if a directional beam effect can be secured. Such an improvement to the radio compass might make it possible for vessels crossing the Atlantic to navigate solely with their aid, eliminating the use of astronomical observations.

The co-operation of the Bureau of Standards experts and other American scientific radio investigators, as well as that of Sr. Marconi is assured. Powerful radio stations, such as Nauen, Germany, and Eiffel Tower in Paris, will assist.

Closely allied to the radio is the sonic depth finder, which operates on sound waves. Dr. Harvey Hayes, its inventor, will have charge of sound operations on the Solace.

Once the vessel gets under way at sea, naval experts say, the public is assured of being kept posted on its activities and the interesting discoveries as they are made, for she will be equipped for broadcasting, and it is expected that she will report daily on the progress of her investigations. Radio talks on various phases of the work by the several experts aboard may prove unique in the annals of radio broadcasting and of scientific investigations.

Field weather reports by radio will also be made to the U. S. Weather Bureau for its information and for assistance in making forecasts.

RADIO INTEREST IN ENGLAND INCREASING

One Million Listeners, Now, According to Executive of B. B. C.

The interest in radio reception in Great Britain has increased nearly 1000 per cent during the past 12 months, according to Capt. P. P. Eckersley, chief engineer of the British Broadcasting Co., who, in a statement made public today by Arthur H. Lynch, editor of Radio Broadcast, attributes considerable of the growth of interest to the international radio week tests which have become extremely popular in England.

"In November, 1923, there were only 150,000 licensed listeners in England," said Capt. Eckersley. "However, so much interest in listening to the American stations was aroused during international radio week of last year that the number quickly doubled, then trebled until finally we now have more than a million licensed radio fans.

"Moreover, international broadcasting has been recognized by the various Governments of the world as an agency toward the promotion of international good will. Great interest is being manifested by members of Parliament, who have been giving ear to the tremendous popular approval of radio. During the forthcoming tests when proper arrangements will have been made on both sides of the Atlantic, we feel confident that members of the British Government will avail themselves of the opportunity to speak to the American public."

Capt. Eckersley was a recent visitor to the Hoover conference in Washington, where International Radio Week was formally approved by the radio leaders of the United States, who had gathered to effect improvements in the art. During that conference the purposes and programs of the forthcoming International Radio Week (Nov. 24-30), were outlined by Mr. Lynch, whose remarks were also broadcast by station WRC. Capt. E. C. Edwards, director of radio in Canada, also participated in the conference, and it was the concensus of opinion that international radio was certain to cement relations between peoples to a far greater extent than has been possible by any other means.

Importance of Perfect Parts.

Receiving sets sometimes fail to work properly through using discarded parts from other sets in making a new one. Many times these old parts were smeared with solder or dirt which made them unsuitable for further use, unless carefully cleaned.

Will Your Loud Speaker Help Broadcast the Election Returns?

STATION KSD, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, will start early in the evening of Nov. 4 and continue far into the night broadcasting election returns from all over the United States as fast as they are received. Music will be interspersed at various periods during the evening.

It is evident, from letters already received, that many loud speakers will be installed in stores, clubs, hotels, restaurants, theaters and other places where people congregate, so that those in the neighborhood who have no radio sets can hear the election figures broadcast by KSD.

In view of the unusual interest in the outcome of the election of the next President of the United States, the Post-Dispatch will print on Sunday, Nov. 2, a complete directory of all places in St. Louis and adjoining towns where election returns can be heard by radio. If you are going to install a loud speaker for this purpose, notify by mail the Radio Department of the Post-Dispatch so your name and address can be printed in the directory which will appear in the Sunday Post-Dispatch of Nov. 2.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Post-Dispatch Radio Department cannot undertake to answer questions by mail.

Q. I constructed the "Radio Frequency with Crystal" receiver described in the Post-Dispatch Aug. 24 and would like to know if one or two stages of audio frequency will amplify the signals sufficiently to operate a loud speaker? I am very much interested in this set, as I have already heard the following stations: WSB, WGY, KDKA, PWX, WOAI, KHJ, KFKK, CKCK and numerous other stations. W. A. B.

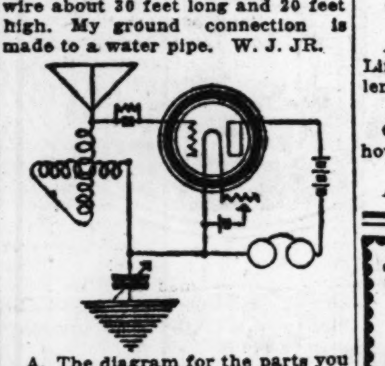
A. Yes, either one or two stages of audio frequency amplification may be added, or if you wish even greater volume, push-pull amplification may be employed. It will be necessary to use at least one stage of audio ahead of the push-pull circuit. Diagram above shows two steps of audio.

Q. Kindly publish a diagram for the following parts: Raven variometer, Hammerlund .0005 mfd. variable condenser with vernier, grid condenser and leak, WD-11 tube, and socket, and rheostat. Can you tell me estimate the range of this set? My aerial consists of a single wire about 30 feet long and 20 feet high. My ground connection is made to a water pipe. W. J. JR.



A. The diagram for the parts you have is shown above. It is impossible to give the range of any set, due to greatly varying atmospheric conditions which affect reception. You might improve the efficiency of your set by attaching the "ground" to a cold water pipe, rather than a radiator pipe.

Q. What is the cause of my receiving set shocking me whenever I take hold of the headphones? I used to be able to hear the Post very loud, but lately the signals have become very weak. Please advise. M. L. D.

A. The probabilities are that the wires in your set are short-circuited in such a manner that the "B" battery current is the shock you receive. We would recommend that you have a competent repair man look look over your receiver to locate the trouble.

Q. Where is Station WHO? C. S.

A. It is operated by the Banker's Life Co., Des Moines, Ia. Wavelength, 526 meters.

Q. In the Cockaday receiver, how are the condensers tuned? M. M.

A. This can only be learned by experience with the particular set you wish to operate. Try setting one condenser in a given position, then vary the other over its entire scale. Then change the first condenser five or 10 degrees and repeat the operation with the second condenser. Continue until all the stations within range have been logged.

The higher the outside antenna is above the ground the better. If possible it should be kept well away from grounded masses of metal, such as plumbing, metal roofs, etc.

The Complete Efficient and Economical Aerial
ANTENELLA
No Aerial or Antenna Needed
$1.25
Why pay $10.00 or more to have an aerial spoil the appearance of your home? Antenella eliminates all unsightly wiring, lightning arresters, etc., and precludes the possibility of dangerous grounding on a power line. It also stops "canary bird" reradiation from nearby oscillating sets interfering.
ANTENELLA is not only a real distance getter but also successfully overcomes static annoyances.

MACDONALD INTRODUCES RADIO TO ENGLISH POLITICS

Started Broadcasting Speeches in Present Campaign; Amplifiers Used by Others.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Timid voters of the ultimate consumer class, who have often gone to political meetings in the open air, but have seldom haerd anything because they lacked the nerve to push their way in from the fringe of the crowd, are getting their ears full in this general election campaign.

Many of the candidates for parliamentary seats lug amplifying apparatus around with them to magnify the sound of their voices. Premier MacDonald, who started a tour from his Scottish home to his Welsh constituency this week in his motor car, carried one of these devices along with him.

Former Premier Lloyd George was the first British politician to accept the possibilities of the amplifiers. He was introduced to them on his American tour last year and was quick to adopt them for home use upon his return, but Premier MacDonald was the first to use the radio for broadcasting his political dissertations.

One night last week while radio listeners around London were tuned in on a soprano the lady was cut off in the very midst of her warbling and the bass voice of the Prime Minister, speaking in Glasgow, replaced her.

It has been suggested that the party leaders should be allowed to broadcast on alternate nights, but some people complain that the radio programs are dull enough as they are without permitting the campaign to be carried on through the ether.

OVED HIS WIFE SO MUCH HE DIVORCED HER SO SHE COULD WED ANOTHER

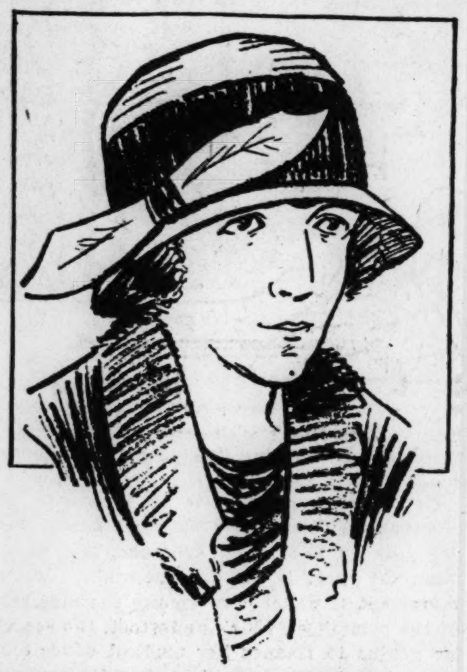
r. Hall-Quest talked the matter over with wife, calmly, like an educator taking up a blem of school administration. He must patient, he believed and try by philosophy gentle reasoning to win her from her mad tuation with Hart.

d, When, After She Had Lived Openly With the Other Man a Year, He Saw That His Suit Was Hopeless and That She Would Never Return to Him, This Doctor of Philosophy Quietly Arranged a Divorce, so They Could Make Their Union Legal—Her Mother Says Cause of Their Differences Was His Own Ambition and His Consideration for Her in Forbidding Her to Have Children—"Other Man's" Wife Also Gets Divorce so That They Are Now Free to Marry.



MRS. ROSAMUND HART
The "other man's" wife—from a courtroom sketch.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.

HEY played bridge together—the Harts and the Hall-Quests. Dr. Alfred Lawrence Hall-Quest took the game seriously. He was a serious-minded as a professor of secondary education university must be. He never made inative bids or called no-trumps unless he every suit guarded. If he doubled he sure under the law of probabilities that could set his opponents, who were his and his friend, Fred W. Hart. Once in hile he would crack a joke in his dry way made his partner, Mrs. Hart, smile. But rally, he and Mrs. Hart played a close, hed game and kept their minds on the .

ot so with Mrs. Shirley Hall-Quest and t. They had other things to think about des bridge. Mrs. Hall-Quest found Hart—expert accountant and an Englishman—interesting. She liked to hear him talk liked to sit across table with him as er. They developed a spirit of camarie during these little parties when the -Quests invited the Harts to step across corridor from their apartment; or when made a foursome at the theater or the try club.

hile Dr. Hall-Quest entertained Mrs. Hart his theories concerning the use of new books in the secondary schools of Ohio, wife and her husband were chatting of things. Less serious things. Sixteen with a college professor had not quite the lighter, more frivolous spirit from Hall-Quest.

r. Hall-Quest found the Harts congenial. friend Hart was not looking at Mrs. -Quest he would listen intelligently to the r's ideas about widening the influence of university through extension courses. was his hobby. He wanted to bring the ersity of Cincinnati in closer co-operation the high schools of the State. He rather the correspondence school idea. He was ested in statistics.

Only Sops to Crass Conventions"

e thought that Hart also was interested statistics, being an accountant. He never dreamed that Hart was more interested in Mrs. Hall-Quest. Nor did Mrs. Hart seem to suspect the drift of the game. Mrs. Hall-Quest was not a flirtatious type. She read books, a great many modern novels. These novels, Mrs. Hart understood, dealt largely with love, free and pure, but not so pure as it was free. The novels propounded the idea, in the main, that people should follow their natural inclinations.

"People should give absolute freedom to their souls," Mrs. Hall-Quest would say on occasion. "Marriages when love has ceased are but sops to the crass conventions of society. When two souls find each other they should mate in spite of any obstacles."

Talk about like that.

Listening, Dr. Hall-Quest would smile, tolerantly. He loved his pretty wife and was ambitious for her. Mrs. Hart heard her friend's ideas expressed without putting any construction on them. She rather supposed that Mrs. Hall-Quest was talking out of the American Mercury, or The Dial, or had been reading things by Sherwood Anderson, Theodore Dreiser and D. H. Lawrence. But Mrs. Hart did not notice that her husband would nod his head and look long and deep into Mrs. Hall-Quest's eyes.

The college professor and the accountant's wife missed it all.

Then one day Dr. Hall-Quest was tremendously surprised. His wife—the darling of his heart—came to him and said, "I love Fred. I shall not live with you any longer. I want my freedom."

Across the hall in the Hart apartment almost the same scene was taking place. Hart told his wife, "I love Shirley. I can't go on with you."

A Facer for the Professor

It had come upon Dr. Hall-Quest, Ph. D., all of a sudden. But he accepted the problem, calmly, in the manner of an educator faced with a question in school administration. His wife was before him now with the statement that she no longer loved him, but loved Fred W. Hart. Very well, he would examine the facts.

"Isn't this a temporary infatuation?" he asked.

"No."

"Don't you think you'll get over it if you never see this man again?"

"I'll never get over it. I'll love him for all eternity. He is the perfect lover, the man of my dreams."

That was a facer. The professor rubbed his glasses and considered. The fact that she termed Hart a perfect lover implied clearly that she believed her own husband to be deficient in the art. Dr. Hall-Quest had never considered love one of the arts. In fact, he had not thought much about the subject since 1908 when they were married. He had been too busy taking degrees at Columbia and at the University of Illinois; writing treatises on the pedagogical method; drawing the high schools in contact with the University of Cincinnati, and lecturing.

He played for time.

"Don't you think you at least ought to go away for a while and think it over, coolly?"

Mrs. Hall-Quest made that concession. She said she would visit her mother, Mrs. W. M. Knox in Minneapolis.

"What is the cause of your discontent with me?" he wanted to know. "Isn't your home life happy? You have no housework to do. I have provided maids. Have I not always been considerate?"

She agreed that those things were true, but she told him love could not be analyzed. She had loved him once but loved him no longer. That was all.

MRS. SHIRLEY HALL-QUEST

"You never understood me," she finished.

The Doctor said, "Tut tut," and did not worry right away. He sat down and wrote a long letter to Mrs. Knox, asking her if she could do something with Shirley. He feared that Shirley might attempt a rash act in her madness. Then he went back to his university work, rather satisfied that he had solved the problem. Q. E. D. He had merely applied the axiom that temporary aberrations in one's mate must be dealt with coolly.

How "Other Man" Met the Test

Meanwhile Hart was discovering that Mrs. Hart did not understand him any better than Dr. Hall-Quest understood his wife. Mrs. Hart refused to give him up. She said she loved him, and that he would get over his infatuation for Mrs. Hall-Quest if he remained away from her. To prove that he knew his heart, the "perfect lover" proposed a trip to England. He would take Mrs. Hart along. Mrs. Hall-Quest would be miles away. That was test enough, eh? Mrs. Hart agreed. They went off to visit Hart's old home in England. He had been an officer in the English army and had married Mrs. Hart over there in 1905. He was 45 now, his wife about the same age and Mrs. Hall-Quest was 43. A middle-aged quadrangle.

However, neither Mrs. Hall-Quest nor Hart forgot. He returned to the United States after two weeks abroad, but without his wife.

Mrs. Hall-Quest remained in Minneapolis from October, 1922, when the first break occurred, until April, 1923. Then she joined Hart here.

Doctor Hall-Quest realized that he was losing, but the sine qua non of the educator is patience. He preached it to the embryo teachers he instructed and he preached it faithfully in handling his domestic dilemma. The professor resolved to continue his efforts to bring his wife back. He wrote many letters to Mrs. Knox urging her to use her influence. But, alas, Mrs. Knox was on the other side. She had discovered that her daughter's life as the spouse of a college professor had palled; that Shirley had been bored to tears for some time; that her daughter "wanted more humanness, less practicability and cold logic" than Dr. Hall-Quest had in him.

Matters reached a crisis in November, 1923. Hart and Mrs. Hall-Quest issued an ultimatum to their adamant mates.

"If you won't release me, I'll live with Fred without marriage," Mrs. Hall-Quest told her professor husband.

He did not gasp, nor bellow nor threaten. After all, he was a gentleman and a college professor.

"Do you realize what that will mean?" he asked.

DR. ALFRED HALL-QUEST

"I do."

"Do you realize that, under the prevailing social code, you will be ostracized? That you are taking a step which throws all conventions aside? That the experience of the race has seemed to indicate those who defy moral laws usually pay in one way or another? And that the woman pays most?"

His Cold Logic Fails on Her

Perhaps he quoted Royce on Loyalty and Bergson on the divinity of human alternatives. At any rate, he presented the case to her fully. But Mrs. Hall-Quest was not to be daunted. She may have flung a few quotations from James Branch Cabell or Anatole France at him. More likely she said, "I love Fred so much that I would defy the world to be with him."

It was the same way with Hart. He told his wife that she would either release him or he would go away with his true love.

Both the professor and the accountant's wife, being human and loving their respective mates, decided to risk the dare. They hoped, still, for a reconciliation. Professional friends of Dr. Hall-Quest talked with Hart, and women friends of Mrs. Hart talked with Mrs. Hall-Quest. To no avail.

Hart and Mrs. Hall-Quest went off to Chicago one day and rented an apartment in Evanston as "Mr. and Mrs. William Hart." They had decided to live together as husband and wife until such a time as Dr. Hall-Quest and Mrs. Hart should see fit to release them so that their union might have the benefit of clergy.

To Dr. Lawrence Hall-Quest, as to any husband in his position, this was the challenge direct. A man had broken up his home. His friend, Hart, had run away with his wife.

"Suppressed His Primitive Emotions"

Now, as the professor afterwards explained, he had learned through years of lecturing in university class rooms to suppress his primitive emotions. A man more elemental might have invoked the unwritten law and stalked Hart with a pistol. A man nearer the cave age would at least have stirred up a row, come what may. Few men in Dr. Hall-Quest's position would have behaved as gentlemanly.

He did nothing. He and Mrs. Hart talked it over, bitterly, and decided that there must be no publicity. Each secretly hoped that the pair in Chicago would tire of their free love pact and return home. Dr. Hall-Quest confided as much in his letters to Mrs. Knox. Mrs. Hart waited patiently in Cincinnati on the allowance her husband provided for her. She and Dr. Hall-Quest set themselves to the task of keeping the affair from the newspapers. They succeeded. For more than a year it was a secret.

This secrecy did not give the rebels in Evanston a fair testing. They were not openly flaunting convention. They had run the risk of publicity at the start, but since their mates were so disposed, they never had to face public sentiment. Masquerading as a legally wedded pair in a suburb where they were not known, they dodged the condemnation of society.

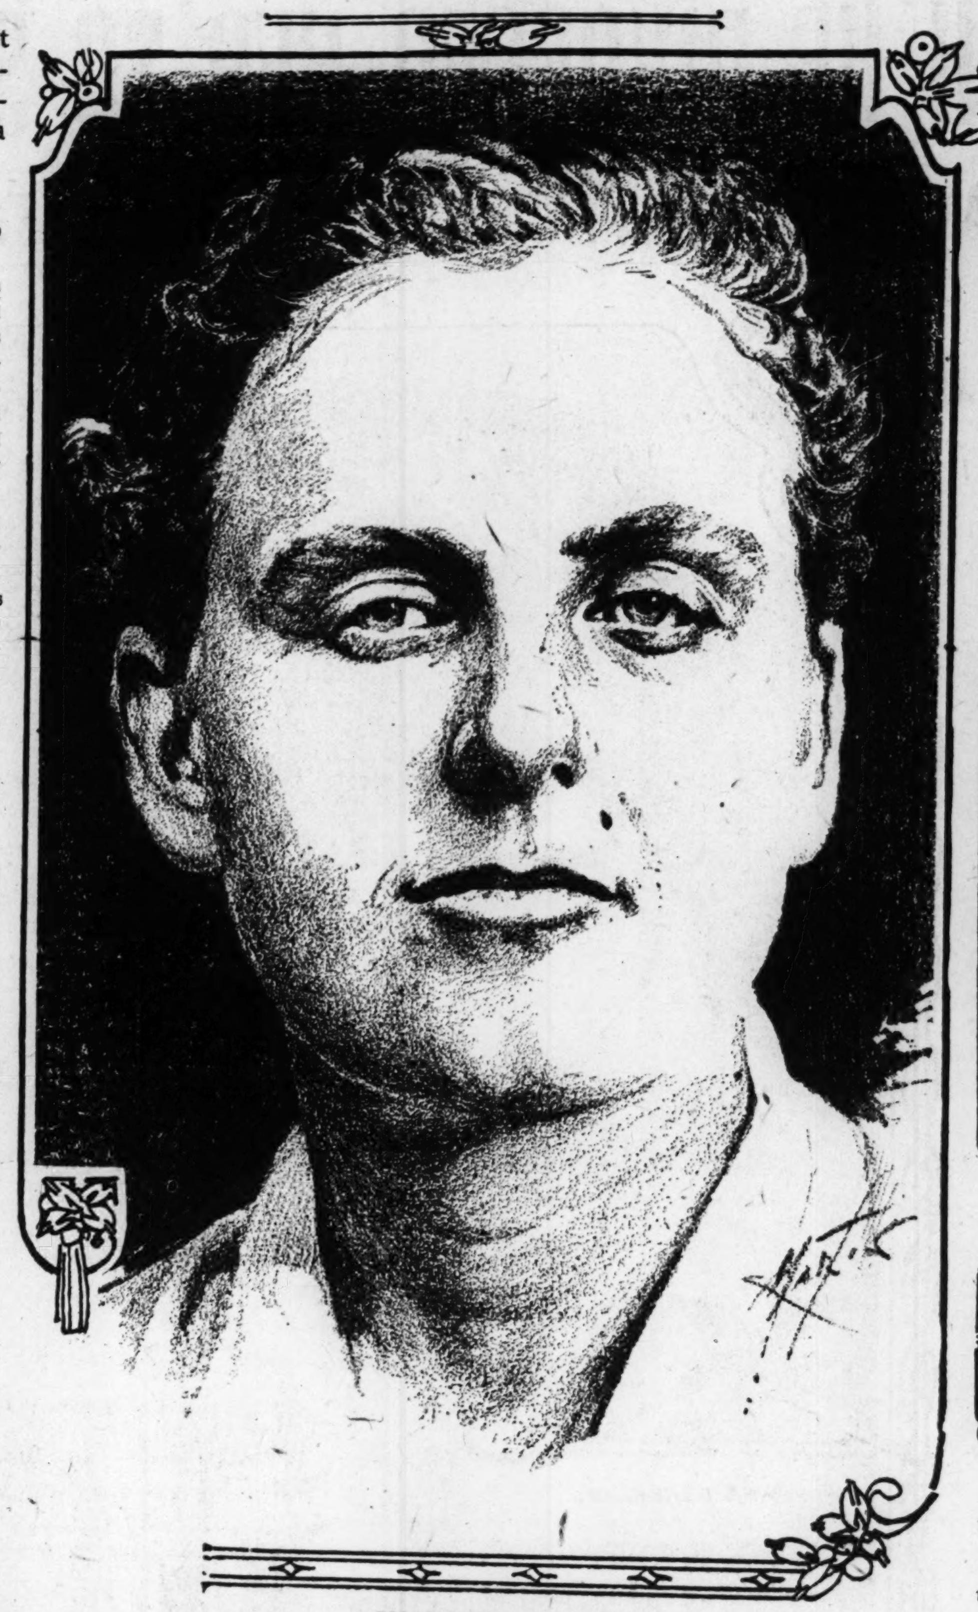
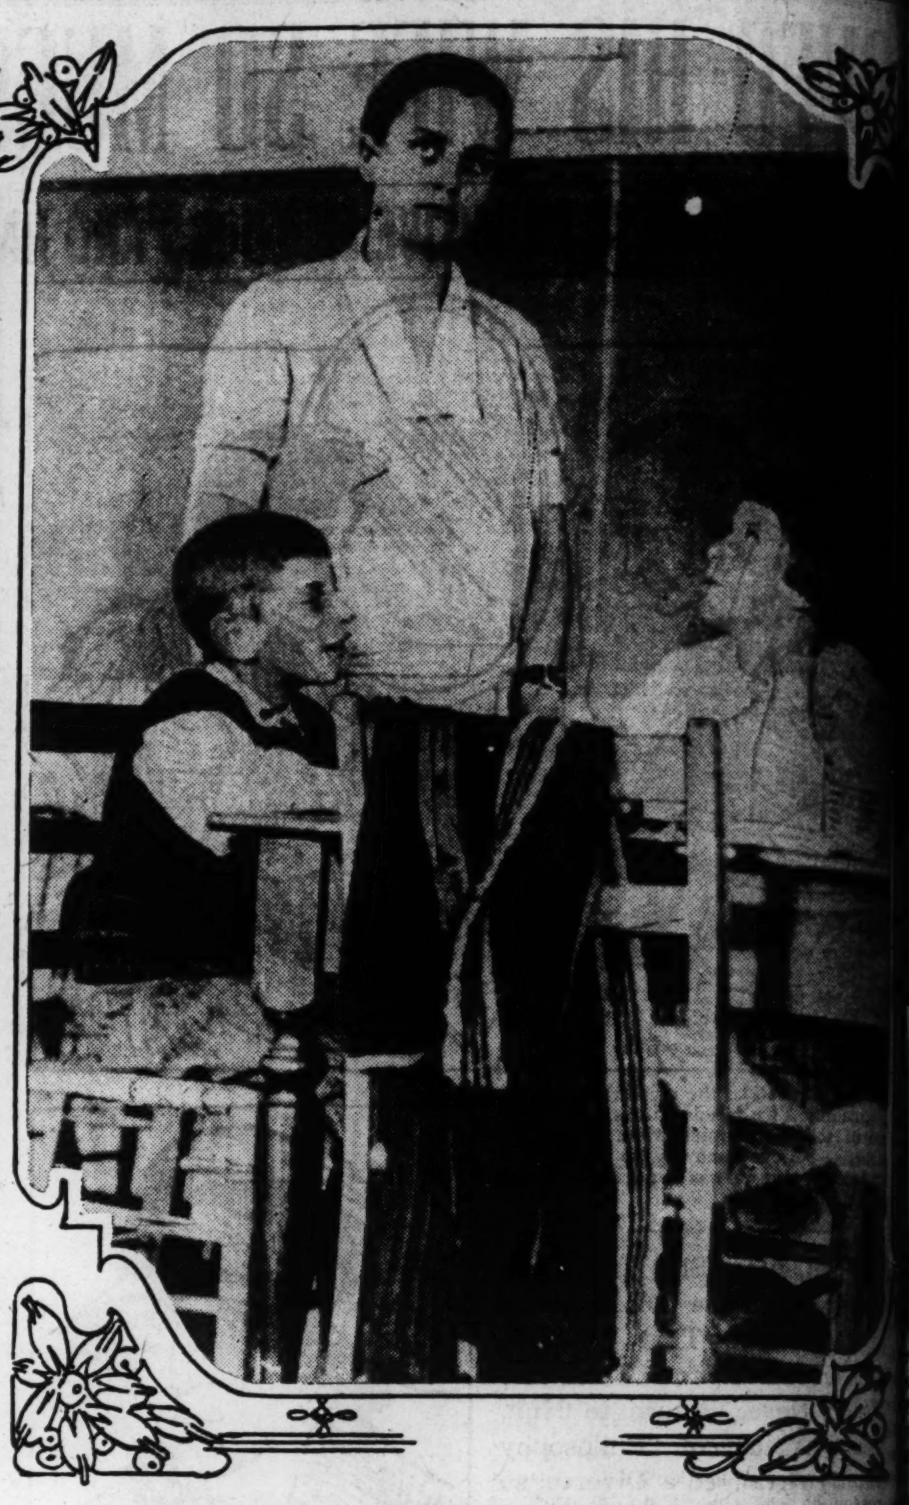
WORKING GIRL CERTIFIED AS GENIUS BY HARVARD BOARD, AMAZED BY SUDDEN PROJECTION INTO FA

MURIEL BLACK SHIES AT JOB WITH PROSPECT OF BUILDING UP TO $50,000 A YEAR TO STICK TO AMBITION TO BE DOCTO

Despite the Fact That She Laughs at Learned Professors, They Find That She Possesses Rare Mental Gifts Vouchsafed to Few and Committee of Manufacturers' Association will help to Finance her Education in Child Surgery, Sure That She in That Calling Will Be a Benefactress to the World.



MISS MURIEL BLACK,
The girl haled by Harvard professors as a "potential genius," is expected to do great things in child surgery, her chosen profession.



Miss Black with some of her pupils in the class for physically defective ch which she is teaching this year at Plymouth, Mass.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 18.

CERTAIN cynics who attempt now and then to reduce American thought to a formula almost invariably set down as Credo I. the following:

All Americans believe that somewhere among the millions who never attain individual distinction is a teamster who could whip Jack Dempsey; a sand-lot ball player who could better Hornsby's batting average; a small town store clerk who is the equal in business acumen of a Field or a Wanamaker; a garage mechanic who could show Edison a few tricks; and a high school art teacher who would be a peer of Whistler if—if they had a chance.

This view, of course, is not indigenous to America alone. It seems to have been a pet theory of the human race since the first philosopher declared there are as good fish in the sea as ever came out of it. Consider also the poets who have sung of "flowers born to blush unseen"; of "mute, inglorious Miltons"; of "hearts once pregnant with celestial fire." Consider the geniuses who have starved in garrets, the poor unknowns who have flashed from nothingness into fame, the oft-repeated story of talent unrecognized—sometimes emerging to power, sometimes perishing for want of opportunity.

It requires no particular insight to perceive that the "hidden gem" theory is part and parcel of the democratic theory and that all present-day tendencies have been to give to each individual greater opportunity for the use of his talents. But there is a school of social theorists which refuses to concede that the opportunities even in America for genius to assert itself are sufficient. These thinkers hold that the present organization of society in America puts too many handicaps on the individual of latent genius but with scanty means. They assert that the present system tends to exalt middle-class mediocrity and to suppress those superior individuals whose fate of birth and environment tends to keep them among the so-called submerged tenth.

How Search for Genius Began

About a year and a half ago someone impressed the directors of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, an organization of manufacturers, that it was the duty of good business men to search for talent among their employes. They owed it to the employes, to their own business and to the nation.

Somewhere in the whirl of industry in Massachusetts, argued the exponents of the "genius hunt," was a young man, perhaps several, who might contribute a work of inspiration to his country if given a chance. Somewhere there was a girl of talent, working at a loom or at a typewriter who was capable of awakening the higher muses. Surely, somewhere among the thousands there was genius waiting to be discovered; high talent fretting at trivial tasks; potential captains of industry and masters of art praying for a chance.

The idea struck the hard-headed business men who make up the Associated industries as worth a try. And so was organized the notable search for genius which resulted in a strange discovery.

Factory foremen, office managers and other executives were asked to nominate their brightest and most promising young men and women for further testing. The field of study, naturally was restricted to about five plants, as the genius hunt was an experiment only. The plants were chosen as typical of eastern factories and several thousand employes were under observation.

The investigating committee set itself a high standard. They were not searching for mere above-the-average ability. They were after potential genius. They wanted not only ambition and energy; but lofty aspirations and super-human strength of will. They sought any young man or any young woman who could be depended upon for some striking work in the world.

21 Chosen to Contest for Honor.

By dint of careful eliminating tests and personal interviews the committee selected 20 men and one young woman as its candidates for this Hall of Fame. The committee was so flushed with the success of its search that it was incautious. Members announced to the press that 21 "full-fledged geniuses" had been found, growing bright and fair in the New England soil. They were willing to agree with Pope and Gray as to hidden treasures.

At the Harvard University graduate school of education, the professors wished to test the 21 candidates for laurel wreaths. They were skeptical. Only when a Harvard professor has pronounced the word "genius" is there any chance for the individual the investigators were told. So to Harvard went the 20 young men and one young woman to be tested and analyzed.

The former factory workers, mill hands and clerks were given the most rigid mental examinations by professors of psychology. As none of the candidates had ever done anything creative, the tests were only to determine the potentiality of each individual for such work. In other words their mental machines were tested to determine capacity for thought.

The principal test used was the United States Army standard or "Alpha" examination, such as was given to enlisted men and officers during the war. This test consists of a series of questions and diagrams. The answers to the questions determine the candidate's perception, his judgment of values, his alertness, his power of reasoning, his mental poise, his general information. The working out of the diagrams is held by psychologists to indicate the subject's control of mental faculties, his accuracy and sense of acute observation.

Accolade of Genuis to a Girl

The 21 potential geniuses took the tests and 15 men were eliminated as having demonstrated no higher mental ability than the best class of college students. They ranked well, considering their lack of education, but they did not rank high enough to be classed as potential geniuses. In the army "alpha" test, there are 212 points. The army examined 100,000 men during the draft. The average of enlisted men was only 69 of the possible 212 and of officers 139.

The remaining four men and the one girl beat the highest collegiate records in the test but only the girl ranked high enough to win the Harvard accolade of "potential genius." She made a score of 175. This is considered a remarkable showing as no one has ever made a perfect score and the upper five per cent of the 100,000 men the army tested got marks no higher than 136 on the average.

And this is how Miss Muriel Black, 24 years old, emerged from nonentity to an interesting and important place in the day's news.

"Girl Beats 20 Men in Brain Test," ran the headlines. And "New Genius Discovered After Rigid Mental Test."

But who is she? What was she? What will she become?

In reporting the result of the final tests the examining psychologists gave this description:

"Miss Black's tests indicated that she has remarkable mental poise, undoubted intellectual ability of the highest order, a commanding personality and vast ambition."

The newspapers sent reporters to Plymouth for a more detailed description. Here was a girl in whom powers of genius had been discovered. A business man, as soon as the result of the test was published had offered her an executive position. He had indicated that $50,000 a year might be her salary after a while. The movies made her offers. She refused both.

Wanted to Be a Medical Specialist.

They found Miss Black going about her work as a teacher of tubercular children in the social service department of the Plymouth Cordage Company.

"What do you want to do?" she was asked.

"I want to be a doctor," was her prompt reply.

"What sort of doctor?"

"A specialist in children's diseases."

The reporters found her not only intelligent but attractive, and were quite carried away by the infrequent combination.

"She is five feet six inches tall, beautifully proportioned, slender without thinness, with blue direct eyes and the color of perfect health," one writer described. "Her light brown hair frames her face and is drawn into at knot at the back that has a quaint suggestion of an old-time portrait. Her features are so regular as to have been called Grecian, but mobile with the character and intelligence that are her most distinguishing characteristics."

She was not at all flushed over the flattering title of "potential genius."

"Good heavens," she laughed, "Won't my kid brothers roar? Imagine their faces when they read that their sister is a genius. They'll yell, 'What did those profs find out that made them think that bonehead a genius?' You know, I'm not a genius at all. There's more to genius than simply doing something on which you've set your heart."

She told her life story; this girl who had been found in a factory by a quixotic search for genius; and the story was one which gratified every dramatic element. She had come from a simple home. She had had only those advantages poor children have. She had been making of her life what she could, taking work as a stop-gap between her and her ambition. She had been working slowly toward her goal. It was a goal on which she had determined when she was 10 years old.

Works to Pay Through School.

Muriel Black's parents live in La Peer, Mich. Her father runs a small taxicab business in that town. Here she received most of her schooling, the family having moved to La Peer from a smaller Michigan town. She graduated from the La Peer high school and went to work to earn money enough for a normal school course at Kalamazoo. She worked for a year as a traveling agent for the Michigan Central Railroad. Then followed a year of school. She returned the third year and acted as manager of the taxicab business. The fourth year she returned to school.

Her first teaching position was at a small college in Texas where she had the post of physical instructor and laboratory assistant. The next year she came to Plymouth and was engaged as a teacher at $1300 a year in the Spooner School of North Plymouth. Her connection with the Plymouth Cordage Co. came about through contact with social welfare workers employed by the plant. She was given the post of assistant librarian in the Loring Library, which is supported by the factory.

Her present position is as instructor of tubercular children and she will finish out the year as she is on contract. Her plans when the year is out are uncertain. But a movement is under way among the members of the committee which undertook the search for genius to finance her medical education. There is a tremendous field in child surgery and this branch of medicine. Miss Black had done considerable work preparatory to a medical school course, but until the survey she saw no immediate prospect of undertaking the four years of study. Her problem was one of finances.

Work Year, Study Year, Her Plan.

"I had planned to work a year and study a year," she told the correspondent. "Of course, that would be very slow, but I am determined to become a doctor. When I was a little girl I had decided that I would be a trained nurse, not realizing that wome study medicine. A few years later I woman physician and talked with her assured me it was possible. Since have been working toward an M. D."

It is likely that an endowment o sort will be provided for her. The of the Search-for-a-Genius Commi Charles A. Andrews of Merril, Oldha B. Preston Clark of the Plymouth C Co. and Frank P. Cox of the General Co.—have indicated that help will be her and some of the others whose and ambitions have been disclosed survey.

It is probable, therefore, that Muri will be given the opportunity to "potential genius." The world may too much of her. She may surprise the Anyway, she is one "hidden gem" wh had the light of day. It is up to sparkle.

Prof. Hall-Quest Divorces Wife So She Can Wed Anothe

During this year Dr. Hall-Quest occasionally wrote to his wife begging her for an interview which "would end this dreadful situation." She replied in one letter, "I wanted to show you if possible that my going away with Fred was necessary, not because it meant the consummation of the love that is between us, but because it offered as we saw it the only way for an upbuilding made necessary by years of tearing-down process.

No Secrecy Desired by Them

"That public scandal should be averted for your sake I can quite realize, but Fred and I can and must take all of the blame that attaches to our decision to live together. Thereforce, no secrecy was even contemplated when we left."

This and other letters balked the doctor. Mrs. Hall-Quest, in referring to building-up and tearing-down processes, was speaking of souls. She meant that she and Hart, whose souls had been torn down by years of contact with souls which were not "true mates," at last had found each other and were building up their own souls again through the most intimate of relationships.

Dr. Hall-Quest was a miserable man. He who had become a doctor of philosophy by knowledge of school administration, child psychology, balanced courses of study and comparative educational systems was up against a problem in souls and hearts. Had he been a mere teacher, a mere unit in the educational system he might have been nearer the problem. But Dr. Hall-Quest was not only a teacher, he was a teacher of teachers. He was removed from life one further step than most teachers. He did not practice education first hand; he taught the science of education. His mental life was the abstract of abstractions; the dryest part of the dust.

"I must suppress my primitive emotions," he repeated over and over to himself in making his final decision. Alas, that was his tragedy. Mrs. Hall-Quest had not wanted primitive emotions suppressed.

Thus it came about that Dr. Hall-Quest decided to bow to the inevitable. He could not win his wife back. He would act unselfishly. He would obtain a divorce, quietly, and do his share toward freeing the love birds in Evanston. The divorce might open the scandal and bring publicity for a time, but if Mrs. Hart also got a divorce, Hart and Mrs. Hall-Quest might marry and the scandal would be closed.

In September he entered upon new work at the University of Pittsburg, taking charge of its extension department, which trains students by correspondence, arranges educational lectures and in other ways carries the university to the people. Just this had been Dr. Hall-Quest's hobby. As far as his work was concerned he should have been happy. He was a step nearer his goal.

So He Gallantly Stepped Aside

But he had left his wife behind. He was not happy. After a series of letters to Mrs. Knox in which he mourned the love that had died, he filed suit for divorce in Chicago. He kept Hart's name out of the petition, offering to supply it to the Court privately. His charge was infidelity, borne out by his wife's letters to him in which she frankly admitted she was living in adultery with Hart.

The newspapers quickly discovered the name of the "other man." Scandal will out. At once reporters were sent to interview the principals. Hart and Mrs. Hall-Quest could not be reached for a statement. Dr. Hall-Quest received reporters in his office at the University of Pittsburg and unemotionally dictated this interview:

After 16 years of happy, married life, I allowed my wife to join the other man without trouble because I loved her. Sixteen years are sometimes most of a man's living, you know, and in those 16 years I learned much—much of heartaches, much of joy and, greatest of all, to suppress primitive emotions.

Mr. Hart was my best friend when our two families lived as neighbors in Cincinnati. His wife and I had no idea what was going on behind our backs, and no one was more surprised than myself. Just the anguish Mrs. Hart might have gone through if this affair had become public held me from summary action. I have no doubt that it would have killed her—an innocent victim of their insane love. (Meaning Hart's and Mrs. Hall-Quest's.)

My conduct toward this man is not the result of my own primitive feelings. What was the use of attempting some violent action when it would have done injury to my wife and his wife?

I can understand my wife's actions perfectly. I don't doubt now that she really loves him. She was brilliant, loved and the attendant luxuries that wealth give, and which I as a professional could not provide. Mr. Hart is wea his business will not be hurt by he does personally and that explains actions.

"His Ambition Wrecked His H

Dr. Hall-Quest's mother-in-law, Mrs. when apprised of his opinions concerning daughter's motives, advanced a theory own. She said:

"Dr. Hall-Quest's own ambition wreck home. Shirley longer for children years. He worshipped her beauty, and ously guarded her health. He denied her dren, believing that she was enough to go through childbirth.

"The hardest part of it is that I am of them all. Shirley is a dear, dear girl these years I knew she was unhappy, has been so brave and has tried to right thing.

"Dr. Hall-Quest, poor boy, had the motives. He was ambitious for himself for Shirley. And Major and Mrs. have met them both and like them. Shirley and Major Hart had only met ago, this dreadful mistake could happened.

"When Shirley and Major Hart went together, even then Dr. Hall-Quest would give up. He kept writing me heartbro letters begging me to influece Shirley

DAISY, Mo., Oct. 18.

RANK SEABAUGH fooled 'em all. Wife mother-in-law, cousins, friends, enemies and bank examiners. He took $50,000 m the Farmers' Bank of Daisy—or least that much is missing, and so is ank. Stealing methodically, while no one pected, he looted the accounts of his relaes and neighbors. Then he vanished.

No one thought he had it in him. That is reason he was able to do the work so ly. No one could have believed it of ank. He wore blue denim shirts and the t of one suit with the trousers of another oth frayed and sometimes patched. Who ld suspect a bank cashier always so innsively dressed? No examiner doubted but t the little bank at Daisy was sound, it in rather incompetent hands. After it was not an important bank, and there e so many others to be examined. If directors who were familiar with Seagh's methods thought it was all right, t more could be done?

Daisy is only a step from the farms. The k cashier at Daisy was only a step from plow. Frank seemed to realize that. en, back in 1914, Tom Crites, farmer and ckman, decided that Daisy ought to have a k, he saw Frank about it the first thing. nk had taught district schools and knew thmetic. Would he like a job at $40 a th? Frank said he guessed he'd try it. course, after the bank got started he would ect more money. Crites agreed, feeling e that Frank would never expect much re.

He Never Made Pretensions

"He sure don't dress fitten to be a cashier," y commented in front of the blacksmith op.

"That's a good sign. When he begins to wear swell clothes and run around I'm drawin' my money out."

"Frank's honest. Hell, he don't know enough not to be!"

They chuckled about Frank. But they'd shove their Liberty bonds under the window and say, "Keep those for me, will you, Frank? I'm kinda leery about leavin' 'em around the house." And they would seldom ask for a receipt.

Once the cash reserve of the bank was so low that there was not enough to pay a $100 check a depositor presented.

Frank scratched his head.

"I can fix you up tomorrow."

"Sure. That's all right. I ain't in no hurry noways."

He seemed to accumulate slowly. Folks heard that he and his wife, Minnie, were buying the house down the road where they lived. His salary had mounted with the growth of the bank until one year when $140,000 was on deposit he was paid $75 a month. It soon fell, under readjustments by the directors, to $65 and then to $60, however. To add to his income he acted as notary public, filling in blanks on deeds with ponderous, methodical mien. He sold insurance, too.

His life was so easily watched. It held pretty much to the short track between the bank and his house, with occasional trips to Perryville, or Oak Ridge, or Jackson or Cape Girardeau. Minnie usually went along. He bought a Ford, paying part cash, and later traded it for a Chevrolet. This car burned accidentally and he bought another Ford, using the insurance money for part-payment and giving a lien for $200. These little transactions were known. Frank has many relatives who asked intimate questions, which Seabaugh always answered candidly.

A Family and Church Man

There were no sprees in Frank; no apparent yearning for better things; no discernible desire to leave this little cubby hole of a bank. Looking on, the depositors thought they saw a rut in that path between the yellow house and the gray bank. Snow fell in it and autumn leaves, and daisies grew on either side. Frank walked it contentedly—they thought.

He was a family man and a church man. His daughter, Prudence, went to school at Oak Ridge. His son, Jimmy, is four years old now. Frank seemed to love them both and to have modest plans. When Prue graduated last spring from the grammar school he arranged with relatives in Perryville to board her so that she could enter high school this fall. Some folks thought the outfit Mrs. Seabaugh bought for Prudence was extravagant. Some said it was a shame to make Frank scratch to put finery on that youngster's back.

Seeing the cashier and his wife in church every Sunday, the neighbors did not gossip too much. After all, if they wanted to squander a few dollars on Prue's clothes it was their affair. Poor old Frank! He was getting old, even at 47. His hair, plastered down was thinning. They could see that as he passed the hymn books or took up the collection. Frank was a deacon, and led the singing in a bass voice. Rough, untutored and homely, that voice reassured depositors every Sunday. It even got a little business for the bank, too. It was a dependable voice; a voice that sought no flighty heights. Steady slow, church-going Frank.

FRANK SEABAUGH.

This last year things had not been so well at the bank. Deposits were falling off. There were no dividends for the 30 odd stockholders who owned the $10,000 worth of stock. President Crites talked the matter over with his cashier.

"I think we oughta close out," he said.

"Wait a while. I'll get the business back. The folks keep drawing money out to buy automobiles and farms, or else they draw it out to lend to others what want to buy autos and farms. But I'll get it back," Frank told him.

"We're losing our interest," Crites grumbled.

"I'll work for less. I'll try to live on less," Frank offered.

So it was agreed two months ago that he should work for $60 a month until the deposits started climbing from the low mark of $60,000 back to $140,000 and that Frank was to get $10 a month increase for every $10,000 he added to the deposits.

But the directors were not satisfied.

"Frank's too slow," they objected. "He'll never get back the business."

Crites saw a chance to trade the bank stock for a farm. He entered into negotiations with bankers at Perryville. They were to come down for a conference one Tuesday and check up the bank's assets.

That Monday evening Frank was late getting in for supper. His wife knew that he had been worrying about the bank. He feared, she supposed, that the new management would not keep him as cashier.

Calm, Methodical to the Last

He was calm and methodical as always. He ate more biscuits than usual. His wife saw nothing strange in that because Frank always had a better appetite when he was worried. Paradoxical Frank!

"Do you think you'll stay on?" she asked him.

"They want me to," was his reply. "But I don't reckon I will. I guess it will be better for everybody concerned if I quit."

"Why?"

He let that pass. He finished his supper. Mrs. Seabaugh explains now that she did not press the question because, "I always did what I wanted and let Frank do as he wanted." That was their marriage after 18 years.

He got up and put on his hat and coat. He stopped by the dining room door to play for a minute with Jimmy. Then he walked through to the living room and spoke to his wife.

"I'm going over to Perryville to tell 'em I won't keep the job," he said.

She heard him starting the Ford outside. He turned it down the quiet road. She has not seen him since. She has not heard his voice again, nor received a line of writing from him. Nor has anyone else in Daisy or Cape Girardeau County.

Frank had lit out.

They were talking about Frank when the correspondent's automobile rolled into Daisy. Squire H. W. Hahs, Max Drum, Dave Crites and Albert Leiney held session across the street from the bank in the shade of an elm tree near the blacksmith shop. They were speaking in the past tense, as of one who has left never to return. Suicide could not have put such a tone in their voices. Frank had done something worse, they felt; something more inexplicable, something grander and more daring. He had stolen $50,000 from a bank.

It was to Squire Hahs that the visitor addressed himself. The Squire has a ruddy face and a beard and is a solid citizen. The oak plan across two "horses," on which he sat, was sagged noticeably.

"Have any of you heard from Mr. Seabaugh?" was the first question after introductions.

"No sir, we have not," said the Squire. "There ain't nobody else in this county heard from him either."

"Where do folks think he is?"

Smiles went around the little group.

"We wouldn't be settin' here if we knew," said one.

"Some think he ain't far away," said another.

"The last we heard of him, sir, he was at Cape Girardeau," informed the Squire.

"Frank left his car at a garage there," supplemented one of the four. "He drove it in and come back after a while and got a bottle of liquor from under the seat. That was just like Frank. He wouldn't leave nothin'."

The Seabaugh house at Daisy, which he may have purchased with money stolen from the bank. His wife, however, asserts that it was bought from their savings.

They chuckled at this; then fell to arguing whether Frank was near or far.

"He could be hidin' in somebody's house. The Sheriff would never find him."

"No, sir, I can't believe that's what he done. I figure Frank's put a whole lot of distance between hisself and this town."

They Didn't Know Him After All

"You mind what I tell you. He ain't far. He'll show up some of these days. He'll do just like Wash Miller over at Oak Ridge done. He'll come back an' take two years in the pen and be out inside of 11 months, swaggerin' around and smokin' good cigars."

The speaker faltered. His voice lacked conviction. It was clear that Frank had never swaggered nor smoked good cigars before this happened and any forecast as to his behavior was the veriest guess work.

The Squire cleared his throat.

"I'm 84 years old," he announced.

There was silence.

"I've studied about this, an' studied about that," he continued judiciously. "It's a plumb puzzle. I haven't got nowhere. You see, young man, none of us had any idee Frank would do what he done. We figured we knew him pretty well, but we didn't at all."

"Could he have run off with some other woman?" broke in the reporter.

They were amazed at the question.

"Frank run off with a woman?"

"Aw—Frank was too slow for that. And besides he never run around with none. He always stayed at home, Frank did."

"Did he want a taste of high life?"

Again the same bewilderment.

"High life?"

"Wine, women and song," the reporter explained.

They shook their heads.

"Frank never drank, did he?" one asked another.

A fifth man who had approached broke in:

"Yep, he drank. Bill told me Frank bought moonshine a few days before he run-off."

A solemn debate followed. It was decided that Frank might have taken a dram now and then, but so did others. So did most of the depositors, good substantial citizens all. No, they would not say that Frank had ever displayed a taste for high life.

"He liked singing," one conceded. "He always led the singing at church."

Never Had the Cabaret Taste

"He means singing in these here cabarets," the Squire objected. "No, young man, we can't understand what made Frank do it. Of course folks have different ideas about it, but they don't know."

It was clear that these neighbors—all of them depositors in the bank just across the dusty road—were stumped when it came to explaining the defalcation of Frank Seabaugh. His act had changed him completely. It was not a rational act by all their standards. They had found guile under a denim shirt, a lie behind Frank's easy, good-natured drawl; cunning in Frank's clumsy hands; betrayal in his candid eyes; daring in his simple mind. They were appalled.

"I'm 84 years old," said the Squire, "and I've never seen anything like it. Nothing like it has ever happened around here. Frank's running off with our money has hurt folks all over the county. He took money folks needed bad. Crops haven't been none too good these years."

"He even robbed his poor old father," added Max Drum. "An old man, all stove up. Joe Seabaugh had $1100 in the bank. Frank took it."

"The old man is feeling it, too," said Leiney. "He's said he never wants Frank to darken his door again. He's goin' to cut him out of his will."

"Frank took old man Johnson's money, too."

"Yep. How much did the old man have?"

"Eight thousand, they tell me."

"All he had in the world except his farm."

"Well, look how he did his own brother-in-law, Art Cobble over at Millersville. Took every cent Art had."

Took Their Lifetime Earnings

"He cleaned out Ed Longey, too. That's the worst case. Ed and his wife had worked all their lives for the money they put in the bank. It's all gone."

And so they talked, there by the bend in the road. They told of case after case in which the dishonesty of Frank Seabaugh had despoiled workers of their little all.

"He left his wife without a cent," finished the Squire. "She didn't have enough to pay the grocery bill. She had to go back to her old man's over Millersville way."

The correspondent left them just as an argument started as to whether Frank might be down in Mexico by now.

He walked across to the Farmers' Bank of Daisy. It is a little shack of a building. In the window is a small round safe, empty. The vault door stands open, a litter of papers on the floor. There is an adding machine and a typewriter. The walls are white and bare. Back in the directors' room is a table. The rear door of this room was standing open that morning. It looks out on a cornfield. Beyond is a field newly sowed to wheat, and ranging still further beyond a low crest of hills splotched with the colors of autumn.

Here Frank Seabaugh worked for 10 years. It would make a striking set for some play like "The Adding Machine," with the action cast for rural characters. Here he outraged the little part that was molded for him by his environment. The bank itself looks outraged. It is such a quiet, peaceful bank, with no sophistication about it. No marble. No grill work. No bookkeeping machines. A country bank, commonplace and crude. Like Frank used to be, before he robbed it.

COUNTY ASKED TO TRADE STRIPS WITH U. R. SUBSIDIARY

Condemnation Application Filed After Company Gave Up Ground for Road.

The condemnation application filed by the Florissant Real Estate and Investment Co., a United Railways subsidiary, against a strip of ground paralleling Manchester road east of the Kirkwood tracks, involves a virtual trade in which the county is asked to give a strip 120 feet long for a strip 359 feet long.

In rebuilding and straightening the Manchester road, the State Highway Commission got from the Florissant Real Estate and Investment Co. a strip 350 long, with a maximum width of 60 feet, which made it possible to eliminate a curve in the road by extending a cut-off directly across the property of the investment company. The new road will be opened Nov. 3, and on that day the Florissant Real Estate and Investment Co. will ask for condemnation of a strip of the old road. The larger strip of ground was deeded to the State without expense and the real estate and investment company is asking that similar action be taken in giving it the smaller piece of property.

Health Depends On Condition of Kidneys

You cannot obtain life insurance unless the doctor makes an examination to determine the health of the kidneys. Outside of the few questions he may ask, this is considered one of the vital points upon which your physical condition is determined. Yet many people think that because they passed this test successfully, months or even years ago, there is nothing the matter with their kidneys today. A similar test today might prove them to be in a diseased condition. The cause of backache, headache, swelling of the extremities, dizziness, etc., may often be directly traced to improper kidney action. Persons suffering from ills caused by failure of the kidneys to perform their duties should take at once Warner's Safe Remedy for the Kidneys and Liver. It has been used with beneficial results for 50 years by millions in all parts of the world. Your health depends on the condition of your kidneys, so do not wait until it is too late before giving attention to these delicate organs. Sold by leading druggists everywhere. $60-A-MONTH BANK CASHIER RUNS AWAY WITH $50,000

The correspondent had failed to discover why the cashier stole. He had a little more success in finding how he managed it. H. G. Harrison, the examiner in charge of liquidation, showed him a sheaf of ledger sheets.

"These were all active accounts," Harrison explained. "Seabaugh simply tore them out of the ledger book and deducted them from his totals.

The examiners discovered that the checking-account deposits, which should have shown $16,000 on the books, had been reduced to $3200 by this method. They also found that the time-deposit certificates were placed at $29,000 by Seabaugh when they should have shown $36,000. Besides this, $20,000 in notes are missing. The supposition is that they have been secretly sold to discounters. Besides these thefts, $10,000 worth of Liberty bonds and other securities which patrons of the bank left with Frank are gone.

"People have been driving over here every day to see if their bonds are gone," Harrison said. "Very few have receipts. Some have kept the registry numbers."

It was crude work, boldly done. In the book of time-deposit registries there are several changed figures, showing alteration with a view to theft. Here and there a 3 had been changed to a 2 by the expedient of writing over, or a 9 reduced to a 1 by use of a knife. Then, there is the register of the bank's 350 depositors, which reads like the roll of betrayed trusts. The Ladies' Aid Society's account of some $35 is just above the account of one of Frank's cousins.

The Bank Is Utterly Wrecked.

The bank is utterly wrecked and its $10,000 stock worthless. Thus, the total loss to the community is $60,000. Seabaugh was bonded for $5000, but this sum will not repair much of the damage. The building itself is worth about $500.

But what did he do with it? Where did it go?

Neither Harrison nor anyone else can say. Not a single illegal transaction has come to light yet. It is all a mystery.

Next to see Frank's wife. You take the road to Millersville and make a left turn after you pass the Methodist Church outside of town. On the way, you go by the farmhouse of Tom Crites, the bank president.

He was sitting on his front porch some 20 feet from the road. His yard was littered with pumpkins and several were stacked on the porch. He came to the front gate to add his story to the tale of Frank Seabaugh's dishonesty.

"We never thought he'd do anything like that," said Crites, and the words sounded very familiar.

"Didn't you suspect the condition of the bank?"

"No. You see, the examiner was down two months ago. He kicked because we didn't have enough cash on hand. He told us to put up some notes. We did, and raised $2000 that way. Then we subscribed another $2000. That would put the bank on its feet again, we thought. But Frank, dern him, went and run off with that $4000, too."

To the road again under golden maples and rich red-leaved oaks, across a creek and up 16 hills; into glorious valleys smelling of October and far-up country to the home of Jim Cobble, Frank's father-in-law.

Mrs. Seabaugh and her parents receive their visitor cordially. Jimmy Seabaugh ran into the room and announced: "I'm the tootinest kid on the highway." It was his one and only prize saying. After that he subsided on his grandfather's knee. His mother did most of the talking.

Surprise to His Wife, Too.

"I didn't have anything to do with this," she said. "It was as much of a surprise to me as it was to anybody else."

"Then you don't make excuses for your husband?"

Her teeth clicked. She is a comely woman, still under 40, with a very determined way about her.

"I certainly do not," she said, and her voice was cold. "This is his doing and I'm not mixed up in it. He ran off and left me, and he can get out of it. I haven't any use for stealing. I wish you'd say that in your paper. Some of the folks around Daisy are saying I helped my husband take that money."

"He never indicated to you that he needed money?"

"Why, no. He was making good money. We didn't live beyond our means. Folks are saying, too, that I was extravagant. That isn't so. Does this look extravagant?"

She spread out the skirt of her gingham dress.

What would she do now? She shrugged. What was there to do but live at home with her parents? Her man had run away.

"I'm going to try to keep Prue in high school," she volunteered. "You know, she's at Perryville."

As in Daisy, the impression could not be escaped. She was talking of her husband as if he were dead. She acted as if Frank Seabaugh had died that evening he absconded. The Frank Seabaugh they were talking about now—the absconding cashier—was a different man. She was no longer interested.

"Did you suspect, Mrs. Cobble?"

Frank's mother-in-law looked a bit discomfited.

"No, young man; not exactly," she confessed.

In vain their visitor tried to discover some hint of what had been the vanished one's secret thoughts; his hidden ambition; his suppressed desire; his one longing.

"I don't think he had any," said Mrs. Seabaugh, flatly.

LONDON NIGHT-LIFE, RENEWED BY EXHIBITION, TO CONTINUE

Cafes to Be Permitted to Remain Open Until 2 A. M. Following Visitors' Demands.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Londoners, having become accustomed during the British Empire exhibition to staying up half the night, as so many city dwellers of the continent and America do, are to be permitted by their county council to remain in the habit indefinitely. The council has decided to permit hotels, cabarets and night clubs remain open five nights a week until 2 a. m.

Before the exhibition at Wembley, the people of London were not supposed to stay up very late, at least not more than one night each week. There were plenty of laws intended to persuade them to go to bed early, but when the tourists came rolling in to London last spring from the seven seas, eager for fun and lots of it, there seemed every prospect that, if these pleasure-seeking persons were not provided with ample amusement at nearly all hours in London, they would strike out with their money for Paris. So the midnight closing law on places that live by fox trot tunes and champagne was lifted.

Soon the Londoner, who used to go across the channel whenever he decided to take a fling at night life, discovered that it was just as good fun staying in his home town. In consequence, few objected when it was proposed recently to extend indefinitely the longer hours.

FREES WIFE SO SHE CAN WED "PERFECT LOVER"

"Yes."

"It was explained that Mrs. Hart would receive $5000 cash and $200 a month for the rest of her life, providing she does not remarry. She also was to have $300 toward counsel's fees.

The Court granted the divorce under the alimony provision as stipulated.

Dr. Hall-Quest has resigned his position with the University of Pittsburg, giving as the reason "I did not wish to embarrass the university because of recent publicity given my affairs."

Hart and Mrs. Hall-Quest were married at Chicago Thursday evening. Circuit Judge Sullivan performed the ceremony at a hotel, and only a few friends were present as witnesses.

Widening Pro Interest in

Six-Story Building to East of Twenty-Sec Inquiries for Hol

By Berry Moore.

The definite status taken by the roject for widening Olive street as aroused interest in this thoroughfare west of Twelfth boulevard, heretofore comparatively dormant, according to real estate agents.

Plans were announced yesterday for the erection on the north side of Olive street, just east of Twenty-second street, of a six-story fireproof loft building. The lot 44 by 109 feet, was acquired under contract recently by clients of the Dougherty-Sheehan Real Estate Co., contingent upon the success of the widening project.

The building will be of reinforced concrete construction and equipped with an automatic sprinkler system, steam-heating plant, freight and passenger elevators, industrial plumbing and circulating ice water system, and will have electric wiring for illumination and power equipment. It especially will be adapted for light manufacturing purposes.

Upper Floor Is Leased.

The Reliable Automatic Sprinkler Co. of New York has acquired a long lease of an upper floor of the building. Other concerns also are negotiating for space in the building.

The building project, according to Walter Sheehan of the Dougherty-Sheehan company, anticipates a demand for modern buildings on upper Olive street which is to be made a 100-foot thoroughfare between Twelfth boulevard and Channing avenue. The street is to be widened by taking 40 feet off the south side, which will necessitate moving the buildings back or chopping off their fronts, which will involve a considerable amount of reconstruction.

The first step in this direction was taken Oct. 3, when the Board of Estimate and Apportionment directed the City Counselor's offile to pay $1,942,604 to the Circuit Court, to be held in escrow and paid later to the property holders in accordance with a special commissioner's report of property damage incurred in the widening.

Six-story reinforced concrete country loft building, to be erected on the north side of Olive street

Widening Project Arouses Interest in Olive Street

Six-Story Building to Be Constructed Just East of Twenty-Second Street—Many Inquiries for Holdings Reported.

By Berry Moore.

The definite status taken by the project for widening Olive street has aroused interest in this thoroughfare west of Twelfth boulevard, heretofore comparatively dormant, according to real estate agents.

Plans were announced yesterday for the erection on the north side of Olive street, just east of Twenty-second street, of a six-story fireproof loft building. The lot 44 by 100 feet, was acquired under contract recently by clients of the Dougherty-Sheehan Real Estate Co., contingent upon the success of the widening project.

The building will be of reinforced concrete construction and equipped with an automatic sprinkler system, steam-heating plant, freight and passenger elevators, industrial plumbing and circulating ice water system, and will have electric wiring for illumination and power equipment. It especially will be adapted for light manufacturing purposes.

Upper Floor Is Leased.

The Reliable Automatic Sprinkler Co. of New York has acquired a long lease of an upper floor of the building. Other concerns also are negotiating for space in the building.

The building project, according to Walter Sheehan of the Dougherty-Sheehan company, anticipates a demand for modern buildings on upper Olive street which is to be made a 100-foot thoroughfare between Twelfth boulevard and Channing avenue. The street is to be widened by taking 40 feet off the south side, which will necessitate moving the buildings back or chopping off their fronts, which will involve a considerable amount of reconstruction.

The first step in this direction was taken Oct. 3, when the Board of Estimate and Apportionment directed the City Counselor's offiie to pay $1,942,604 to the Circuit Court, to be held in escrow and paid later to the property holders in accordance with a special commissioner's report of property damage incurred by the widening.

Money From Bond Issue.

The total damage assessed against the property is $2,349,507, but from this amount the commission has authorized a deduction of $406,903 to represent the benefit accruing to the property owners. Eventually the cost of the property will be offset by the assessment of $1,857,130 against other property owners in the benefited district, $492,377 to come from the city treasury. Advance money for the street widening is provided by the recent $87,000,000 bond issue.

Real estate circles report spirited inquiries for holdings on Olive street as far west as the Lindell cut-off, due to the tangible form taken by the project. Sites available for shops for special lines, automobile salesrooms and loft buildings, are being sought principally. Plans are being drafted for many buildings of this character. The more optimistic venture the prediction that construction along this line once started will transform this thoroughfare within a comparatively short time.

The movement on this thoroughfare promises to be augmented in no small degree, as a result of the speculative interests now manifest, and which is always a factor in swelling the volume of market operations.

CEMENT COMPANY BUYS 6-ACRE TRACT

The Missouri Portland Cement Co., with offices in the Post-Dispatch Building, has purchased six acres on Natural Bridge road and the Terminal Railway tracks, to be held in reserve for expansion purposes. Meantime the ground will be occupied by the company as yards.

The tract has a frontage of 442 feet on the south side of Natural Bridge road by a depth of 520 feet, and a frontage on the Terminal Railway of 325 feet. The price was not disclosed.

The main plant of the company, one of the foremost concerns of its kind in the country, is at Prospect on the river front, just north of the city limits. The business of the company is exceeding all previous records, reflected in the run up in the price of the company's stock, which was quoted yesterday at 141, being up more than 40 points as compared with its levels of a year ago. The tract purchased was owned by the Mars Realty Co.

E. DAVIS CO. LEASES LOCUST STREET CORNER

The E. Davis Realty Co., of which Everett Davis is president, has acquired a 10-year lease of the ground floor room at the northwest corner of Eleventh and Locust streets. The Mercantile Trust Co. negotiated the lease for Thomas Dunn.

The corner will become the headquarters, Nov. 1, of the Davis organization, which has been established in the Odd Fellows' Building for the last 10 years.

The new quarters will be remodeled on a handsome scale with fixtures or Bottichino marble and with woodwork of American walnut and with decoartions in Travertin stone similar to that of Loew's State Theater. The contract for this work, involving $10,000, has been let to the St. Louis Bank and Equipment Co. Additional expenditures will run the cost to $14,000 or more.

The Davis company is one of the largest organizations in the subdivision field, having laid out many residential developments, adjacent to the city, including Maryland Terrace, Maryland Drive, Alta Dena and Pershing Heights. The Home Supreme, one of the attractive features of Alta Dena, was built by the company.

MANY HOUSES NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION AND CONTRACT

The Security Guarantor Realty Co. has let a contract for a concrete street to R. B. Sheridan & Co. for immediate construction to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. It announces that the Riley Construction Co. has just completed the sewerage work under supervision of the city. Charles H. Niedringhaus, Inc., is erecting five five-room bungalows which will be completed in the next 10 days.

The sales manager states that business has picked up materially due to favorable weather. Various contractors are contemplating on starting and finishing about 78 houses between now and the first of the year.

$2,000,000 THEATER TO BE OPENED IN JUNE

"The St. Louis," New Picture House at Grand and Morgan, Will Seat 4200.

St. Louis' new $2,000,000 motion picture house, the St. Louis, at Grand boulevard and Morgan street, will be dedicated about June 1, 1925.

The theater, upon which the steel work is now being started, will be one of the largest west of New York, with a capacity of 4200 seats, and will include the largest cooling and ventilating system in the United States, with a refrigerating plant of 450-ton capacity.

The building will be eight stories high, housing only the theater and two business places on the ground floor; the exterior will be in terra cotta and gray brick with marble base. Rapp and Rapp, architects, have planned the building and Koplar Brothers are the builders. The building is being erected by the Metropolitan Theaters Corporation, of which David Sommers is president, Sam Koplar, vice president, Emil S. Strauss, treasurer, and Lambert E. Walther, secretary.

Sommers says that while St. Louis capital is mainly interested, no other St. Louis theatrical enterprise or interests are involved in the new project.

On the interior the theater will be done in a style appropriate to the city for which it is named—St. Louis. Both Sommers and a representative of the architectural firm spent several weeks this summer at Versailles, the famous old royal palace of Louis XIV, just out of Paris. There they studied the furnishings and color scheme. As a result, the interior will be a replica in decorative theme of the renowned chapel of Versailles, done in red and blue. Rich French tapestry made in the Gobelin factories will grace the walls; painters of note have been engaged to do the frescoes in keeping with St. Louis' historical glories. That not a note of the royal grandeur may be lost, the lounge furniture of the same period is being made in Europe.

All the latest and unique appurtenances of stagecraft will be utilized; the entire orchestra will be on a platform raised and lowered by hydraulic machinery. The pipe organ will be the largest in the city. The mezzanine floor will be devoted entirely to boxes.

An opening of broad civic and national importance is planned for its dedication.

When originally planned, the intention was to call the new theater "The Palace" because of its palatial proportions and the gorgeousness of its interior furnishings. General civic persuasion, however, was brought to bear upon the Metropolitan Theaters Corporation by Mayor Kiel, P. V. Bunn, general secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and others to have the theater named for the city itself.

PAUL MEEKER BUYS HOUSE IN COUNTRY CLUB DISTRICT

Paul W. Meeker of East St. Louis has purchased a house in the new Country Club court on the north side of Wydown boulevard. It is being built by the Willitm Remmert Construction Co.

The second house to be completed has been sold. Three others are almost ready and the foundations for five more have been started.

The company is adhering to selling no lots, preferring to build the houses and sell them so that when the court is finally completed it will be a harmonious whole. When the court is completed it will represent an investment of about $1,000,000.

5710 CLEMENS AVENUE IS SOLD BY MERCANTILE TRUST

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports the sale of 5710 Clemens avenue, a modern 10-room residence, lot 60 by 175 feet, for account of Samuel L. Woodward to Julia Willis Veatch. After redecorating exterior and interior, the purchaser will occupy the house as a home.

Country Club Court

Hanley Road, One Block North of Wydown Boulevard

Two of the homes in this new, beautiful residence district have been completed and the one above is now ready, and two more are nearing completion.

These houses are being erected with the same care and consideration that would be given a home being built under your own supervision. No detail to make them comfortable, efficient and beautiful has been omitted. A few of the attractive features in these seven and eight room residences are the large sunrooms, front and rear porches, oil burners for the hot-water heating plants, instantaneous hot-water heaters, electric refrigeration, garbage consumers, ventilating fans, white glazed brick garages for two cars, built in the houses, tile baths on each floor, pedestal lavatories, showers, double drain board porcelain sinks, cork linoleum on kitchen floors, bevel plate mirrors in doors, imported crystal prism lighting fixtures, Los Angeles Batchelor Tile Mantels, large closets and cabinets, and many other details which can only be appreciated when seen. Huttig's Satin Brand millwork is used throughout.

Homes in this Court range in price from $20,000 to $25,000. Residences such as these are usually offered at much higher figures, but our volume of construction makes possible these low prices. Satisfactory terms can be arranged.

FARMS Wtd.—Lower Rio Grande valley citrus, vegetable and farm lands to trade for Missouri or Oklahoma farms or city income property. N. Batson, Edinburg, Tex.

NOTICE!
TO REAL ESTATE MEN

To help supply the unprecedented demand for farm lands and town property in West Texas, the F. Z. BISHOP LAND COMPANY has recently opened its headquarters office in Amarillo, Texas, at the Palo Duro Hotel. With branch offices at Plainview and a representative and salesmanager at Muleshoe and Dalhart.

We control a very large amount of land for sale, both retail and wholesale, several very choice tracts ranging from only $12.50 to $30.00 per acre. The majority of this land is well located, near schools and churches, on good roads and most of it near railroads.

We have some of the best bargains and easiest selling land on the plains, located in a district where the crops are good. Some especially good bargains are located in Floyd, Hale, Briscoe, Swisher, Castro, Lamb and Bailey counties. One of our most beautiful tracts is in Hartley county. Near Amarillo we have some especially good bargains in well improved places, as well as some very choice Amarillo city real estate; close-in business property and good vacant lots that will soon be ready for business buildings; trackage property and tracts of land for subdivision.

In the heart of one of the greatest agricultural districts in the West and adjacent to the biggest gas fields in the world, the future of Amarillo is secure. It is already under way for a real business and building boom. It should make a very large city as it already has three trunk line railways.

Today it is the best lighted city in Texas for its size and one of the most modern and up-to-date. It also has fine schools, churches, hospitals, a big auditorium, large Masonic Temple nearing completion and is a city of beautiful homes, with seven different railway outlets and four paved highways.

The bargains we have under control are sure to be what your customer wants. We will pay you a liberal commission. If you want to make money for yourself and friends out of your buyers, correspond with us at once. It will be easy for you to sell our lands as we can accommodate your customers on any part of the plains and furnish them any amount of land that they want, from a town lot to 400,000 acres. Write for our new booklet—"Your Great Opportunity Is Here—Texas Panhandle and South Plains"—now under preparation.

GERMAN PRINCES FIND HAPPINESS BY GOING TO WORK

Younger Men More Contented Than in Old Days; Some Fight for Castles.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 1.—The last 10 years in Germany have deprived many a prince of his income and sent him out to make a living along with the rest of the world. Not a few of the nobility, particularly among the younger generation, have said they were happier and more contented with life generally since they went to work than they were when they had nothing to do but count their income and look for thrills in sports, society or military maneuvers.

What the republic is to do with the property that once belonged to former Emperor William is still an open question. He possessed large estates in Brandenburg, Pommerania, Posnania, Silesia and West Prussia, and other assets, which have been appraised at $40,000,000, all of which he lost when he fled to Holland in 1918. His income today is relatively very modest.

The castles, picture galleries and other valuable collections regarded as the property of the old dynasty were taken over by the State. A number of the princes, however, brought suit to retain their holdings, and have regained title to some of the properties which were confiscated when the republic became a reality.

It has been estimated that the former King of Saxony, Friedrich August, was a loser to the extent of $6,000,000. The Saxon Diet now gives him $80,000 a year.

Other rich noblemen who today are living on greatly reduced incomes are the Grand Duke of Saxony-Weimar, the King of Wuertemberg, the Grand Duke of Oldenburg, and the Prince of Schaumberg-Lippe.

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY WANTS $500,000

President Young Would Make State School for Negroes a Fully Accredited College.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 18.—Lack of adequate educational facilities for negroes in Missouri is the cause of approximately 1000 negro boys and girls going out of Missouri each year to attend colleges in other states, President Nathan B. Young of Lincoln University declared today, in explaining $506,450 in appropriations to be requested of the next Legislature to establish the school as a fully accredited college.

Most of these negro students go to universities and colleges in Kansas, Illinois and Iowa, Young said, because Lincoln University does not provide the educational advantages offered negroes by schools in those states.

Lincoln University, formerly Lincoln Institute, is the only State college for negroes in Missouri. It has been located in Jefferson City since it was founded, in 1866, by soldiers of the Sixty-second and Sixty-fifth United States Colored Infantry Regiments, and now is in its fifty-ninth school year.

Although the school has been strengthened in recent years by State appropriations, it still is below requirements for an accredited college, Young said. Principal weaknesses, he stated, are lack of an accredited staff of teachers, inadequate equipment for many of the courses offered and lack of several courses of study.

Steps to Raise Standard.

Steps to raise the standard of the school were taken this year by separating the high school and college and organizing them as two distinct departments. The high school has been recognized by the State Department of Education as a class "A" high school. Plans have been made to standardize the college faculty, if sufficient salary appropriations are granted for the next biennial period to assemble a fully accredited faculty. The university now has 45 teachers, but many of them lack the training required of college teachers. The present salaries of teachers range from $81 to $160 a month.

President Young said the board of curators had agreed on a program of expansion requiring $506,450 in appropriations, and will seek this amount from the next Legislature, for 1925 and 1926.

A total of $166,000 for salaries for the biennial period will be sought, including $140,000 for administration and the faculty; $10,000 for conducting the summer school; $4000 to pay student labor and $12,000 for other employes.

An appropriation of $215,000 for new buildings will be asked for. The items are $125,000 for a home economics building, $25,000 for an infirmary, $50,000 for a gymnasium and assembly hall, and $15,000 for a dairy barn, to be erected on the college farm of 60 acres, near the university campus.

Building Repairs.

Necessary building repairs, refurnishing of some departments and supplies are estimated at $79,700. Among the items are $1500 for a hothouse, $15,000 for furniture, $5000 for the library, $24,000 for fuel; $10,000 for printing, $5000 for electric light and power, and other supply items.

Repair of the present mechanical arts building and equipment of class rooms is estimated at $23,000, including $5000 for the woodworking department, $4000 for the machine shop, $2500 for auto-mechanics, $5000 for a printing shop, $1000 for drawing equipment and $5500 for repairs. Another $2000 will be asked for equipment for the proposed home economics building and $3000 for livestock and farm implements for the farm.

Other appropriations in the list are $300 for musical instruments; $6750 for equipping the chemistry, physics, biological and psychological laboratories; $2000 for the Board of Curators and $6000 for the university extension courses.

Lincoln University now has an enrollment of 30 college and high school students, made up almost equally of boys and girls. The majority of the students live at the university, which has one dormitory for boys and two for girls. Average expenses of students are estimated at $170 for the school year. About one-third of the students are self-supporting and another third pay part of their expenses by working outside school hours, Young said.

Much of the equipment now in use is old-fashioned or badly worn, Young stated, and the laboratory equipment is limited. Lathes used in the mechanical arts building were purchased in 1891. The farm, used in connection with the agricultural courses, has virtually no equipment. A few mules used on the farm were bought in 1909, when they were 5 years old, it was said.

FIVE SOUTH SIDE THEATERS ARE SOLD

Fred Wehrenberg Acquires Holdings of Fred N. Hoelzer Entire by Transaction.

Negotiations were closed yesterday through the Federer Realty Co. by which five theaters were acquired by Fred Wehrenberg, who is now operating the Cherokee Theater, Cherokee street and Iowa avenue, and the Melba Theater, Grand boulevard and Miami street.

The five theaters purchased by Wehrenberg are the Michigan, 7200 Michigan avenue; Ivory, 7712 Ivory avenue; Margarette, Robert and Minnesota avenues; Mannion's Park Theater, on South Broadway, and the Lidell Theater, at 6500 South Broadway. These properties were bought from Fred N. Hoelzer and represent his entire theater holdings, and will be operated by Fred Wehrenberg in conjunction with his other two theaters, giving him a circuit of seven picture houses in South St. Louis.

The Michigan Theater, which is now under construction, will seat 1200 persons on one floor, and will be one of the leading vaudeville and picture houses on the South Side. Construction is far enough advanced now to insure its completion on the opening date, Thanksgiving day. The purchase price of this theater building was $125,000. It will have the latest improvements, including a large pipe organ.

This transaction is the third notable sale of theater properties made by the Federer Realty Co. to Fred Wehrenberg within the last year, he having purchased the Melba Theater from Eugene Freund, about six months ago, and also purchased a site for a new theater to be erected on Grand boulevard and Meramec street, upon which work will be started in the near future. The plans call for a picture house with a seating capacity of 1400.

The Federer Realty Co. reports that the past week has been a very active one in sales, and that they made loans for $182,000.

FOUR-FAMILY HOUSES ON NEW PLAN AROUSING INTEREST

Much interest has been shown in the neat four-family group of houses just completed by Associated Specialists, Inc., in Webster Groves. Not only were all the houses taken before completion, but many inquiries are coming in from persons having property suitable for such development. Harry Bortin, president of the concern, has had the plan in mind for years. He has turned over in his mind various ideas for retaining the pleasures of a home in the suburbs and eliminating many of its unnecessary chores. Those ideas were placed before Henry Wright, consulting architect. The four-family group is the culmination of many years' study on the part of Wright.

This building group, just completed on North Gore avenue and Rock Hill road, contains four complete two-story and basement homes. Each home has four exposures separate front and service entrances; individual gardens, garages, spacious grounds for tennis court and children's play amidst stately forest trees. In the basement are quarters for a janitor. Heat is furnished from a common hot-water plant equipped with automatic oil burner. Running hot water is available.

An interesting possibility in this plan, which Bortin points out, is that it offers opportunity for a person with property to develop, or money to invest in suburban homes, to have built for him a group in which he may have for himself a private home, meeting his ideas and requirements, and in connection with it to realize an income from one or more of the houses forming a part of his building group.

G. H. FOREE ARRESTED ON FEDERAL CHARGE

Former Dry Agent Accused of Impersonating U. S. Officer in Making Dry Raids.

G. H. Foree of Wellston, former prohibition agent and one-time candidate for Congress, was arrested at his home late yesterday under an indictment returned Wednesday by the Federal Court at Cape Girardeau. He is charged with impersonating a Federal prohibition enforcement officer during raids at Poplar Bluff, Mo., Aug. 6 last, when 39 men and women were arrested.

Foree and other men who described themselves as "citizen investigators" led dry officers from St. Louis and Kansas City in making the raids, most of which were based on evidence obtained by Foree during visits to Poplar Bluff last March and April.

The prisoner was compelled to spend a night in jail, being unable to furnish bond of $5000.

Foree was defeated for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Tenth District here, four years ago. After he was dropped from the rolls as a dry officer, it is understood he served the Anti-Saloon League as an informer. However, at the time of the Poplar Bluff raids, League officials denied he was in their service. He has acted as liquor detective for Prosecuting Attorney Jones of St. Louis County.

WHEELER ASSAILS CURTIS BEFORE KANSAS AUDIENCES

Says Senator Has Told What "Isn't True" About Republican Convention.

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 18.—In two Kansas addresses today Senator Wheeler, Independent vice-presidential candidate, assailed the Republican national administration on the charge of corruption, and incidentally picked out especially Senator Curtis, Republican, Kansas, for personal criticism. He talked first at Newton, before an audience gathered late in the day, and later in Wichita, going directly on after his night engagement to Oklahoma City, where his speaking itinerary places him Monday.

"Now I understand that Senator Curtis has told you that the instances of corruption were individual only," he said, "and that President Coolidge has cleaned out every man who had associations with Fall and Daugherty. That isn't true. I wish he were here in this audience, where I have the unpleasant duty of saying it. President Coolidge hasn't done anything of the kind. Nobody knows it better than Senator Curtis.

"Coolidge got rid of Daugherty only when he had to, reluctantly, and because the Progressives forced his departure. Senator Curtis knows that he was retained as attorney general even when Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Senator Borah of Idaho, members of the president's own party, had tried in vain to obtain his removal."

"Now, they have gotten the price of wheat up in Kansas to fool the farmers," he asserted. "But they won't keep it up long after election. It will go down then, and if you people in Kansas are fooled by that market manipulation, you are not as smart as the farmers of Montana and North Dakota, who can't be taken in again by that trick."

Likening his cause to that of Abraham Lincoln, Wheeler declared that "If Abe, himself, were to come back among us and see how the Republican party had degenerated into the hands of those Washington corruptionists, he would want to go back and be buried deeper than ever, for he never would know any of his party offspring of today."

MRS. JAMES HARVEY ROBINSON DECIDES TO VOTE FOR DAVIS

Wife of Author of "Mind In the Making" Joins League of Independents.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Mrs. James Harvey Robinson, wife of the author of "Mind In the Making," will vote for John W. Davis and has accepted membership on the executive committee of the New York League of Independents for Davis. Mrs. Robinson founded and managed for several years the Drama Book Shop in New York City, and for two years has been selling bonds. She is not a member of any party and in support of her declaration of political independence, she says:

"I shall vote for Mr. Davis because he has an open mind instead of one composed of air-tight hermetically sealed compartments; because he has a background of wide, varied and successful experience of men and affairs as contrasted with a background of machine politics; because he has shown courage and honesty in facing fundamental issues rather than ingenuity in evading them; because he is frankly and avowedly committed to the participation of the United States in concerted effort of the other nations of the world to substitute for war a system of arbitration and mutual agreements, including entry of the United States into the League of Nations as soon as our cumbersome political machinery will permit."

M. I.—Albert Tangora of Paterson, N. J., was declared the world's champion typist last October in New York, when he typed an average of 147 words a minute for an hour in open competition.

INTERESTED. — H. H. Hohenschild was president of the Night and Day Bank, St. Louis, at the time it closed its doors, Jan. 6, 1922. The cashier, A. O. Meininger, was convicted of having a shortage in the bank's accounts. At the first trial the jury failed to agree and was discharged.

READER. — E. L. Sanford was the president of the Holland Bank, located at Springfield, Mo. The bank was closed Jan. 15, 1924, by order of the board of directors. A grand jury began inquiry into the failure April 22, 1924. The recent trial resulted in the conviction of Sanford.

E. M. J.—The recipe for green tomato pickle follows: One peck of green tomatoes, sliced; 6 large onions, sliced; 1 teacup of salt over both; mix thoroughly and let remain over night; pour off liquor in the morning and throw it away; mix 2 quarts of vinegar, 2 pounds of sugar, 2 tablespoons each of allspice, cloves, cinnamon, ginger, and mustard and 12 green peppers chopped fine; boil from 1 to 2 hours. Put away in a stone crock.

LAURIE. — The Veiled Prophet Association was formed in 1878 and the annual visits of the mysterious personage and his retinue have never been broken except during the World War. The strict secrecy that enshrouds the identity of the Veiled Prophet has rigidly been maintained since the annual pageants were inaugurated as one of the greatest charms of the festival. After participating in the parade and entering the entrance scene of the annual ball, the mysterious visitor selects and crowns the queen, dances the opening dance with her and is never seen again for a year.

BEATRICE N. — See answer to "W. J." regarding the Veiled Prophet's parade.

W. J.—The route which was followed by the Veiled Prophet in his parade through the streets of St. Louis in 1923 follows: The parade started from Ranken and Laclede avenues and moved west on Laclede to Vandeventer avenue, north on Vandeventer to Olive street, east on Olive to Grand boulevard, south on Grand to Laclede avenue, east to the intersection of Market and Laclede, east on Market to Twelfth boulevard, north on Twelfth to Olive street, east on Olive to Fourth street, north on Fourth to Washington avenue, west on Washington to Jefferson, south on Jefferson to Locust, where it dispersed and the Prophet and his retinue left the floats and entered the Coliseum.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

FRED L.—Consult a lawyer regarding the street question.

GIGS. — He can draw out the money himself before they have a chance to draw it out.

X. Y. Z.—Consult a lawyer regarding foreclosure on the property.

A. D. I.—The child may be able to recover damages. Her mother or guardian should consult a lawyer. Suit will be barred five years after the accident.

A READER. — If the deed has been recorded it does not matter who holds it. Usually the owner holds it, not the holder of the deed of trust.

F. W.—(1) It does not matter whether the will is sealed in an envelope or not. (2) The will should be filed in the Probate Court immediately after the death of the maker.

RUSS.—After the length of time we doubt if you can compel them to exchange the furniture or take it back. However, you might consult the Legal Aid Bureau, in the Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets.

A. C. L.—Bigamy committed in Missouri is prosecuted in the Missouri courts. Inquire at the Circuit Attorney's office with regard to prosecution. The State authorities will prosecute if the first wife makes a complaint and if they think the case is one which should be prosecuted.

A DAILY READER.—(1) Probably the parents could have such a marriage annulled. A marriage license costs $2. You can get married at any county seat in Illinois. If you go more than 25 miles away from St. Louis probably the names will not be published in the St. Louis newspapers.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered, Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

M. O.—You may enter the city hospital and pay what your circumstances permit. Consult the superintendent. You are of course only eligible for admission if you are a resident of the city.

PATIENT.—A lump in a woman's breast should always be a matter of concern. We do not think it has any connection with the other condition mentioned, but advise a surgeon be consulted as to the breast condition.

SO WORRIED.—From your description you no doubt have the affection known as alopecia areata. Treatment should not be self-administered; a good dermatologist is essential. Do not lose valuable time in using proprietary remedies.

A. L. A.—Germicidal soap is one of the standard remedies for dandruff and is perhaps as good as any other. (2) It is also of service in the treatment of pimples and blackheads. 3) The wearing of shoulder braces is right and proper when necessary and no harm can come from wearing them during the day, but they should be removed at night.

Saw fit to take our father dear.
Sadly missed by his loving daughters,
MRS. ROSE HAMMANN, MRS. MAGNOLIA DUFFY AND FERN O'BRIEN. (c)

In sad and loving memory of our dear husband and father, James E. Walsh, who departer this life, Oct. 19, 1922:

Our greatest sorrow came to us two years ago
A heartache no one knows
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting with one we love so well
Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In memory of our dear mother, Bertha C. Marsh, who died three years ago, Oct. 23 1921.

We miss you from our home, dear mother,
We miss you from your place,
A shadow o'er our life is cast;
We miss the sunshine of your face.
We miss your kind and willing hand,
Your kind and earnest care,
Our home is dark without you, mother,
We miss you everywhere.
Sadly missed by her
CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN. (c)

In loving memory of my dear daughter and our sister, Katherine Tonella, who departed this life one year ago, Oct. 18, 1923:

One by one earth's ties are broken
As we see our love decay
And the hopes so fondly cherished,
Brighten up to pass away.
One by one our hopes grow brighter
As we near the shining shore,
For we know across the river
Waits the loved ones gone before.
Sadly missed by her mother, sister and brothers and all who loved her.

In loving memory of my dear son, Private John H. Selth, Headquarters Co. 69, Infantry, Tenth Division, who gave his young life for our country Oct. 13, 1918:

Days o sadness oft come o'er me,
Tears in silence often flow,
Love shall always keep you near me,
Though you left six years ago.
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from my memory fade,
My loving heart shall always linger
'Round the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER.

LA FOLLETTE MAY WIN MONTANA BUT LOSE ELECTORS

Votes Cast for Him Under Farmer-Labor Emblem Will Not Count for Electors.

WALSH HAS HARD FIGHT ON HANDS

Is Opposed by Klan—La Folette Holds Edge on Coolidge, With Davis Apparently Out of It.

By CHARLES MICHELSON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 18. — La Follette will get more votes than Coolidge in Montana, and yet Colidge is likely to get the four electoral votes of the State.

This apparent incongruity comes about through the circumstances that two separate organizations, with two entirely different sets of La Follette presidential electors are on the ballot and as under our system the citizen votes for electors and not for the candidate, the Wisconsin man is out of luck. The votes for him cast under the emblem of the Farmer-Labor party might as well be thrown into Flathead Lake for all the good they can do him. There is now under way an eleventh hour effort to reach some sort of compromise by which all the La Follette followers may vote for the same set of electors, but nobody has any clear idea how this could be accomplished, the printing of the ballots already being under way.

Naturally the persistence of the Farmer-Labor group in sticking to its own set of electors, while the Progressive party is La Follette's authorized organization is regarded as a Republican plot. It may be, but half the motive lies in the desire of different factions to have the inside track in the event of the La Follette movement remaining a serious factor in Montana politics.

It does not follow that this expedient or accident will cost La Follette Montana's vote. His people says his lead is strong enough to overcome the handicap of 10,000 votes, which is what the Farmer-Labor crowd may be expected to get.

Situation Is Tangled.

There is no complication known to modern politics that does not enter into this Montana campaign. They have a Ku Klux fight, aimed at Senator Walsh, and a governorship fight with 40 different angles, all of which bear on the ultimate question whether La Follette or Coolidge is going to get the State.

Davis does not count out here. Only Bruce Kremer, Democratic National chairman, and Tom Stout, Democratic State chairman, adhere to the theory that the Democratic nominee has a chance, and even they are not very optimistic about it.

This Farmer-Labor group has a ticket all its own, and while the La Folletters say that Republican National Committeeman Landstrum put up the job of the separate presidential electors, the Republicans say that the Farmer-Labor candidacy of Frank J. Edwards for the governorship was a Democratic plot to alienate some of Gov. Dixon's radical votes.

Dixon was elected originally by the combined copper and lumber interests, but is now training close to the radical element, which is perhaps stronger in Montana than in any other state.

Indians for La Follette.

The local straws polls, notably that taken by the Daily Missourian, which is the only Montana paper supporting La Follette, gives the Wisconsin candidate a big lead, but naturally this embraces those who will vote the Farmer-Labor as well as the real La Follette ticket.

A curious element of La Follette strength lies with Indians. The Flatheads and some of the other tribes are solid for him. To stem this aborigine tide the Republicans have Chief Yellow Tail campaigning for Coolidge. But it seems that the Chief is a Crow. For some reason being a Crow is supposed to be a hopeless detriment to a campaigner, but I have not been able to delve far enough into tribal history to know why.

There are about 200,000 votes to be cast in Montana this time. Harding carried the State by 40,000 but the Republicans will feel themselves lucky if Coolidge is one-fourth as fortunate.

It does not appear that Senator Thomas J. Walsh is going to have an easy path to re-election despite the national fame that has come to him because of his work on the oil reserve exposures. The Republicans have named against him Frank B. Linderman, a poet, who runs a hotel on Flathead Lake, and is an authority on Indian lore. He is said to make campaign speeches to the red men.

Linderman is accused of being a Klansman and he is backed by the full strength of the order, which is generally credited with having from 8,000 to 10,000 members in Montana.

Walsh Silent on Davis.

The Farmer-Labor people have a senatorial candidate in the Rev. Dr. Anderson, who may cut into Walsh's vote also. The Democrats while admitting that the senator has a hard fight, profess no doubts as to the outcome. They figure that the Klan fight against Walsh will attract more votes from the Republican side than it will cost him.

Walsh has always been elected with the help of Republican votes. The fact that he was strongly indorsed by Senator Wheeler, during the latter's whirl through Montana, is expected to bring him most of the La Follette votes. So far as the national ticket is concerned Walsh in his campaign is saying little or nothing about Davis and Bryan, but is whooping it up for the local Democratic nominee and being kind in his reference to La Follette.

The deal in Montana for Democratic votes for La Follette in exchange for La Follette votes for Governor and Senator does not appear as obvious as it is in Washington or Oregon, but it seems to be resulting about the same.

Montana has gone Democratic as often as it has Republican, but it has always varied from progressive to radical. La Follette has a right to expect a large part of the farmers, they having been hit here as hard as anywhere in the country by the deflation period following on several lean crop years. The mineworker, the railroad men and the rest of the labor organizations and the lumberjacks are for him with a greater solidarity than in any other state I have visited.

Last Week to Decide.

These factors should give La Follette the State, notwithstanding the disadvantage incident to the Farmer-Labor ticket, particularly if there is any approach to the truth in the statement that he will get 50 per cent of the vote that normally goes to the Democrats. This latter allegation is denied by the Democratic officials and by the Republicans as well. The latter say that no inconsiderable part of the conservative Democrats mean to vote for Coolidge and Dawes.

On one thing all party spokesmen are agreed; that is that the trend of things is changing and that the election will be decided during the last week of the campaign. Where they split is over which direction the turn will take.

A fair summary of the situation as it is today is that either Coolidge or La Follette will win the State, with whatever advantage there is being with the latter. Walsh has certainly a better chance of election and it seems to me that Dixon, the Republican Governor, is due to lose.

“Ma” Ferguson's Name To Go on Texas Ballot

Decision by State Supreme Court Holds She Is Eligible and Private Citizen Has No Right to Test Her Qualifications.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 18.—The last vestige of the ancient bar against women in office was swept away by the Texas Supreme Court today in holding Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson of Temple and all other women in the State eligible to elective positions.

Attempts to bring out of the dim past and establish as present-day law, the figments of an old order were cast out by the highest court of the State, which pronounced women as independent entities on an equality with men.

While holding that Mrs. Ferguson is qualified to vote, the Court also held unconstitutional that part of the statute which seeks to confer upon a private citizen the right to bring suit testing the qualifications of a candidate for Governor. This right belongs to the Legislature, the Court said.

Too Late for Appeal.

The plaintiff, Charles M. Dickson of San Antonio, has 15 days in which to file a motion of rehearing, and it was stated the case will not be sent back to the Court of Civil Appeals for issuance of appeal until expiration of that time. It would then be too late for any action, as all ballots would have been printed. In a 30-page opinion, written by Associate Justice Thomas B. Greenwood, and concurred in by Chief Justice Cureton and Associate Justice Pierson, the Court held that:

Dickerson, plaintiff, had no legal authority to bring the suit, since the law under which the case was brought is clearly unconstitutional.

Right to Hold Office.

That the fifty-third District Court, Judge George C. Calhoun did not have jurisdiction to hear the case, thus overruling Judge Calhoun on these jurisdictional points.

That Mrs. Ferguson is not disqualified either by her sex, by her married status or by the fact that she is the wife of James E. Ferguson, who has been declared by the State Senate to be ineligible henceforth to hold office in Texas.

The suffrage amendments to the Federal Constitution and the State Constitution were interpreted as giving women not only the right to vote, but also the right to hold office. To hold to the contrary would be to create a rule out of accord with the customs of the time and the morals of the people, the court held.

Ruling on Eligibility.

In reference to the eligibility of women to hold office, the court said:

“Where the competency of women to hold office in Texas is challenged, the fundamental inquiry is as to the extent of restrictions on the people in their sovereign capacity with respect to freedom of choice of their public servants. No further authority need be cited to demonstrate the correctness of this position than the language which this court, through its great Justice, Reuben R. Gaines, quoted with approval in Stenoff against State, as follows: ‘Eligibility to office is not declared as a right or principle by any express terms of the Constitution, but it results as a just deduction from the express powers and provisions of the system. The basis of the principle is the absolute liberty of the electors and the appointing authorities to choose and appoint any person who is not made in ineligible by the Constitution. Eligibility to office, therefore, belongs not exclusively or specially to electors enjoying the right of suffrage. It belongs equally to all persons whomsoever not excluded by the Constitution.’ ”

WIFE SUES WEALTHY WIDOW FOR $100,000 FOR ALIENATION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Kate S. Horne, a wealthy widow, formerly of the Hotel McAlpin, was sued today in the Supreme Court by Mrs. Lillian Brandon, who seeks to recover $100,000 damages for the alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, Ernest E. Brandon.

Mrs. Horne, who now lives in Paris, and Brandon are alleged to have been married abroad March 15, last year. Mrs. Brandon says she and her husband were married Aug. 10, 1912, and lived happily together at West Englewood, N. J., for 10 years.

In October, 1922, Mrs. Brandon alleges, her husband became Mrs. Horne's secretary. She says that a few days later her husband and Mrs. Horne went abroad together, were married and have subsequently traveled extensively as husband and wife throughout Europe, Egypt and South Africa.

Mrs. Brandon charges that some time prior to June of last year Mrs. Horne was apprised of the fact that Brandon had previously been married, but continued her association with him. Mrs. Brandon contends that by promises of wealth and other inducements Mrs. Horne “enticed her husband to remain away from her.”

Brandon is 55 years old, Mrs. Horne about the same age and Mrs. Brandon some years younger.

KIEL SIGNS BILL GIVING $10,000 FOR AMENDMENT NO. 7

Business Men Probably Will Raise Similar Sum to Aid Campaign.

Mayor Kiel yesterday signed a bill appropriating $10,000 of municipal funds for an educational campaign designed to aid in the passage of Constitutional Amendment No. 7 in the coming election. The measure is an enabling act to permit residents of St. Louis and St. Louis County to settle among themselves their differences in connection with extension of the city limits.

Business interests of the city are expected to raise a similar amount by contribution. Speakers will be sent to various parts of the State to explain provisions of the measure and urge a favorable vote. The fund campaign will open with a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce next week.

THIRD CITY TICKET PLACED IN FIELD BY PROGRESSIVES

Petitions Filed Bearing Names of 2500 and Contains Names of Candidates for Office.

SEPARATE PARTY IS PLAN OF LEADERS

Move Is Aimed at Both Republican and Democrat Machines — Seek Equal Rights.

A third city ticket, with candidates for Circuit Judges, Circuit Attorney, Sheriff, Public Administrator, Treasurer and Coroner, to be voted upon at the November election, was put in the field yesterday with the filing of petitions, bearing 2500 names, with the Board of Election Commissioners, under the label of the Progressive Party.”

Though related, in a sense, to the third party movement in national politics, the new city ticket will appear on the ballot as a separate and distinct party, with no relation to the La Follette-Wheeler electors thereon. In the explanation of those behind the movement, it is aimed at the Republican and Democratic city machines, who are charged with working in collusion o enhance their personal ends and to protect certain political gangs.

Record of Meeting Filed.

To meet statutory requirements, there was filed with the petitions a record of a meeting held Sept. 30, at Dodier Hall, Twentieth and Dodier streets, at which the new party, under a call signed by Sheridan Carlisle and Otto C. Fickeissen, attorneys, and former Circuit Judge William Zachritz, adopted a platform and set of principles and nominated candidates.

The candidates nominated were: For Circuit Judges—J. R. Claiborne Jr., William S. Connor, Campbell Cummings and Robert J. Kirkwood and (short term) George P. Burleigh; Circuit Attorney, Otto C. Fickeissen; Sheriff, George R. Schoen; Public Administrator, Estelle D. Ellicock; Treasurer, H. C. Menne; Coroner, Dr. B. W. Clarke.

The judges nominated are also those named on the Democratic ticket. Fickeissen and Schoen, an insurance man, have been identified as Republicans. Mrs. Ellicock, the candidate for Public Administrator, is the wife of Albert Ellicock, an insurance man, a Republican. Menne is a former Democratic City Treasurer and a canditdate of that party for that office at the coming election. Dr. Clarke has sought, unsuccessfully, the Republican nomination for Coroner.

Sheridan Carlisle, as chairman, and Miss Constance Peters, as secretary, also certified to the Board of Election Commissioners, that the new party had adopted the acorn as its party emblem.

Says Voters Dissatisfied.

At the headquarters of the new party in the Planters Building, Carlisle yesterday related the circumstances of the filing of the petitions. He said that a number of persons, dissatisfied with the conduct of the two major political organizations in St. Louis, had banded together to put the new ticket into the field. To accomplish this, he said, it was necessary to obtain the signatures of 1000 registered voters, who had not expressed a preference at the last primary. In this canvass, he related, 2500 names were obtained.

The petitions also were certified to Secretary of State Becker, and were duly acknowledged and certified as to the circuit judges (the only state offices affected) on Oct. 14.

“We have adopted the acorn as the party emblem,” Carlisle asserted, “because mighty oaks from acorns grow. Every informed man and woman knows how the two political machines here work together. An instance was in the last primary, when the Republicans got behind O'Brien for Circuit Attorney to beat Andy Maroney, so as to make it easier for Howard Sidener.

“In our canvass we have found wonderful support for our party. One canvasser in the West End wards reported that of the first 52 voters solicited, 50 of them announced they would support our movement. We are not affiliated with any party, and we will conduct our own finances. We expect to hold meetings throughout the city, and will close our campaign with a central rally at some large hall.”

At the Dodier Hall organizing meeting, those present, as enumerated in the filing petition, included the following, as the selected Executive Committee: Sheridan Carlisle, chairmain; Jesse T. Justin, treasurer; Miss Constance Peters, secretary; William Zachritz, Albert Ellicock, T. M.O'Donnell, Horace G. Cupples, Mrs. Helen Schoen, Mrs. Louise Custer and W. E. Blackshaw.

Favor Equal Rights.

The platform, as adopted, included planks favoring equal rights, no special privileges; restoration of all constitutional guarantees, with special reference to freedom of speech, press and peaceable assembly; denouncing discrimination because of race, color or religion, and “any organization which teaches or countenances” such discrimination; and pledging “an honest, economical and efficient public service.” The fifth and sixth concluding planks were:

“We pledge our nominees to remove from the courts and prosecuting officials the stigma of “fronting” and “fixing” by professional bondsmen and crooked politicians on behalf of the criminal element, and we especially denounce a politically controlled judiciary.

“We further pledge our nominees to vigorously prosecute all criminals and to safeguard the lives and property of our citizens.”

Bouquets and Brickbats For Mr. Charles Nagel

German-American Citizens' League and Oswald Villard Reply to His Arguments for Coolidge.

OSWALD GARRISON VILLARD of New York, editor of The Nation, and a La Follette supporter, while in St. Louis yesterday, made a statement in reply to Nagel, as follows:

“There is no man in America whom I respect and admire more than Charles Nagel, whom I consider to be the ideal type of the American public servant. I know that he never takes a position without the most deliberate thought and conscientious weighing of everything that he says.

“And yet I must record my emphatic protest against his statement in which he comes out for Calvin Coolidge. Primarily, Mr. Nagel has completely overlooked the moral issue. He says no word whatever as to the horrifying corruption that has taken place in Washington under the Harding and Coolidge regime, which makes every honest American hang his head with shame. It is true that Mr. Nagel refers to Mr. Davis' criticism of the wrong-doing, but only to rule him out because he did not similarly criticise the Democratic wrongdoing.

That point is a good one. But we had a right to expect from Mr. Nagel that he would couple it with a denunciation not only of the wrongdoing of the Harding crew, but of Mr. Coolidge's failure to clean house until compelled to by the Wheeler and Walsh investigations. There is no denying the fact that the re-election of Coolidge would everywhere be taken as an approval of the corruption. Uncle Sam ought to be portrayed, if Coolidge wins, as corrupt and contented, in the garb of a cheap grafter and bribe-taker.

Recalls Blaine Incident.

“Twenty-five years ago, the mere charging of such crimes would have roused the whole country. We have only to remember by contrast how the country rose in anger in 1884, when Blaine was nominated, because of Blaine's private transactions, to realize the deadening of the American conscience that has been taking place during the last few years.

“I can perfectly well understand a man's voting for Davis, although I am supporting La Follette, but I cannot understand anybody's voting for Coolidge, who has for his private secretary a vender of offices; who has connived at the framing up of Senator Wheeler, which Mr. Davis has just called the blackest kind of a crime; who has tried to block every kind of investigation. To me, a vote for Coolidge signifies a lack of patriotism, a lack of that jealous regard for American honor and integrity which we have the right to demand of all American citizens. I know that that is not the case with Charles Nagel, but that only leaves me more at sea as to how his reasoning could be so faulty.

A. LINGENFELDER, president of the German-American Citizens' League, a La Follette supporter, today issued a statement in reply to the argument of Charles Nagel, St. Louis attorney and former Republican Cabinet member, in behalf of President Coolidge's candidacy.

Nagel's statement was recognized as being directed especially to voters of German origin. Lingenfelder takes issue with him on four points.

“First,” said Lingenfelder, “Mr. Nagel argues that Coolidge's election offers the only hope of keeping the election out of the House of Representatives.

“What damage will be done if the election goes to the House? Are not its members the representatives of the people? It would be better to have the election decided there than to have an election forced down the throats of the people by the machines of the parties with scandalous records of corruption, Democratic as well as Republican.

“Second, Coolidge has a definite plan of domestic rehabilitation, Mr. Nagel says. La Follet has a record of having fought for years and years for ‘domestic economic’ issues. ‘Rehabilitation’ would not be necessary now, had his principles been carried out. Read his platform.

“Third, ‘Davis’ attacks upon corruption in office are belated, Mr. Nagel says, ‘in that he said nothing about “staggering” corruption in the preceding Democratic administration.’

“If both Democratic and Republicans are corrupted in such a staggering manner, then why not support the man whom even his worst enemies dare not accuse of corruption? Vote for La Follette becouse of his record.

“Fourth, Mr. Nagel says he cannot accept La Follette's fundamental principles and policies with regard to European rehabitation, nor his suggestion for shearing the Supreme Court of its power.”

“No wonder! Neither could Cooldge nor J. P. Morgan accept those principles! La Follette ideas in regard to the powers of the Supreme Court and our foreign policy mean power taken from the vested interests and given to the people. However, don't be misled. These iseues are never decided by one man, and some of them are not even issues in the campaign.”

COOLIDGE THANKS NAGEL AND LAZARUS FOR THEIR SUPPORT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE today sent this message to Charles Nagel of St. Louis:

“Accept the assurance of my great satisfaction in the statement issued by yourself dealing with the issues of the current campaign. I wish you might find it possible to deliver some addresses, particularly bearing on the great constitutional issue that is so profoundly involved in this campaign.”

Another message was also sent by the President to Sam Lazarus of St. Louis, in which he said:

“Your recent statement declaring your purpose to support the Republican candidate in this year's national campaign has been brought to my attention by various of my friends, as well as through the press. I wish you to know how much I prize this declaration of confidence and support. Coming from one of your long maintained party affiliations and large business affiliations, it is not only a personal gratification to me, but I recognize it as certain to have a significant influence in the campaign.”

ASSERTS NAVY EFFICIENCY INJURES MORALE AND HEALTH

Surgeon-General of U. S. Scouting Fleet Questions Economy “in Maddening Engineering Competition.”

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Efficiency competing between various naval elements has been carried to such a point that the morale and even the health of the personnel has been injured, Commander Jacob Stepp, Surgeon-General of the scouting fleet, declaring in a special report received at the department today. He asserted as an example the constant attempt to improve upon engineering records was a direct cause for discomfort, discontent and illness among the crews participating.

“In private or public enterprise,” Commander Stepp said, “no corporation can afford to juggle with the proper hygiene of its establishment and certain sickness and absence of special employes necessary for the teamwork and production of the concern resulting with improper hygienic conditions. The United States public health laws prohibit it. The corporation can easily show by actual periods that the loss in production by absence of skilled labor due to unnecessary illness far outbalances any cheapness of production concerned in maintenance of those factors so vital to good health. This saving in health and working capacity of the individual has never been worked out in the navy * * *.

“I question whether we are arriving at real economy in the maddening engineering competition.” * * *

WOMAN SEEKS $12,904 FOR HOUSEWORK FOR 30 YEARS

A claim for $12,904.50filed by Miss Rose Gimbel against the estate of her brother-in-law, Joseph V. Little, a commercial traveler, who died June 10 last, was taken under advisement yesterday by Probate Judge Holtcamp.

The claim is based on a period of 30 years' service in the Little home, doing such work as cooking, cleaning, tending the furnace and marketing. Mrs. Lina Little, 5961 Enright avenue, sister of the petitioner and widow of Little, testified that Miss Gimbel was entitle to the money as she was not not paid for her service.

Little's estate is valued at $28,000, one-half of which he bequeather to his wife and the other half to his two brothers and four sisters. The collateral beneficiaries contend that all but five years of Miss Gimbel's claim is barred by the statute of limitations and further that she lived in their brother's home as a member of the family and did not expect to be paid for her work. They also assert that much of the housework was done by Little's wife.

The Mercantile Trust Co. is in charge of the estate as executor.

MRS. SWEETEN ASKS FOR SEPARATE TRIAL

Jointly Indicted With Hight, She Calls Him “Willing Tool of Prosecution.”

By the Associated Press.

MT. VERNON, Ill., Oct. 18.—Filing an affidavit in which she charged that Lawrence H. Hight, former Ina, Ill., clergyman, with whom she was jointly indicted for the murder of her husband, Wilford Sweeten, and Hight's wife, Anna Hight, was a “willing tool” of the prosecution, Mrs. Elsie Sweeten today began her fight for a separate trial.

Mrs. Sweeten's affidavit was filed shortly after Judge J. C. Kern in the Jefferson County Court had overruled a motion to quash the indictments and the woman had entered a plea of not guilty.

Hight did not enter his plea at this time, his attorney, Nelson Layman of Du Quoin, not being in court. Judge Kern ordered that Hight enter his plea next Wednesday morning and that the attorneys at that time argue the question of granting Mrs. Sweeten a separate trial.

In the motion for a separate trial it is charged that all parts of the numerous confessions made by Hight are false in so far as they apply to Mrs. Sweeten and that they were made out of her presence and without her knowledge and consent.

Urged Her to Make Confession.

After her arrest, it is further charged, Mrs. Sweeten was left alone without her request or consent with Hight in a room in the County Courthouse, where he urged her to make a confession, by means of threats, telling her there was danger they would be hanged by a mob if the officers did not remove them from Jefferson County, and saying officers had agreed to remove them from Mt. Vernon if confessions were obtained.

Mrs. Sweeten signed a confession of her alleged part in the crime shortly after this conference with Hight, and she was taken to jail at Salem and Hight was removed to Nashville.

Mrs. Sweeten further charges in her affidavit that if she were tried jointly with Hight he would go on the witness stand ostensibly in his own behalf but in reality as a witness against her. Thus, she asserts, testimony against her which otherwise would be inadmissable would be brought before the jury through Hight, “acting as a tool of the prosecution.”

She charges that Hight, while in jail at Nashville, wrote letters to her and that in so doing he was acting as a “tool of the prosecution.”

It is further set up in the affidavit that Hight had been tried by a “select number” of ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church and that before these men he made a confession of the crime which was false in so far as it applied to her. She states that some of these church officials, whose testimony would be “very prejudicial to her interest,” have been called to testify against her.

Mrs. Sweeten alleges that Hight has been charged with other offenses, that feeling against him is strong, and that many prospective jurors will be called which would be qualified to sit in her case who would be disqualified because of their feeling against Hight.

State's Attorney Frank G. Thompson is prepared to reply to the motion for a separate trial with the contention that the slaying of Wilford Sweeten was due to a conspiracy and that both parties are equally guilty and should be tried together.

JUSSERAND'S RETIREMENT BRINGS REGRET TO CAPITAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The announcement from Paris that Emile Daeschner, director of administrative affairs of the Quai d'Orsay, will succeed Jules J. Jusserand as French Ambassador to the United States at an early date, was read with keen regret in official quarters and throughout the diplomatic corps.

While the news did not come wholly as a surprise, since formal inquiry had been addressed to the American Government through the French Embassy concerning the acceptability of M. Daeschner, nevertheless it had been understood, following the return of Ambassador Jusserand from leave in France, that no change would be made at present.

M. Jusserand for some time past has been fully prepared for the change and is understood to feel that he is entitled to be relieved of the onerous duties of his ambassadorial office. No other Ambassador has remained at his post in Washington for anything like the 22-year period which has marked the stay of M. Jusserand.

With the single exception of the late Lord Brice, the retiring French Ambassador is credited with knowing the American mind and form of government better than any foreign envoy ever stationed here.

Pedro Zanni's agent, Patrick Murphy, is leaving for Osaka tomorrow to obtain vessels to accompany the Argentine world flyer to the Kurilles preparatory to his flight over the Pacific. Maj. LAW REVISION TO CUT DOWN BANK FAILURES PLANNED Proposed Amendments in Missouri Would Make Requirements for Directors More Rigid.

MINIMUM CAPITAL STOCK OF $25,000

Missouri Bankers' Association, Commissioner Millspaugh and Several Legislators Working on Bills.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 18.—Revision of the banking laws of Missouri in an effort to remedy practices which have resulted in an increasing number of failures of State-supervised banks will be attempted during the next session of the legislature by proposed amendments designed to make more rigid the requirements as to bank directors and officers and to make punishment of defaulters more certain.

So far this year 36 State-supervised banks have been closed, compared to 28 in the 12 months of 1923.

The 36 State banks closed up to Oct. 16 had total deposits of $10,221,675, capital stock of $1,909,500 and claimed surplus of approximately $555,000.

Causes of Failures.

Virtually all of the failures, according to bank examiners, were due to violations of the banking laws, particularly as to excess loans, other irregularities in manipulation of accounts and dishonesty by employes or officers, rather than the "frozen assets" explanation frequently given after bank failures, blaming general business conditions. A committee of the Missouri Bankers' Association, headed by W. C. Gordon of Marshall, is working on recommendations for proposed legislation. State Finance Commissioner Millspaugh also plans to make several recommendations to the Legislature on means of tightening up the banking laws, and urging a larger and better paid force of State bank examiners in order to exercise closer supervision over numerous banks and trust companies.

Two or three members of the Legislature also are working on banking bills, it was learned. Lack of close supervision by boards of directors permits many of the practices leading up to bank failures, Commissioner Millspaugh has stated. The directors of many banks, paricularly small country banks, are not familiar with the details of banking procedure and rely on the actions and reports of trusted employes or bank officers in maters in which he direcors are charged with responsibility under the law, he said.

All loans must be approved by the directors, but as has developed in several failures involving dishonesty by a bank officer, the directors at their monthly meetings merely accepted the report of the bank officer on the bank's business without investigation or personal knowledge of the bank's condition.

Law As to Loans.

The law also limits the loans that may be made by a bank to an individual or corporation, but when banks are closed it usually is found that excess loans were carried, it was said.

Among amendments of the banking laws that have been suggested are placing of more direct responsibility on directors, increasing of capital stock requirements so that no new bank may be organized with less than $25,000 in paid up capital stock and more rigid requirements as to surplus.

The last report of the Finance Department, as of June 30, last, showed a total of 1478 State supervised banks and trust companies in Missouri. Since that time 10 banks have failed.

Many of the banks in the State are organized with the minimum capital requirement of $10,000. Capital stock required in organization of a bank under the present law, varies with the size of the city or town in which it is organized.

To insure more certain prosecution of dishonest bank employes or officers, it has been proposed that it be made mandatory for the finance commissioners to place facts concerning failed banks before the Prosecuting Attorney, or that the Finance Commissioner be authorized and directed to prefer criminal charges in cases where dishonesty or law violation in bank management has been discovered.

Double Liability Proposed.

Double liability for stockholders in State banks has been proposed. However, this would require a constitutional amendment, as under the Constitution the liability of a state bank stockholder is limited to the par value of the stock owned.

Stockholders in national banks are subject to liability for double the amount of stock owned. Many complaints have been made in localities where banks have failed because information concerning the condition of the closed bank has not been made available to the depositors and public. The department has taken the position that the present law prevents information concerning shortages, acts and operations of bank officials and other facts being made public, unless as evidenced in the trial of a bank officer or other court proceeding involving the bank. It has been suggested that full publicity of the facts about closed bank and the causes of the failure would result in closer observance of the banking laws, and insure prosecutions where prosecuting officers may have been slow in acting.

FORD TELLS COOLIDGE HE CAN'T WAIT ON CONGRESS

His Letter Withdrawing Bid for Shoals and President's Answer Is Made Public—Assails Wall Street.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—A letter from Henry Ford to President Coolidge withdrawing his offer for Muscle Shoals was made public today at the White House.

In reply President Coolidge wrote Ford that he trusted "that should Congress conclude that it is best to restore this property to private ownership you will at that time renew your interest in the project."

Ford wrote that "inasmuch as so much time has already elapsed we are unable to wait and delay with plans we have any longer for action by Congress and I am consequently asking that you consider this as a withdrawal of said offer."

The President's reply follows in full:

"Your letter withdrawing your offer for the purchase of Muscle Shoals has been received. On account of the delay and probable shifting in conditions, I can understand how you may feel justified in not keeping your offer open for a longer period.

"I trust, however, that should the Congress conclude that it is best to restore this property to private ownership you will at that time renew your interest in the project."

The letter of Ford said: "On July 8, 1921, there was submitted to the War Department upon their invitation to the writer, an offer for leasing the Government property at Muscle Shoals.

"After many conferences, hearings, etc., this proposal was amended on Jan. 25, 1922, in which form it is still pending in Congress.

"Inasmuch as so much time has already elapsed we are unable to wait, and delay what plans we have any longer for action by Congress and I am consequently asking that you consider this as a withdrawal of said offer."

The letter from Ford was dated Oct. 15. The reply of the President was written today.

A bill accepting the Ford offer, already approved by the House, would have been voted on early in the next session in the Senate by previous agreement. Pending in the Senate also is a favorable report by the Agriculture Committee of a bill by Chairman Norris containing optional provisions for Government ownership and operation or Government ownership and private operation of property.

Ford, Blaming Wall Street, Says He Won't Renew Offer.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 18.—Henry Ford considers the Muscle Shoals controversy closed. In a statement today he declared that under no circumstances would the Ford company reopen negotiations for the property despite the hope expressed in various quarters that future proposals would be considered. He blamed Wall Street for the opposition which resulted in the withdrawal of the offer for the property.

"Wall Street," Ford said, "does not care to have the power trust's strangle hold broken. If we had obtained Muscle Shoals we quickly would have exposed the present profiteering and greatly reduced the cost of power."

Ford continued that no big business could afford the delay necessary in dealing with the Government and that "it is too hard to find the Government and you can't do business with people you do not know and can't find."

"Wall Street," Ford continued, "is progressive and possibly indispensable. * * * * It bosses the antiquated and obsolete. It will kill the railroads and in killing off the antiquated and obsolete it does a service, for an industry that cannot withstand such tactics as Wall Street may give it had better die. If it can tear down a thing, the thing is better torn down."

COURT UPSETS CONVICTION IN NARCOTIC CASE ON ERROR

Federal Appeals Bench Holds Judge's Instructions at Trial Were Erroneous.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting here yesterday, reversed and remanded for new trial the case of John Di Salvo, who was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary and fined $1000 in Federal Court at Kansas City in June, 1923, for violation of the Harrison antinarcotic act.

Judge Lewis, who wrote the opinion, in which Judges Sanborn and Kennedy concurred, held that Federal Judge Van Valkenburg, in his instructions to the jury, had erred, "so as to make it impossible for a jury to act without passion or prejudice in the case."

Di Salvo was arrested by Federal narcotic inspectors of Kansas City at a hotel there after he had sold drugs to a woman informer; herself an addict. His attorneys contended that Di Salvo had been induced to commit crime by the officers in violation of the Federal statute on "entrapment," which forbids officers influencing persons to commit crime in order to make a case against them.

In his instructions to the jury, Federal Judge Van Valkenburg had thrown out the element of entrapment, and had refused previously to admit evidence offered by the defense which sought to develop this idea. The Court of Appeals held that the jury should have been left this point to decide for itself.

JEWISH EMIGRANTS STRANDED

9000 En Route to America Reported Held at Various Seaports.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—More than 9000 Jews on their way to America are stranded in various European seaports and Cuba, according to reports issued today by the emergency committee on Jewish refugees. After the departure of these refugees from home and before their arrival at the point of embarkation the quotas alloted to their countries by the United States were exhausted or reduced under the new immigration law.

Refugees in European seaports face deportation. In Cuba 5000 Jews, persuaded that a short residence there would insure admission to the United States, are living in the poorest district, are starving, surrounded by insanitary conditions and subjected to the tropical heat, disease has broken out among them. The committee is appealing for a fund of $50,000 for the relief of these refugees and to investigate conditions in various countries, especially Palestine, to assist Jewish immigration to those lands.

SAYS WIFE TRIED TO KILL HIM SO SHE COULD MARRY ANOTHER

Frenchman Says Marital Differences Arose After She Inherited Considerable Sum.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Lucien Deubel today told the police that his wife, born in New York of French parents, tried to kill him so that she might remarry her second husband, whom she had divorced.

Deubel explained he was the woman's third husband, but that after she inherited a considerable sum of money several years ago "she made me feel she considered me of inferior social rank."

Mme. Deubel wanted to divorce her husband and remarry her second choice, a man named Martin, Deubel says, and some time ago they had a violent quarrel about it. Deubel decided to leave their home, Chateau des Hogues, at St. Leonard, near Havre, for a few days.

As he sat in his automobile before the door, Mme. Deubel came out with a gun in her hand and renewed the argument. When he refused to discuss divorce, he says, she fired two shots at him point blank and wounded him severely.

He tried to hush it up and the shooting was given out as an accident. Deubel explained he was going hunting and his wife brought him his gun, which went off when she tripped on the stairs.

However, the police became suspicious and arrested her and now the husband has made a formal accusation against her.

RADIO SINGER APOLOGIZES

Soprano Sorry, She Told Listeners-In to Vote For Davis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. — Miss June Mullin, soprano of the Board of Education's lecture bureau staff, who told listeners-in on the Municipal radio station (WNYC) Wednesday night to "vote for Davis," publicly apologized today just before giving a song recital in the aldermanic chamber in the City Hall. Her apology was not broadcast.

Ernest L. Crandall, director of the lecture bureau, under the auspices of which Miss Mullin appeared and will continue to appear, said in introducing her that her offense consisted of an infraction of a rule of the bureau that partisanship must be kept out of its entertainments.

"Miss Mullin in a playful moment at the end of her recital," Crandall said, "told her radio audience 'Good night, and don't forget to vote for Davis.' As she says, she did so without thought of political influence."

Miss Mullin, on the rostrum, said publicly: : : :

"I entirely agree with all Mr. Crandall has said. It was a foolish thing for me to do. I guess I tried to be a little too smart."

Town Club Dinner Meetings.

Two dinner meetings this week are announced by the Town Club. Tuesday evening Gustavus Tuckerman, civic secretary of the City Club, will read "The Potters," a comedy given in New York last year. Thursday evening there will be the semi-annual business meeting, preceded by a "revue" of plans of the house committee for the furnishings of the club's new home, under construction. Guests will be permitted at the Tuesday dinner.

AMERICAN NAVY TO EJECT 'ENEMY' FROM HAWAII

Problem Which Is to Form Basis of Joint Maneuvers Next Spring Has Been Agreed Upon.

ENTIRE BATTLE FLEET WILL TAKE PART

The Warships After Their Arduous Service There Will Proceed on Cruise to Australia.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Secretaries Weeks and Wilbur have given official approval to the "problem" which is to form the basis of the joint army and navy maneuvers next spring in Hawaii.

Following custom, details of the test are to be kept secret, but it is known that an important feature will be hypothetical possession of the islands by an enemy force, necessitating a campaign of ejection.

The entire United States battle fleet with its train and convoy, strengthened by the battleship Wyoming, the squadron of light cruisers and the several divisions of submarines to be transferred from the Atlantic for the cruise to Australia, will form the naval contingent.

"Enemy" for the Purpose.

The regular army garrison of the islands and the organization of the Hawaiian naval district will represent the "enemy" for the purpose of the problem to be assigned the mission of defending their position against the fleet. It has been suggested that the National Guard of Hawaii and the available units of organized reserves in the islands participate with the regular army in the defense of the group. No definite problem for this participation has been worked out.

The maneuvers will furnish an opportunity for testing to some extent the fortifications of the island, and will be of the same nature as the joint operations conducted last year in the Panama Canal zone region, where the problem involved the passage of the Pacific fleet into the Atlantic against "enemy" opposition. In that problem marines from Quantico played the part of "enemy" landing forces endeavoring to block the canal while the army garrison was on the defensive. It is believed likely that Marines from the San Diego base will be assigned a similar mission for the Hawaiian maneuvers.

The Hawaiian problem is the last of a three-phase war game developed by the Army and Navy with a view to furnishing a definite foundation upon which could be erected a modern plan for national defense. From the data obtained strategists of both services are expected to draw conclusions which would hold good at least through the period covered by the Washington arms conference treaties.

The Problem Last Year.

In each of the three phases an enemy force was assumed to have proceeded at least 3000 miles, and the attack under way was conceived to be directed initially at the Panama Canal with the purpose of isolating some portion of the American naval forces.

The first problem in 1923, comprising the defense of the canal against a surprise attack from the Pacific, resulted in the "enemy" eluding the scout screen in the Pacific. A recommendation for strengthened cruiser forces for the fleet and of adequate defense for the canal came from the joint board.

"Defense of the Caribbean" comprised the second phase of the strategic triology, the "enemy" force being assumed to have acquired a base in the West Indies, and against the assault was successful in theory.

Next year's part in the major problem contemplates an attempt by an enemy force to capture the Hawaiian group for use as a base in an attack on the canal and subsequently on the west coast of the United States. With the battle fleet in the role of enemy the defense of the islands by the army units will be aided by whatever naval craft are available in the Fourteenth District and by submarines and a mine squadron supposed to be within emergency steaming distance at the outbreak of hostilities.

Fleet to Cruise to Australia.

After the Hawaiian maneuvers the battle fleet is to proceed on its cruise to Australia. Although navy officials assert this move has no part whatever in the general problem, they agree the performance of the fleet upon such an extended voyage after the arduous service of Hawaii will furnish invaluable information for the board of strategy. Similar results also are expected from the mere operation of the fleet in an ocean sector which has figured largely in every strategic discussion, both here and abroad.

FIRST TRIPLETS AT HOSPITAL WHERE 26,000 WERE BORN

Boy Dies but Two Girls Survive—Are Fed With Medicine Dropper.

Approximately 26,000 babies have been born at St. Ann's Maternity Hospital, Union and Page boulevards, since its organization 71 years ago, but the first triplets to arrive there came a week ago yesterday when two girls and a boy were born to Mrs. Lucille Kriezer Wolfner of 5951 Washington boulevard.

Their aggregate weight at birth was six and one-half pounds. The boy, the smallest of the trio, died yesterday afternoon. He weighed one and one-half pounds at birth; one of the girls weighed two pounds and the other three pounds. They weigh but a few ounces more at present.

The infants are being fed with a medicine dropper, and their chief article of clothing is a strip of cotton. They are bathed each day in olive oil. They have not been named.

Mrs. Wolfner, the mother, is doing nicely. The father, Walter Wolfner, is a salesman.

U. S. DRY AGENTS RAID HOTEL IN CLAYTON AND ROADHOUSE

Beer and Whisky Seized at Both Places—Saloon Owner Struck in Scuffle With Officer.

The Claymo Hotel at Clayton, formerly the Autenreith Hotel, and the roadhouse conducted by Fred Wilmas at Manchester road and Woodlawn avenue were raided yesterday by Federal prohibition agents.

At the Claymo, the agents locked the doors after they had entered and served a search warrant, and the usual rush of noonday lunch and refreshment business went elsewhere. They confiscated and destroyed 105 cases of beer and five quarts of whisky found in a cupboard in a rear room.

The proprietors, Joseph and Larry Parks, brothers, and their bartender, Ray Heetfield, were notified to appear at the Federal Building Monday and furnish bond.

The agents seized 10 pints of whisky and quantities of beer at the Wilmas roadhouse. The beer, both brewey beer and home brew, was iced in tubs. Wilmas was arrested when he attempted to destroy the whisky evidence and was struck on the jaw in a scuffle with Agent Paul Toelle, formerly a Deputy Sheriff in the county. Wilmas is a brother of Deputy Sheriff Al Wilmas, Republican nominee for Sheriff.

KEY WEST-HAVANA VESSELS STILL HELD UP BY STORM

One Ship Announced to Sail From Florida Base Tonight With Passengers and Mail.

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 18.—Mail, passenger and freight between Key West and Havana still was suspended today due to the tropical storm, but at the Havana offices of the Peninsular and Occidental Steamship Co. it was stated that the Governor Cobb would sail tonight from Key West, Fla., with 300 passengers and much delayed mail. The Cobb would be the first mail and passenger vessel in from Key West since Thursday. The freight ferries are expected to resume sailings Monday.

There was much other delay to shipping, especially vessels going south from Havana, but the Ward Liner Orizaba was due to sail late today for New York. Four United Fruit steamers, bound south, are expected to get out before tomorrow morning, unless some unfavorable reports aer received. The Spanish liner Alfonso Thirteenth reported by wireless she was lying off Vera Cruz awaiting the passing of the storm before continuing her voyage to Havana.

Slayer Is Alleged to Have Told Woman Confederate of Killing in Wyoming.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 18.—Clinton B. Smith, serving a 30-year term in the Nebraska penitentiary for murder, is guilty of another homicide, according to a confession he is alleged to have made at the prison today to County Attorney William M. Stansbury of Douglas, Converse County, Wyoming.

Smith, with Mrs. Lottie B. Smith, was sentenced on Jan. 29, this year, at Valentine, by Judge Westover, to 30 years each for the murder of the woman's husband, John W. Smith, a rancher living near Hyannis, Neb.

In her confession, Mrs. Smith stated that the man had confided to her that he had killed another person in Wyoming and knowledge of this statement reached the officers of Converse County, Wyo., where Roy Shurtz and his wife had been slain in March, 1921.

GIRL-MOTHER IS ACQUITTED AS AID IN FATAL HOLDUP

Violet Dickerman, 19, Tells Philadelphia Jury Man Convicted of the Murder Dominated Her.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Violet Dickerson, 19-year-old mother was today acquitted of a charge of murder in connection with the holdup and killing of Louis Hirsch, an elderly storekeeper, last November.

Charles Oeffinger, her companion the night of the tragedy, was convicted last December of first degree murder and sentenced to death. His appeal is now before the State Supreme Court.

The girl's case was given to the jury late yesterday and when no verdict had been reached at 9 p. m., Judge MeDevitt ordered the jury locked up for the night. He said he took this action so early in the night out of consideration for the girl and her four months' old baby.

Coerced Into Crime.

Miss Dickerson took the witness stand in the closing hours of her trial and declared that for 12 days prior to the fatal shooting she was under the complete domination, mentally and physicially, of Oeffinger. It was Oeffinger, she said, who fired the shot after coercing her into accompanying him to Hirsch's store. In the 12 days that she and Oeffinger occupied a room together, she testified, she was beaten by him, threatened with death and exposure of her approaching motherhood if she did not stand by him.

Victim Slain in Holdup.

Hirsch was shot last November when he resisted attempts by Oeffinger and Miss Dickerson to rob him. Oeffinger was arrested immediately after the shooting, but the girl escaped and was captured the following night at Brooklawn, near Camden, N. J. Both admitted the holdup, but each accused the other of having fired the fatal shot.

The girl wept for joy when the jury freed her and was congratulated by her father and other relatives. She will be taken to Salisbury, Md., by her father.

COOLIDGE SILENT ON K. K. K.

Negroes, Who Have Sought Conference, Consider Task Hopeless

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Negro leaders who have tried to get a conference with President Coolidge on the Ku Klux Klan, to urge him to denounce the order as un-American and dangerous, are now convinced he will say nothing on the subject until after the election, if at all.

"President Calvin C. Coolidge, candidate for President, has absolutely refused to commit himself or even talk about the hooded order of the Ku Klux Klan," said the Washington Tribune, a negro paper, today. "Many have been the reasons advanced by the President's friends as to why he continues to refrain from stating his position on the klan. The one obvious reason, however, is because the Republican party in the North is hopelessly tied to the hooded order." Negro opponents of the "invisible empire" are making a great deal out of the Slemp letter to James E. Deery of Indianapolis, saying he could not refer him to the "occasion when the President has discussed this matter." "That letter," the Tribune says, "speaks for itself."

HURRICANE RAGING OFF COAST

Weather Bureau Reports Tropical Storm in Atlantic.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The tropical storm has reached the proportion of a hurricane and it was central at 8 o'clock tonight about latitude 20 degrees north, longitude 86 degrees west, attended by dangerous shifting gales and apparently moving almost directly northward, the Weather Bureau reported.

Rain has fallen during the last 24 hours in Southern Florida and excessive amounts were reported from Key West and Miami, rainfall for the 12 hours ending at 8 p. m., tonight at the latter place being 8.78 inches. Storm warnings are displayed on the Florida coast as far north as Cedar Keys and Titusville.

NAMED TO BOUNDARY BODY

Joseph R. Fisher, Ulster Unionist, Appointed.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The appointment of Joseph R. Fisher as third member of the Irish Boundary Commission was announced today. He is a London barrister, a writer on Irish affairs, is identified with the Ulster Unionist party and was at one time editor of the Belfast News Letter.

He is believed to hold conciliatory views and not to support the extremist "not one inch" porty of the Ulster Premier, Sir James Craig, which party is against any change which will take the slightest amount of territory from the northern area. It is believed the appointment makes a deadlock less likely.

CENTURY-OLD SILVERWARE FROM ENGLAND ON SALE

Beautiful Pieces of Ware Dating Back to 1800 Offered to St. Louisans.

The rose room of Buckingham Hotel is filled, and will be all this week, with a collection of English silverware dating from 1800 and even earlier. Some of the articles are classified as museum pieces because of their workmanship, beauty and value. There are about 3000 pieces in all, chiefly tableware.

This represents less than a third of the noted Brainard Lemon collection of Louisville, Ky. All pieces are for sale. Some few articles such as salt and pepper shakers, are priced as low as $10. There is one huge and beautiful soup tureen with a $1500 tag. One massive dinner service was made in London for the Earl of Dudley, 1808-27. Numerous pieces shown were made by the able Paul Storr. There are some snuff boxes that might be adaptable for cigarette cases.

Two gilded silver wine coolers, made early in the last century for Lord Dennistown of Scotland, are notable. Such things may be used for decorations in this dry age. A Nuremburg cup, shaped as a quaint woman holding aloft a bowl, has a large vessel for the bridegroom and the little tilting bowl for the bride, for a wedding wine ceremony of old. Among other articles on view are cutlery, mugs, candlesticks and candelabra.

The display is under the auspices of the Curio Shop, Galeria Building, which is conducted by Mrs. J. L. Johnston and Mrs. Richard S. Kennard.

CHAUFFEUR IS CHARGED WITH IMPERSONATING AN OFFICER

Warrant Issued Against Man for Alleged Attempt to Extort Money for "Speeding."

A warrant charging impersonation of a police officer was issued yesterday against Robert Brennan, 21 years old, a chauffeur, on complaint of Walter Preston, negro chauffeur, who charged that Brennan attempted to extort $10 from him Friday after a pretended arrest on Clayton road for speeding. Preston pleaded that he had no money and urged Brennan to go with him to the Melbourne Hotel where Preston is employed.

While Brennan waited Preston called a policeman who arrested Brennan after Brennan had attempted to flee. Brennan at first told the police he was a Deputy Sheriff but later admitted that he had no commission as a peace officer.

Paul Whiteman's Orche Gives Premiere of First To Poem in Jazz.

By RICHARD L. STOKE

WHAT is said to be the tone-poem - ever comp for jazz orchestra had premiere performances yeste afternoon and evening at Odeon. It is entitled "Broadw Night," and the composer Ferdie Grofe, who has for se years served as arranger for Whiteman's orchestra.

At the beginning is pictured flaring forth of the lights a the famous thoroughfare, with gathering of its swarms of pl ure-seekers. A lyrical middle tion delineates Broadway's p worship of beauty. The conclu portrays the street at its grea when from Forty-second stree Columbus Circle it teems after-theater crowds. The work peared to be original and pic esque, and had the merit of other rhythms in contrast to syncopated portions.

The occasion was the second of Mr. Whiteman and his orche to St. Louis within the year. matinee audience was numbe only by hundreds, but the n attendance was large. Appla was frequent and enthusiastic.

The American Orchestra.

The director terms his org zation a modern American orch tra, in that its combination of struments was evolved in this co try, while the symphony orches was imported intact from Euro A study of the constitution of t native band proved fascinating.

It consists of two grand pia six violins, banjo, two trump two trombones, three French hor bass euphonium, contrabass, k tledrums and an array of perc sion appliances, a Hungarian du mer and four saxophones.

These 24 players multiplied the selves many times by means of t practice of doubling, which is sp ingly used in symphony orchestr but is here carried to amaz lengths. The second trombone do bled on the violin, and the doubl bass player on the tuba. A Fren horn player doubled with the vo —for human song is a part of t ensemble. The saxophone play trebled and quadrupled on cla nets, oboes, English horn, picco flute, bagpipes, octavon, sarru phone, heckelophone, flageolet a other reed instruments. One p former Ross Gorman, played 14 different instruments last nig and is said to be master of 22.

Many of these instruments a unknown to the symphony orche tra. The octavon, a Russian instr ment, has a clarinet mouthpiec and the tube, curved on itself, of diminutive bassoon. The heckel phone is a bass oboe, and the sa rusophone has a double reed li an oboe, but a metal tube. T dulcimer has strings like a pia but is played with mallets like xylophone.

The tone quality is far differe from that of a symphony orchestr owing to the weakness of t strings, the presence of the plus like, blurty voice of the saxophon and the practice of playing trum pets and trombones for the mo part with mutes. Because of th preponderance of wind instrument the orchestra has a sonority out o all proportion to its size. In pla ing the portamento is habituall used, even on the keyed instru ments—a feat once believed im practicable. Quarter-tones a constantly employed, even on th diatonically keyed brass and reed Moreover, sounds are wrenche from the instruments which hav not yet found acceptance into th rank of beautiful tones. This ne and peculiar idiom is rich in com edy, and awaits only the coming o some Rabelais of music.

Once a trumpeter removed th mouthpiece and played on it, pro ducing almost human cries whic convulsed the audience. Gorma played on the mouthpiece of clarinet, muting it with his hand and the humorous effect was sim ilar. In fact, the palette used the brass and reed instruments thronged with fresh and piqua colors. This American music ma not yet have attained greatness an beauty, but it is new, free an sturdy. Its characteristic is vita ity, and gusto. Its rhythms faith fully reflect the nervous excitabil ity of the American temperamen

Orchestra of Virtuosos.

This particular orchestra is superior to the usual jazz band a symphony orchestra is to th ordinary theater orchestra. I players are highly skilled, and re spond to their leader's baton wi remarkable flexibility. All hi tancy has been banished, and pia issimos of extreme delicacy an grace are frequent. The brass notably euphonious and well blen ed.

Mr. Whiteman wisely varied h programs with numbers in tripl time, such as waltzes and minue as a relief from the relentle pounding of the duple rhyth crossed with syncopation, which characteristic of jazz. But whi the Whiteman orchestra offers r sources of tone-color in whi Rimsky-Korsakoff would have re eled, and though it is already supple and perfected instrume for musical humor, most of th compositions offered were intere ing as an experiment and promi rather than for intrinsic merit.

Some exceptions were note There was Eastwood Lanes' "S Burial," a piece of genuine feelin and descriptive power. There wa George Gershwin's clever and in ventive "Rhapsodie in Blue," th first pianoforte concerto ever writ ten for the American orchestra. And finally, there was Victor Her bert's charming "Suite of Sere nades," written in the idiom of th Whiteman orchestra and not tha of the symphony.

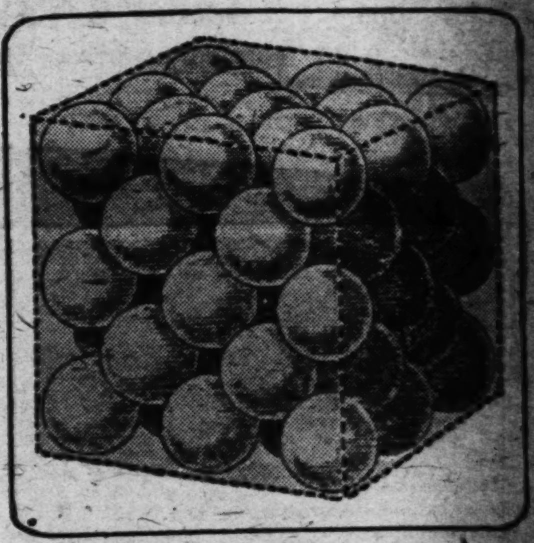
BEAUTIES of the DAY

No. 2 of a series of paintings by Henry Hutt, the noted American artist. The original of this portrait is Wynn Richmond, of England, now in this country.

Now Uncle Sam Tackles the Mystery of the Atom

Physicists at the Bureau of Standards take up what is perhaps the most sensational line of research in modern science—Already, "planet" electrons have been knocked off from atoms—Attempts will be made to cut up the atomic nucleus itself, and nobody knows what will happen then —Successful disintegration of nuclear structure of atom would render available sufficient power to turn all the millwheels of the earth forever—and, conceivably, might mean the blowing up of the whole world — If man releases atomic energy, can he control it?

Dr. L. F. Curtiss in his laboratory at the U. S. Bureau of Standards, where he is exploring the interior structure of atoms.



Gold speck magnified 30 million diameters. Each ball represents an atom which consists of a nucleus with electrons revolving around it, in striking resemblance to sun and its family of planets.

WHILE astronomers are puzzling over the awesome mysteries of the infinitely great, physicists at the United States Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C., are penetrating the terrible distances of the infinitely little.

Surrounded by strange instruments, men sit in laboratories there and shoot bombs into unknown stellar systems, knock stars out of atomic universes, explore trackless immensities of space shut up in tubes of gas, and prepare, step by step, the way for the possible utilization in some distant future of atomic energy, the greatest conceivable reservoir of power in existence.

In other words, they study the composition of the atom. And experiments may eventually be conducted on the actual disruption of the central mass of the atom—perhaps the most sensational line of research in modern science.

Dr. L. F. Curtiss, for the past few years connected with the Cavendish laboratories at Cambridge University under the direction of Sir Ernest Rutherford, has opened a laboratory at the Bureau of Standards, where he hopes eventually to conduct experiments along the revolutionary lines of splitting up atoms which have been followed by the British scientist.

If the atom can be disintegrated successfully and the power generated in the process kept under control, man would have available energy enough to keep all the millwheels of the earth turning forever.

There is a startling side to this also. If the central mass of a complicated atom can be broken up, nobody knows exactly what will happen. Some people say that the news may be published to the inhabitants of a planet billions of miles distant from earth by a news item from some astronomer's observatory on that planet, to the effect that an obscure heavenly object far away in space had blown up and disappeared. That obscure object would be the earth.

The physicists at the Bureau of Standards, however, are not going to blow up the earth.

Sir Ernest Rutherford has succeeded in knocking chips off atoms of nitrogen, boron, fluorine, sodium, aluminum and phosphorus and several other elements. But these are very simple elements. He is convinced that the extension of his work to the heavier elements, where power or danger can be created, is beyond human means. Moreover, he believes that nature would have been the first to devise a formula for this process if it existed in the scheme of things.

The fact remains, however, that at the Cavendish laboratories the nucleus of a simple element has been split. Dr. Curtiss, formerly of Cornell University, is enthusiastic over the work of Dr. Rutherford. He will devote his laboratory efforts here for the present, however, to certain involved experiments on the constitution of the atomic nucleus, but later hopes to enter the lines followed by Sir Ernest in actually cutting up the nucleus itself—the dream of alchemists.

It is the application rather than the principle involved that constitutes the difficulty of such experiments, Dr. Curtiss explained. It consists, literally, of shooting missiles into unseen planetary systems. Once the atomic theory is accepted the steps of reasoning follow in logical order. The theory itself is perhaps the most marvelous development of science.

What is an atom?

It is explained in any high school physics or chemistry textbook:

"The smallest portion into which matter can be divided chemically and still preserve its individuality."

A block of iron, for instance, might be subdivided indefinitely, and still remain iron until the ultimate atom was reached. Cut that in two or split a bit off it and you have iron no longer, but something else. Just what you would have is difficult to say, since the experiment never has been performed, and, with any means now available, could not be.

What is the substance of this atom?

Right here is where sensationalism comes in—sensationalism beside which the wildest dreams of romancers become commonplace, and yet supported by indisputable facts. The theory holds that the atom, so small that it is invisible under the most powerful microscope, and baffles the imagination as much as the most distant star, is constructed on much the same order as a stellar system. It is, in brief, a central sun, surrounded by planets, with the distance between them as great or greater, comparatively, as the distance between any of the planets in our own solar system.

If 50,000,000 atoms were placed in a row it would be only an inch long. On this basis it would require 1200 billion billion atoms to fill a cubic inch. The imagination can run riot in considering the immensity of the heavens, and far more impressive still is the outlook in the opposite direction—the immensity of the infinitely small.

Now as to the internal structure of the atom. This central sun, according to the atomic theory, is charged with positive electricity around which revolve various numbers of electrons, which are charges of negative electricity. The number of these electrons, attracted and kept in place by the central sun, and the orbits they follow, determine the nature of the element of which the atom is the smallest integral part.

Thus, a central sun with one electron revolving around it is hydrogen, and with six electrons, it is carbon. Up to this extent physicists are on explored ground. They know the number of planets revolving around the suns of the 92 elements—from hydrogen up to uranium—and the courses they follow in their universes of space. The negative electrons, or planets, are larger but much less dense than the body they revolve about. Its density is sufficient to chain them to their orbits.

Now, it is comparatively simple, from the physicist's viewpoint, to knock off an electron or two of the simpler atoms. The outer planets of the system can be disconnected and sent flying through atomic space by action of light and electrical discharges. By the action of X-rays we can even eject one of the more strongly bound electrons.

But this is not a practical splitting of the atom. The energy generated by such methods will not produce any miracles, for the central mass remains the same, with the same power of attraction. Robbed of one of the planets of its system it almost instantaneously will pick up a loose one or, perhaps, get the same one back. For the smallest fraction of conceivable time it will be something besides iron, for instance. In fact, this is definitely proved by other experiments conducted at the Bureau of Standards.

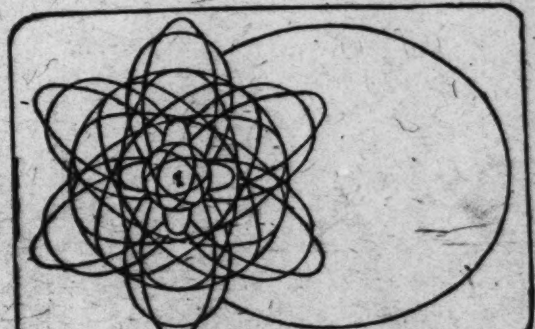
But supposing we can split up the central mass. Here is a much more difficult proposition and is what Sir Ernest Rutherford has succeeded in accomplishing on a small scale. With a bit chipped off its sun, it no longer has the same mass, and consequently has not the same attracting power. It can not hold the same number of electrons in their orbits. Consequently that particular stellar system becomes some other kind of a stellar system. Here, perhaps as a side issue, we might mention that this is the goal of alchemists, ancient and modern.

Breaking up the central mass of the element would mean transmuting that element into another sort of element—gold, for example.

Now consider the tremendous power required to hold this atom together. With the atom split, the energy is not destroyed, but released in the form of heat. If you could take a bar of iron and pull it in two you would change into heat that amount of power used by nature to hold the bar together. Both the dissevered ends would be hot.

Now the bar of iron is held together very loosely indeed compared to the units of positive electricity that make up the central suns of atoms. Release this power, and what would happen? Certainly an enormous amount of heat would be generated. Nobody knows just how much. It might, conceivably, be enough to blow up the world if it could not be kept under control.

Here is Sir Ernest Rutherford's method for shooting chips off these central suns, as explained by Dr. Curtiss:



An atom of copper, magnified 240 million times. The small but relatively heavy nucleus is at X, and the numerous curved lines mark the diverse orbits of the satellite electrons.

Among the properties of radium is its discharge of bits of matter, known as alpha particles. These travel from the element into space at the astonishing speed of 12,000 miles per second. Prof. Rutherford allows these particles to bombard the element. If one hits the central mass, there is always the possibility that a bit will be chipped off—thereby utterly and permanently changing the nature of that particular stellar universe. It can't hold all its planets any longer and they go hurtling through space, perhaps to be picked up by some other nucleus somewhere, sometime.

The process is practically the same as that employed in the luminous watch dials made by a radio-active element bombarding zinc sulphide. He counts the number of electrons or hydrogen atoms that are knocked out by the flashes they produce when they hit a screen of zinc sulphide.

Experiments actually are in progress at the Bureau of Standards in the ionization of elements, or the temporary changing of their nature by knocking electrons out of their orbits. The physicists have just been able to verify one important law. A free electron flying through space and striking the atom may send one or more of its planets out of the system. The positive electricity in the nucleus then draws in another electron to the orbit, restoring the

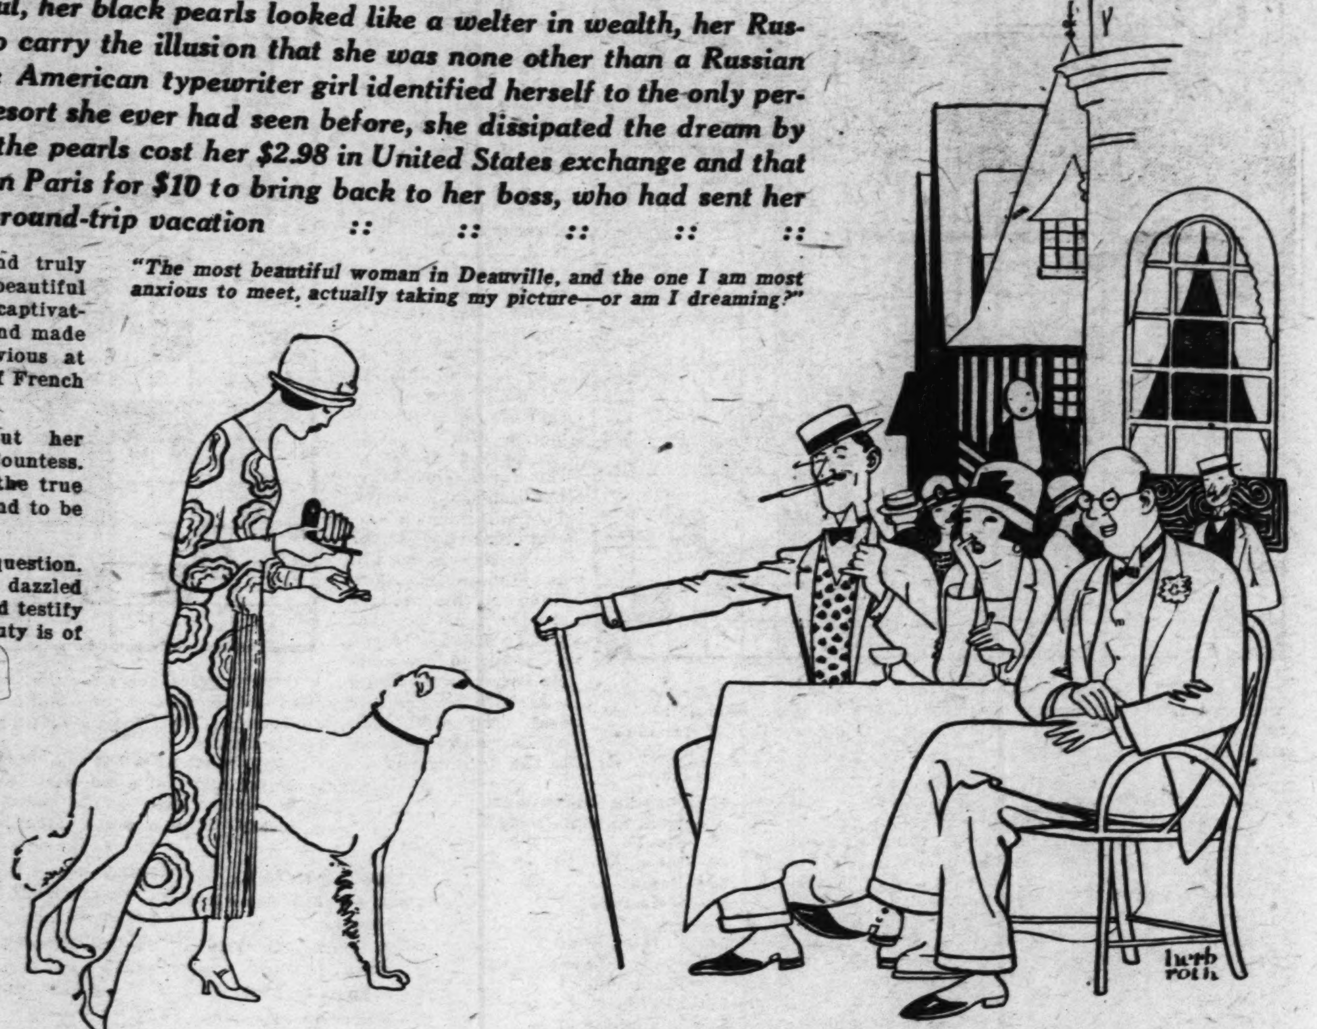
"The most beautiful woman in Deauville, and the one I am most anxious to meet, actually taking my picture—or am I dreaming?"



READ here the true and truly moving tale of the beautiful Russian Countess who captivated the hearts of men and made fashionable women envious at Deauville, the swiftest of French seashore resorts.

The only thing untrue about her is that she isn't a Russian Countess. The best and most unusual of all the true things is that she didn't even pretend to be a Russian Countess.

But as to her beauty there is no question. Everybody who beheld her and was dazzled by her at Deauville last month would testify in court, if summoned, that her beauty is of the dazzling order.

In reality she was, she is, none other than——

But let a well-known American, a New Yorker who has traveled throughout the world and seen beautiful women in every country, tell the tale as he told it after he arrived back home the other day and had manufactured some excuse to make a social call during business hours at the offices of a prosperous commercial operator in the downtown section. Our traveled friend was "curious" to see a certain young woman he expected to find, and did find, in that busy establishment.

"I first saw her," begins this historian of the unique episode, "in the baccaret rooms of the Casino at Deauville.

"Her exquisite blonde beauty, together with the rich simplicity of her dress, attracted my attention the moment I caught sight of her. There was a haunting familiarity about her face that fascinated me. Where had I seen her before? I asked myself as I took my place on the opposite side of the group around the table.

"If I hadn't noticed the marvelous necklace of black pearls that circled her beautiful, swanlike neck, I would have spoken to her, for I felt sure that somewhere, somehow, I had at least been introduced to her—in New York, Monte Carlo, or perhaps in Cairo. But the black pearls deterred me bowing when our eyes met. The face was familiar, but I could not place the black pearls. No, she just bore a striking resemblance to someone I had known somewhere at some time or other, and so I turned my attention to a gem-covered member of the dear unfair sex who was playing with neatly folded packages of mille franc notes.

"But despite the fact that this glittering beauty—she must have had half a pint of diamonds scattered about her person—was the cynosure of all eyes around the table, and that I was more or less interested when I learned that she was Mrs. Jean Nash, 'the best-dressed woman in Europe,' I could not dismiss the memory of the haunting but less scintillating beauty of the young woman with the black pearls. Her exquisitely chiseled features, the sad yet wistful expression in her eyes and the wonderful transparency of her fair skin prevented me from following the play at the table, although the greatest celebrities at Deauville were gathered about it.

"Opposite Mr. Nash was Aga Khan, head of a great Oriental religion, whose devotees in the Himalayas throw their gold offerings in the rivers in the hope that they will flow into his treasure chest in some mysterious way. Next to him was a bearded Frenchman of the old school—a millionaire land owner from Brittany, nicknamed 'Le Barbier' because of his well-trimmed silken whiskers, from which I momentarily expected a meadow lark to pop out.

"Even at Palm Beach the play at this table would have been considered big. Yet in the "Salle Prives," where a group of Greek gamblers were holding forth, the stakes were 10 times as great. The only thing that impressed me, however, was the fact that money doesn't care to whom it belongs.

"But I wanted to know the identity of the beautiful blonde with the black pearls—and, if possible, to be presented to her. So I asked one of the Casino attendants if he happened to know her name.

" 'Unfortunately, no,' he replied, apologetically. 'I believe she is a Russian Countess who has only been here two days,' adding: 'I can understand your curiosity—she is very beautiful.'

"The arrival of two of my friends, hail fellows well met, with whom I had dined earlier in the evening, prevented me from following up my preferred line of thought for several minutes. I was dragged to the long bar at the end of the baccaret salon, where Monsieur Coty, the famous perfumer, insisted upon telling four old stories. Miss Pearl White, the screen scream, from Springfield, Mo., showed us the exact spot where the Prince of Wales had his breakfast after dropping 92,000 francs at one of the nearby tables.

"When I was table to tear myself away I started on a still hunt for the lovely Countess, but although I searched everywhere—in the Casino, in the ballroom, in the theater, where an operetta was being played; on the terrace overlooking the Plage Fleuri, and at every baccarat table, I could not find her. Like Cinderella, she had vanished at the midnight hour.

"The following morning found me at the beach, for I felt certain that the bathing hour would enable me to see more of my fair charmer—beach costumes at Deauville being Gunga Din-like in their nothing much before and rather less than half of that behind. But although I was the first in the water and the last out, the lovely Russian Countess was nowhere in evidence.

"A marvelous creature in a very abbreviated cloth-of-gold suit raised my hopes for a moment, but she proved to be Mlle. Jeanne Dannou, Parisian actress. I was given another false alarm by Mrs. Vernon Castle—her gayly colored peignoir being to blame. She was with her two husbands—too bad!

"Miss Gilda Gray, in a sincere fitting costume designed for her by Paul Poiret and which she was afraid to get wet, was most sympathetic when I explained my quest. She shimmied up and down the beach with me while we scanned a hundred faces without success.

"Yes, the beautiful Countess had been seen walking with a Russian wolfhound—there were the corroborative details of the black pearls—but nobody knew her name or where she was stopping. I was consoling myself with some freshly talcumed friends at the Potiniere—the outdoor meeting place of all Deauville at the hour before luncheon—when to my surprise and amazement I saw the beautiful Countess with a Russian wolfhound, standing directly in front of our table. She had a little pocket camera which she was trying to focus on us.

" 'What a wonderful bit of luck!'—the thought

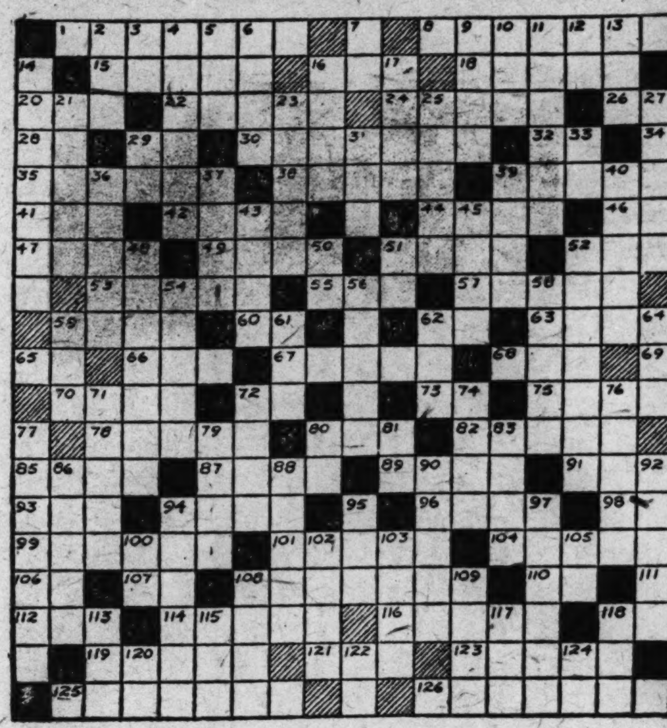
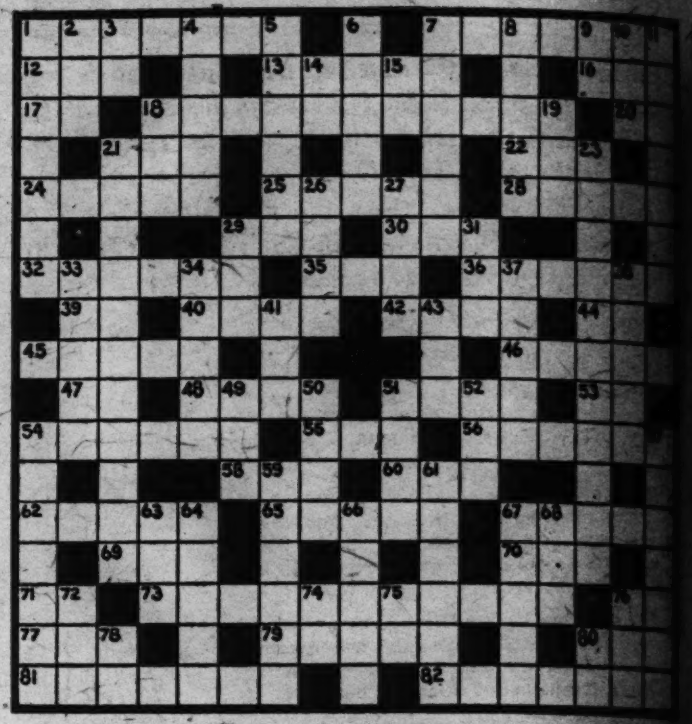
More Cross-Word Puzzles to Tax Your Skill



A brilliant construction, comprising clever interlocking combined with symmetry of design. Such a combination is difficult and extremely rare. To obtain a picture such as this four-pointed star makes a real treasure of the puzzle.

Every number in the form represents the beginning of a word, reading either horizontally or vertically. If there is a black square, to the left of the number, the word is horizontal; if above it, the word is vertical. The same number may, of course, begin both a horizontal and a vertical. The definitions for the correct words to fill the form are found below, with numbers corresponding to those on the form. Run through the definitions till you find one that you recognize, and put it in its proper place on the form, one letter for each white square. This will furnish several cross-clews to the words linking with it at right angles. Continue in this manner till the form is completely filled. If you have solved the puzzle correctly it should read both horizontally and vertically with words corresponding to the definitions.



We've used the names of some national heroes in today's puzzle, most of them should be familiar enough and all are in the old reliable dictionary. To those beginning the solving of cross-word puzzles here's a start.

The vertical word running down the space 7, described as the principal court of a Persian house, is "Beroon." Its second "o" finishes the last letter of the horizontal word beginning at space 25. This is derived from a prefix meaning narrow or slender, and is "lepto."

How Do You Measure Rain?

WHAT does the Weather Man mean when he says: "The rainfall for Tuesday was 1.76 inches"? Rainfall is measured by means of a rain gauge. A rain gauge consists of a small metal cylinder, the lid of which is in the form of a funnel with a specified diameter. Inside the cylinder is a glass vessel for collecting the rain. The rim of the funnel is usually composed of brass, while the rest of the contrivance is of copper or japanned metal, which serves as a protection against rust.

Various types of rain gauges are in use at the present time. Some have a diameter of eight inches, and contain a metal bucket from which the rain is measured; others are three inches smaller, and contain a glass vessel graduated in half-inches, from which the water is poured into another and more finely graduated bottle.

In one invention the rain from an ordinary receiver passes to a cylinder fitted with a float. To the float is attached a lever, which raises and lowers a sliding pen. The latter works on a revolving drum similar to those used on the barograph, the instrument often seen in windows of opticians' shops. When one inch of rain has been collected the cylinder empties itself, and readings begin again at zero.

More Creatures That Never Die

SCIENTISTS have believed for some time that the tiny animalcules that live in ditch water, some of the smallest and simplest of living creatures, are really immortal; that they never die naturally but live on forever unless they chance to be eaten by other creatures. Now Dr. W. Goetsch in Germany has discovered that some varieties of hydra, creatures much more highly organized than these animalcules, seem to possess this same power of living forever.

When these hydras are deprived of food they shrink up and cease to be active, but they do not die. Later on, when food is again supplied to them, they enlarge to their normal size and go on with their life just as though nothing had happened.

From Elfin Actress to Fairy Godmother

Lotta as "The Little Marchioness" in a Dickens adaptation which was one of her big successes. From the Harvard College Theater Collection.

Lotta Crabtree, leaving her estate of almost $5,000,000 to charity, plays the princely benefactress as her final role—A large earning power before "Lotta" retired from the stage in 1890, coupled with shrewd investments, built up a fortune the size of which was not suspected even by her closest friends—When the child actress toured California gold fields, delighted miners threw nuggets on the stage—The St. Louis engagement which marked turning point in brilliant career, and other anecdotes of a triumphant personality :-:

Another famous role of Lotta's was that of "La Cigale," in which she is seen in this old photo. From the Harvard College Theater Collection.

MANY an American veteran of the World War, discouraged and in need of help, will have cause to remember gratefully the name of Lotta Crabtree. For a generation, and longer, her name has been remembered with pleasure by elderly theater goers of the present time.

Once upon a time, as they say in the fairy tales which are rivaled by the career of this little actress, "Lotta" was almost a household word. Her career began at such a tender age, won for her such a meed of affection and brought her such opulence financially, that it has scarcely a parallel in dramatic history.

Miss Crabtree retired from the stage, at the height of her fame, some 34 years ago. To the majority of people who patronize the box offices today she is but a name, almost a legend, in which are combined anecdotes of her elfin cleverness, of delighted miners in the California gold camps, who tossed nuggets upon the stage, and of the crowds which besieged the theaters where she played in later days.

So long had "Lotta" been in modest retirement that many of her former admirers did not know that she still was living. And her death in Boston recently has crowned with rare and beautiful distinction a most remarkable story.

Leaving a fortune of almost $5,000,000, Lotta Crabtree's will directs that some $2,000,000 shall be set aside for a trust fund, and the income used to aid disabled, maimed, wounded and sick soldiers, sailors and women who were actually in the service of the United States during the World War.

The greater part of the estate is left to charity, including funds for the benefit of dumb animals, for discharged convicts and for deserving persons in the theatrical profession. Finally, there is a fund for aiding needy persons, as a memorial to her mother. The various trusts terminate in 40 years, when whatever remains of them will revert to the residue of the estate, to be applied as directed for other charitable objects.

Although Lotta's will was carefully drawn and very explicit in its directions, down to the smallest bequests, a horde of relatives and claimants has arisen to contest its provisions. Some of them will try to prove the great actress was insane when she made the will in 1922. She had her peculiarities in late years, it is true—even eccentricities, perhaps. But it is doubtful if proof can be shown that she was even mildly insane.

Her memory was surely keen when the will was drawn, as witness the details of some of her bequests. The bequest of a $100,000 fund for aiding discharged convicts provides that the income shall be paid semi-annually to organizations having such convict aid as their object in St. Louis, San Francisco, Louisville, Chicago, New Orleans, New York and Washington, as well as the Massachusetts Society. If there is no such society in any of the cities named, the trustees are to organize one and pay over the income pro rata.

Likewise with the fund for aiding theatrical people in need. Miss Crabtree remembered the pride of stage folk and made provision for temporary loans to actor or actress worthy of financial assistance, and the trust fund is ordered to contribute to homes or institutions for indigent members of the profession.

Lotta loved animals and birds, and one of the larger trust funds is for $300,000, to be used to oppose vivisection and to protect animals from abuse and cruelty. The income may be spent in proceedings against persons guilty of causing hardship to any animal. Part of this fund is to be expended in erecting fountains in Boston and New York for horses, birds and dogs. In San Francisco, "Lotta's Fountain" is a well-known landmark at the corner of Market and Kearny streets.

Miss Crabtree, known universally as "Lotta" to veteran theater goers and members of the profession, retired from the stage in 1890. Her full name was Charlotte Mignon Crabtree. At her retirement she said:

"I would rather die unknown than survive on the stage a wrinkled old woman."

Her stage career is cited by managers of the present day as an example of personality triumphing over adversity, equaled only by the career of Bernhardt.

Her business career—and she was rated the keenest business woman in New England—likewise presented amazing features. She was one of the largest women taxpayers in Boston, and also owned property in several other cities. Included in her holdings were the Park Theater and the Hotel Brewster, where she had lived for years at the time of her death.

Lotta's stage career began back in the '50's. Her father had failed to make a success in the gold camps of California, and her mother went on the stage with the little daughter. In touring the rough mining camps, the company in which the Crabtrees traveled had to play in tents, on improvised stages, and sometimes even in the open. Through her schooling in that environment, Lotta developed a rare gift of adaptability. Soon she was appearing in her own part of the program.

On more than one occasion, as she was fond of relating to friends, she was showered with gold nuggets by the miners, for her "breakdown" dancing and her singing.

Before an audience composed almost entirely of unemployed Civil War veterans, in Niblo's Garden, New York, in 1865, her first Eastern appearance was a dismal failure. But two months later she appeared in Chicago in "The Seven Sisters," and took the theater public of that city by storm.

Then she came to St. Louis and her success here proved to be the turning point in Lotta's career. She played at Ben de Bar's Opera House on Market street, between Broadway and Sixth, where the Grand Opera House now stands.

It was Ben de Bar who recognized the girl's talent and at whose suggestion

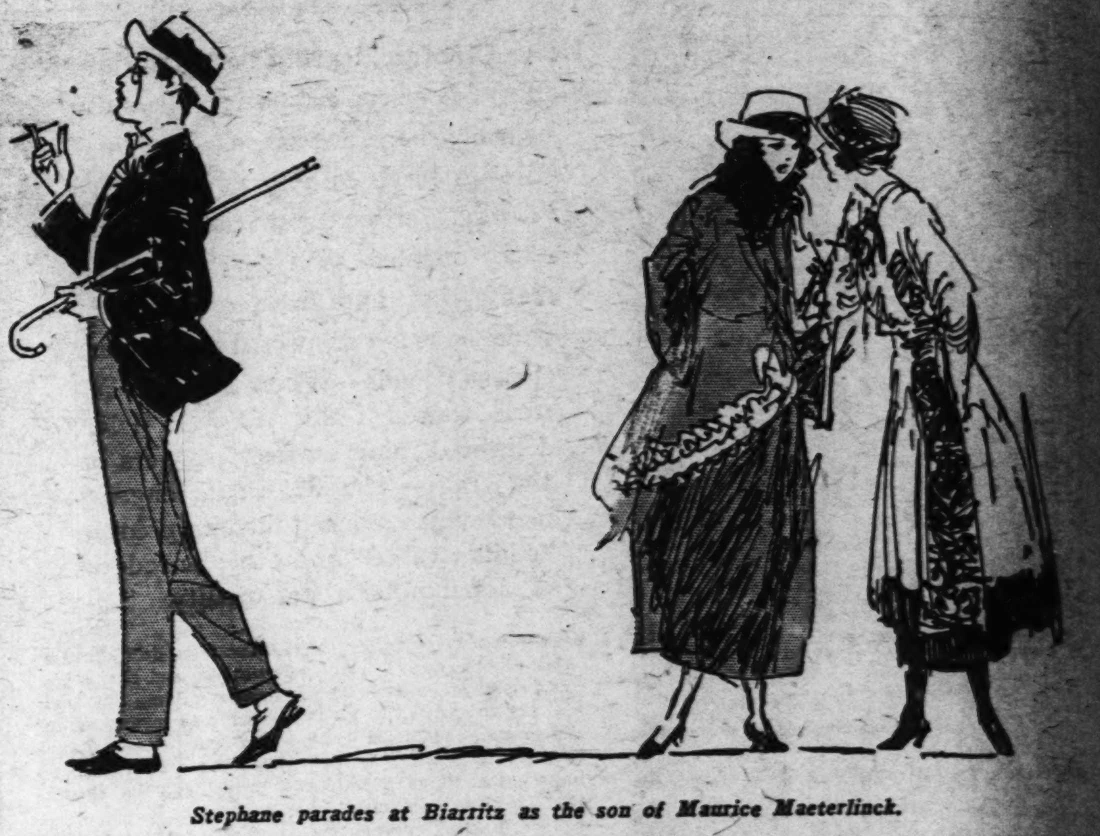
The Astounding Exploits of Otto

The young impostor who pinned a Belgian medal on the breast of Gen. Henry T. Allen without being authorized to decorate the American soldier has been sent to jail for beating a hotel bill—But that's merely a low spot in his high-flying career of pretending to be things and persons he isn't—He's posed as poet, poet's son, Cardinal's nephew, Interallied Commissioner and in various other characters—In American parlance, he has the nerve :: :: ::

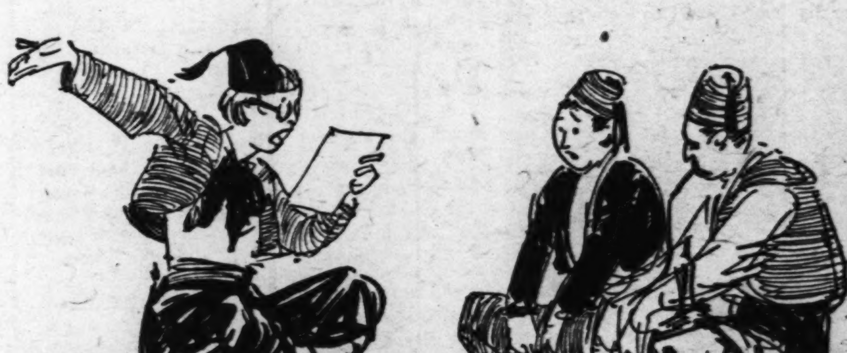


Stephane parades at Biarritz as the son of Maurice Maeterlinck.

HARD-WORKING novelists sometimes rack their brains severely in trying to create an all-around impostor. To such workmen is recommended a study of the career of Stephane Otto, sentenced the other day to serve six months in jail by the Paris Correctional Court. M. Otto, who is only 25, may be described briefly as a professional fraud of super-versatility. It is difficult to believe that such a youthful person can have conceived and executed all the astounding exploits attributed to him, but the evidence seems to be cumulative and convincing.

Young Otto now has half a year cut out of his normally inalienable right to liberty and the pursuit of happiness by reason of one of the simplest and least original of his efforts in imposture. He was living at a hotel in Paris under the name and title of the Comte d'Artagnan de Sabrol. The landlord rather liked to have the handsome young "Comte" around the house. His presence gave tone to the establishment. But when the board bill was presented and the guest was unable to pay, M. Boniface turned the Count over to the police, who, with the aid of the Court, did the rest.

Merely a casual survey of M. Otto's achievements in his chosen art is enough to make one feel sure that the young man has suffered a profound humiliation—even to the degree of losing self-respect—at being caught and caged for such a cheap fraudulency as that of trying to beat his board bill. It is safe to assume that much of his glory has departed from him because of this; but if you care to go back along his trail for a few years you cannot escape the conviction that Stephane Otto, if turned loose upon the world again six months hence, is sure to recover all of his old-time self-possession and to invent and achieve new triumphs in his profession which will shame the old.

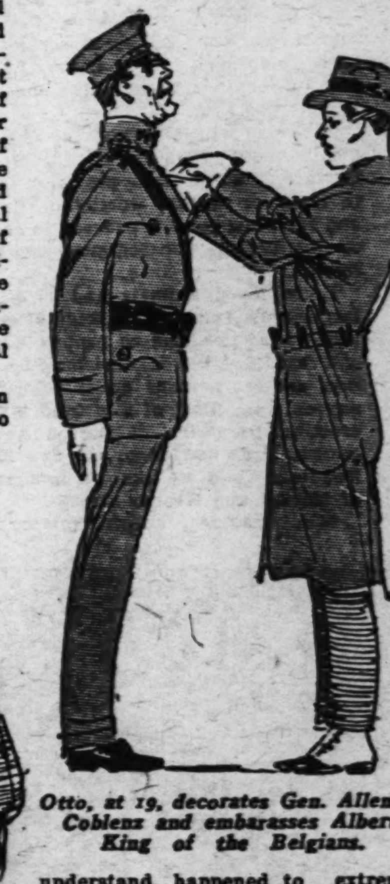


In Turkey the young man was a poet, reciting his ode in honor of the Government officials.

You may have read a few years ago about the episode of the presentation of the Belgian Military Medal of Honor to Major-General Henry T. Allen, commander of the American army of occupation in Germany. That took place at Coblenz in 1919, when military decorations were flying about furiously. A dapper youth appeared at headquarters in Coblenz and announced that he was a special envoy from Albert, King of the Belgians. The King had commissioned him to present the medal to Gen. Allen. The General, just like Barkis, was willin'. It would be a nice little trophy to bring home and show the folks. He had other medals, to be sure, but the one to be bestowed at behest of the tall, brave and beloved King Albert would find especial welcome to the breast of the distinguished American commander.

Enthused by a grand parade of the American troops, the youthful special envoy himself pinned the medal to Gen. Allen's manly and military bosom. He accompanied the gracious and graceful act with a brief but eloquent recital of the merits, military and personal, of the proud recipient. Gen. Allen almost blushed, so profuse was the praise he was compelled to hear. The press bureaus duly broadcast the news, and no doubt everybody was satisfied that Gen. Allen deserved the honor.

But there was one person, even a personage, who was not happy when he heard about it. That was Albert, King of the Belgians. The presentation put the King in a rather unpretty pickle. He had not authorized the bestowal of the honor. He would have been glad to decorate Gen. Allen just that way, had he thought of it first. The King, after a bad half-day or so of embarrassment, came forward gallantly and confirmed the bestowal of his Military Medal of Honor upon the American General, and the presentation and pinning thereof took place under official and royal auspices.



Otto, at 19, decorates Gen. Allen at Coblenz and embarasses Albert, King of the Belgians.

The first presentation and pinning, you are to understand, happened to be the original idea and execution of 19-year-old Stephane Otto. The only true thing he told about himself at the time was that he was a Belgian. He was born near Brussels. When he was only 15 years old the Germans invaded Brussels, took him prisoner and condemned him to death. The lad escaped, joined the Belgian army and fought in Flanders, where he thrice was wounded in action. These are said to be authenticated facts in his personal history.

It appears that Stephane failed to experience enough of adventure in the war. His young soul craved further excitement. He had fed up on written romances and he set out to become himself the hero of sundry unwritten ones. Since the armistice began it seems that the Belgian ex-service man has devoted all his time and all his talents to the more or less fine art of imposture. We have space here for but a few of the episodes wherein he posed as somebody or something which he wasn't, most of which he couldn't possibly be. But apparently Stephane got 100 per cent of self-satisfaction out of most of his exploits.

The famous Cobbler of Copenick, if still living, surely must feel himself a futile fourth-rater in fraudulency, compared with the now temporarily fallen "Comte d'Artagnan de Sabrol." The cobbler, as you may recall, merely passed himself off as Mayor of Copenick and had fun with strangers who looked up to him as a civil dignitary. Stephane Otto, on the other hand, became for the time being whatever it popped into his head to be; and in most instances he got away with it.

At Biarritz, for instance, he passed himself off as a son of Maurice Maeterlinck, the famous Belgian poet and playwright, he who wrote that most beautiful of all stage fantasies, "The Bluebird." It will be remembered that one of the most delightful scenes in that play had to do with the realm of the unborn. In real life Stephane Otto conceived himself as one of the babes born to M. and Mme. Maeterlinck, and as the popular poet's offspring he cut a wide and wondrous swath of personal popularity amongst the credulous and admiring tourists and social high lights at Biarritz.

Many of those who met the charming youth still are convinced that they have talked familiarly with a son of the world-famed poet, who told them many things about his illustrious father's private life.

M. Stephane "Maeterlinck" was feted most liberally at Biarritz, living on the extreme fatness of the noted resort. Finally somebody showed him up as a faker. He disappeared, leaving many debts. Those accounts remain unpaid, having been charged off to profit and loss.

Posing as son of a poet seems to have put a still more brilliant idea into the fertile head of the faker. It seems to be of record that he served as secretary to Gen. Wrangel in the Russian mixup, and after

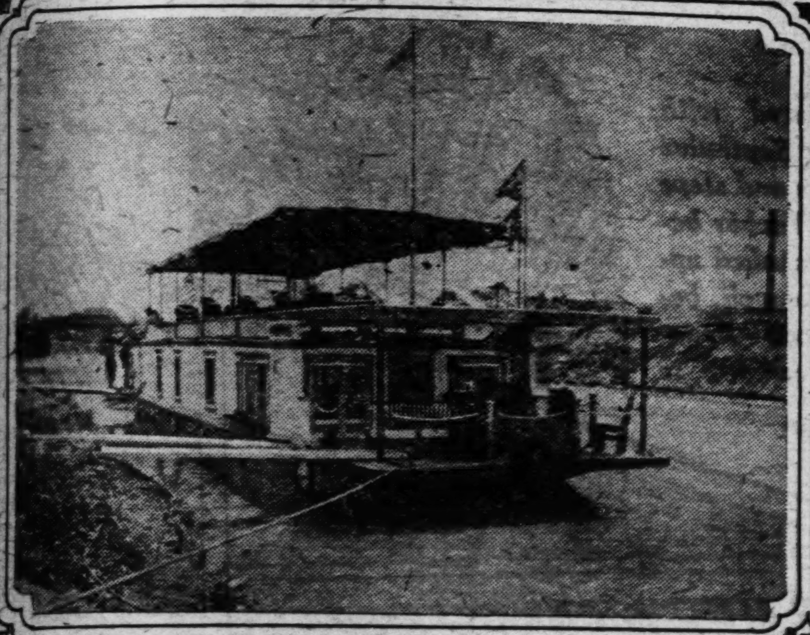
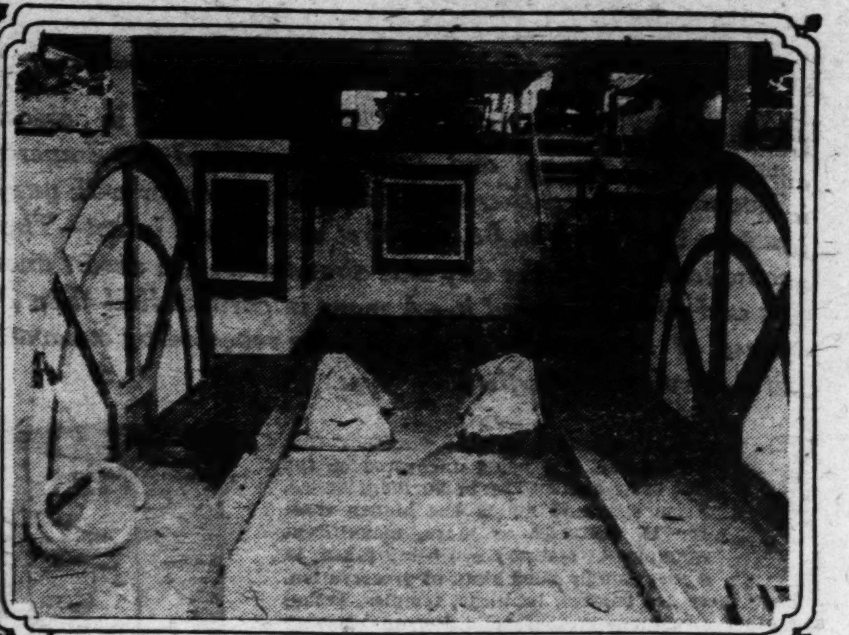
The Houseboat Which Became a Bungalow



The "Driftwood" when it was a water craft, photographed at anchor.



Aft deck of the original houseboat, showing grooved runways in which the automobile stood, and sprockets of the paddlewheel shafts to which the rear axle of auto was geared.

After showing her qualities as a successful cruiser on lakes, streams and canals, the "Driftwood" was pulled up onto the lawn of her builder's home, and became the residence of his daughter, a bride—Now, with a coating of cement and other additions, the boat has been transformed into a permanent, comfortable and artistic bungalow—How a Chicago banker used his automobile to propel 75-foot craft, built at cost of $25,000

SEVERAL years ago a Chicago banker set about the task of designing a houseboat. As the plans of the boat developed, he worked out many novel features to be included in its construction. The real inspiration, however, came one day when he was driving along the shore of Lake Michigan in his high-powered motor car.

He was just as fond of motoring as he was of houseboating, and it seemed a pity that the pleasures of the two recreations could not be combined. Then came the thought that he might make a place on his boat for the car.

The scheme seemed a likely one—but couldn't it be improved upon? Certainly. He would make the motor earn its passage by furnishing power to propel the boat. And so was born this unique combination, of land vehicle and water craft; a web-footed roadster or a pneumatic-tired river packet, whichever one preferred to call it. The owner himself called it simply "Driftwood," for that was the name he gave his boat.

A few months later, residents along the north shore of Lake Michigan in the vicinity of Chicago were startled by the appearance of a palatial houseboat which moved up and down the lake at a speed quite inconsistent with all traditions for this particular kind of vessel.

There was not a sign of smoke nor any sound which indicated the presence of an engine aboard, and yet the two paddlewheels on the sides of the boat were churning up the water vigorously as the craft proceeded on its course.

The mystery was solved when the owner ran his craft to shore and it was seen that on the aft deck, between the paddlewheels, reposed an automobile and that the auto's engine was chugging merrily away.

The mechanical arrangements by which the master of the Driftwood, in less than 10 minutes, transformed his automobile into a marine engine were simple enough. He first ran the car aboard the boat over a gangplank which connected with the long, overhanging aft deck. It was then guided along a couple of grooved runways, running from end to end of the deck, and brought to a stop between the two eight-foot paddlewheels.

The rear axle of the car was then jacked up so as to lift the tires clear of the deck, and finally connection was made by means of link-chain belts between spurred sprocket wheels attached to the rear hubs of the car and similar but larger sprocket wheels which were keyed to the ends of the paddlewheel shafts.

The paddlewheels were constructed so as to be independent of each other. When connected with the automobile the emergency brake of the car was disconnected from one driving wheel and the foot brake from the other. By this ingenious device one of the paddlewheels could be revolved while its opposite remained stationary, or both could be turned at the same time.

Drawn up on land, and with light and other service connections made, the houseboat was a comfortable home.

This arrangement made it possible to steer the boat without recourse to the rudders—of which there were two, each six feet long and two and a half feet wide—since if the port paddle was revolved while the starboard was held still, the bow of the houseboat was shoved around to starboard, and vice versa.

In addition to its two rudders the boat also had a couple of drift boards, each 10 feet long and three feet wide, to counteract the tendency of a flat-bottomed boat to drift sidewise.

Not only was the "Driftwood" remarkable in its mechanical arrangements, but as an example of marine architecture, both inside and out, it was unsurpassed. There was practically every convenience afforded by a modern, steam-heated, six-room apartment. All of the rooms were equipped with radiators, placed in out-of-the-way spots, the heating plant being located in the kitchen. This plant also supplied the hot water for the bathroom, which was a model of its kind, with porcelain tub, tile floor, nickel trimmings and shower bath.

The boat carried a gas-making machine, which supplied gas for illumination and cooking, and a water-filtering system which could completely clarify the water of the muddiest stream, making it suitable for lavatory and kitchen purposes, while a water-still rendered it drinkable.

The kitchen had a back porch, where were installed a refrigerator, a laundry, clothes dryer and other conveniences. Next to the bathroom were four sleeping rooms, all of good size, and then came a large combined living and dining room, while the spacious forward deck was fitted up in the style of a screened summer porch.

The entire top of the house proper, which was 50 feet long and 16 feet wide, was converted into a roof garden, with swinging seats, chairs, tables and potted plants. The roof garden was covered by an awning, which could be folded flat to permit the boat to pass under low bridges.

The "Driftwood" measured 75 feet over all, with a width of 16 feet 5 inches. Its owner made an exhaustive examination of the size of canal locks all over the United States before deciding upon these dimensions, as he wanted a boat which would pass through any canal in the country. The entire weight of the boat was 36 tons, and it drew 16 inches of water.

The hull was constructed of tank pine and Oregon fir, and a novel system of ventilation which kept a current of air constantly passing through it prevented even a suspicion of dampness.

To conform with the name of the boat, "Driftwood," a scheme of color decoration, including French grays, water green and river browns, was adopted and used in connection with the wall tints, the window glass, gas fixtures, rugs, curtains, hangings and furniture.

The owner of the "Driftwood" put his scheme, and incidentally the practicability of the houseboat for living purposes, to a thorough test. Day after day, throughout the summer and fall, he and his family cruised over lakes and streams and through canals, stopping wherever the banks looked attractive.

Many a time they moored at a convenient spot, ran the car ashore and toured the environs, feeling like discoverers. Occasionally they spent several days in one place. When they tired of automobiling they returned "home" and continued their water journey.

Then came a day when the daughter of the owner of the "Driftwood" was to be married, and the houseboat, having cost something over $25,000, together with its furnishings, seemed an acceptable wedding gift, as well as a delightful

Final transformation of the boat into a permanent concrete-covered bungalow which retains the outlines of the original vessel. Note the paddlewheel boxes at rear. The forward deck has become a sun parlor, and the roof garden a second story. An entrance porch has been added.

A Lost City of Long Ago is g Out

Leptis Magna, on coast of the Mediterranean, is associated with names of Hannibal and Julius Caesar, and the Emperor Septimius Severus was born there—It has Roman harbor with quays and steps just as they used to be, the first ever found intact—The harbor became landlocked, the city was abandoned, the desert encroached upon and finally covered it—A more important find than Pompeii, because of the architectural splendor revealed by excavations—Beautiful carvings unearthed VIVID reminders of "the grandeur that was Rome" are being uncovered on the site of an ancient city in Northern Africa. From the sand which has hidden them for 15 centuries or more, magnificent examples of statuary are being taken, in a surprisingly good state of preservation.

Then there are palaces, basilicas, temples, arches and other structures in that solid Roman masonry which excites wonder wherever it is found today, in France, Spain, England and other countries. Most interesting of all, because it is the first one revealed of its kind, is a Roman harbor just as it existed in the days of the old Romans, without alterations or additions by builders who came later.

The quays of this harbor, and the steps which led down to the water, are in almost perfect condition. Even some of the warehouses alongside the harbor are still to be seen, more or less disheveled by time, but easily capable of restoration.

Undoubtedly in this very harbor, now dry and choked with sand, galleys of long ago must have been moored while they received their cargo of grain for Rome, where "Bread and games!" was the insistent demand of the populace.

These dead bones of Leptis Magna, once a rich and flourishing port of the Mediterranean, may prove to be a greater find in archeology than Pompeii was. For the little Italian town, buried under the ashes of Vesuvius in 79 A. D., and now partly excavated, was little more than a summer resort.

But the city of Leptis Magna was an important shipping point for the grain of Africa, once regarded as "the granary of the Roman Empire." And Leptis Magna was the birthplace of an Emperor, while the great names of Hannibal and of Julius Caesar also are associated with it.

In the days of Leptis Magna's greatness, an arm of the sea extended through the low-lying land to its harbor. Round about the city was a fertile valley, and it was the port and metropolis of a still greater region beyond. But finally the arm of the sea was smothered and obliterated by the desert sands, resistlessly marching, and today the ancient harbor is landlocked, and its only waves are swirls of sand, driven to and fro by gusts of the hot African wind.

Climatic changes probably had much to do with the abandonment of Leptis Magna. The place lies now in a rainless belt, amid a dreary country. It is easy to imagine how the prosperity of the inhabitants slowly declined, much as did that of Rome itself; how, one by one, the stately buildings fell into disuse and decay; how an organized civic life finally ceased; how, finally, the last of the Lepitini sought homes elsewhere.

Then utter loneliness descended upon the spot which had witnessed so much bustle and stir. Nomadic tribes would come there, to marvel at the empty buildings for a few days, and would pass

No longer does an arm of the sea connect the harbor at Leptis Magna with the Mediterranean. When discovered recently the harbor was filled and covered over with sand. But once great galleys were moored there to receive cargoes of grain for Rome. Vessels of peace and of war, in ancient times, came and went at this bustling port.

restlessly on. Higher and higher rose the encroaching desert. In the end, the city was completely covered over. Leptis Magna, that famous seaport, was known only to the birds and to the animals which ventured there after man, the killer, had departed.

Today, the spot is uninhabited except for a poor little village of natives a few miles from Leptis Magna. But the old name survives precariously in the name of the village, which is Lebda.

Leptis Magna was not only an abandoned city, but a lost one, until some 80 years ago. At that time a German archeologist was journeying across the solitary wastes of the Libyan coast when he came upon a startling sight. Out of the sand in front of him rose the sculptured capitals of old Roman columns. The capitals extended in a straight line, as though they surmounted a row of columns hidden from view by the sand. A few hours of work showed that this actually was true. And only superficial digging here and there was necessary to make it evident that a whole city lay beneath the blank, shifting face of the desert.

Leptis Magna is about 70 miles east and south of Tripoli, which at the time of the German scientist's discovery was ruled by Turkey. The country round about is perhaps the wildest in all of North Africa, with conditions as to transport, robbers and general safety of visitors about the same that they have been for centuries.

Nothing in the way of exploring the site thus rediscovered was possible until Italy took over the country in 1911 and 1912. Then, before scarcely anything had been accomplished at Leptis Magna, the World War began. Italy concentrated her efforts in assisting the allies against the central empires. She could spare neither men nor money for archeological researches in the Tripolitan hinterland. So, not until 1920 was it possible to undertake in earnest the work at Leptis Magna.

The remains of this important Roman city, virtually intact, are being exhumed by 200 Arab prisoners of war, under direction of Italian Government officials. Remarkable treasures of sculpture and of architecture already have been laid bare, according to Dr. Bruno Roselli, professor of Italian at Vassar College, who recently came back from Tripoli. Dr. Roselli's enthusiasm over what is being done at Leptis Magna finds justification in some very fine photographs which he secured there.

One of the most important finds thus far, according to Dr. Roselli, is a statue of Esculapius, "the father of Medicine." The head is missing, but is likely to be found later. The torso was identified by means of a serpent and other symbols associated with Esculapius.

Dr. Roselli says that no buried city of ancient times, excepting Pompeii, has been found as intact as Leptis Magna. Beautiful statuary and paintings have been preserved for present-day men at Pompeii, but the latter cannot boast of such architectural splendor as is being brought to light at the old city in Africa.

The history of Leptis Magna, now emerging from its long sleep in the Libyan sands, goes back much farther than the time of imperial Rome. Originally, it was a colony of Phenicians, those marvelous navigators and traders of antiquity who sailed from their home in Syria to points as far away as England, where they worked the tin mines of Cornwall, and who even attempted to circumnavigate Africa.

When Leptis Magna fell into Roman hands they rebuilt it, as was their custom, so it is not likely that many vestiges remain of the early Phenician town nor of the later Carthaginian city. Even when Leptis Magna was a colony of Carthage it must have been a prosperous and wealthy city, judging from Livy's statement that it paid the Carthaginians tribute at the rate of a talent—or about $1000—a day.

Leptis Magna figured more than once in Rome's life-and-death struggle with Carthage. Known as the Punic Wars, they were three in number and altogether, with the periods of peace which intervened, extended through more than a century. The matter of colonies was a dominant factor, as in the first Punic War, waged mainly for the possession of Sicily. During this war Rome created a navy and finally wrested from Carthage the sovereignty of the seas.

It was during the second Punic War (218 B. C. to 201 B. C.) that Hannibal, the greatest Carthaginian soldier and one of the greatest in history, emerged upon the scene. Hannibal marched his army across the Alps into Italy and administered crushing defeats to the Romans at Lake Trasimenus and at Cannae. Later, when the Romans carried the war into Hannibal's home country of Africa, he was recalled from Italy to defend Carthaginian soil from foes whom he already had defeated more than once.

Because of inauspicious omens, says Livy, Hannibal did not steer for the African port he had originally selected. Instead, he and his army landed at Leptis Magna and marched thence against the Roman legions of Scipio Africanus Major. But no such subterfuge could alter the decree of destiny. Hannibal was decisively defeated at Zama, some 85 miles southwest of Carthage, and the war came to an

The MONEY RIDER

By GERALD BEAUMONT

Illustrated by J-G-Stephenson

"MY BOSS is always trying, and so am I." Little Marty Kreuger was defending the man who owned him. No wonder the more experienced jockeys laughed! The idea of anyone talking that way about Jake Devlin, who for obvious reasons was called "Hippo."

Jake called himself a "father of jockeys," but he was more nearly a slave dealer. His business was to buy up youngsters for little or nothing, develop them into race riders, and then sell their contracts at a handsome profit.

But to little Marty Kreuger, his boss was a great man. Jake had paid a widowed mother $300, taken out guardianship papers, and thus secured a riding contract that, under racing rules, established him as the owner of his legal ward.

The boy was one of those rarest of all things, a natural race rider. He had a fine seat, splendid hands and an instinctive aptitude for the game. More than that, he knew how to get the most out of a horse. He made his mistakes, but it was a matter of general comment that he never made the same one twice, and that is the test of a good jockey.

The day came when he "hung it on" Danny Hogan at Belmont Park "three noses" in a single afternoon. The other boys expected a great fist-fight in the dressing room. But Marty was so nice about it that he earned everyone's respect.

"Didn't go to pull a mean one on you, Danny!" he apologized. "Guess I was just lucky enough to be on the right horses. No hard feelings?"

The older boy stared out the window.

"Oh, that's all right," he assured. "Have a good time, but don't get the idea that it was you who beat me."

Marty puzzled. "How come, Danny?"

But Hogan shook his head. "Oh, nothin'. I'm ridin' light—that's all; and I ain't eaten since yesterday morning. The wife's runnin' around with furs and diamonds. Some day you may find out what beat Danny Hogan, but for for your own sake, I hope you don't!"

That triple-headed victory at Belmont Park marked the beginning of little Marty Kreuger's spectacular career as a "money rider," which is just what the term implies: a boy who rides for the money.

Hippo Devlin was gradually achieving a reputation as a successful trainer. He had won the confidence of a number of New York millionaires who staked him to good horses, and bet heavily when he gave them the word. These men knew very little about racing, but they were successful in other lines, and they demanded winners in this. Devlin gave them winners.

Billy Ten Tupper, youthful millionaire, owned most of the horses on which the killings were made. Billy celebrated with dinners at which there was always a flow of wine and wit. Glasses were raised "to the stable colors," and to "the sport of kings and the king of sports—Billy Ten Tupper!" They always drank to "good old Jake, bless his fat soul!" and sometimes they thought of Jockey Krueger, but not often. Ten Tupper knew nothing about Marty except what Devlin told him:

"Ignorant little bum! Eat himself out of a job if I didn't watch him. Have to tell him just what to do, or he'd finish in the ruck! Them jocks don't know nothin'."

So they gave all the credit to Hippo, along with a nice cut from their winnings; and Billy Ten Tupper, who was really a decent sort, had no conception of the truth.

But when Devlin had a horse "ready," when track conditions were favorable, when the price was right, when telegrams had been dispatched and all the money was bet where it would do the most good—then and not until then, pale and tight-lipped Marty Kreuger was lifted into the saddle and his owner panted into his ear:

"No mistakes today, kid. Bring it home!"

Easy to say, but, oh, how difficult to do! Yet Marty Kreuger never failed them once. Sometimes, through no fault of his own, it looked as though he was certain to lose, but it was at such moments that he rose to the heights of horsemanship and came on at the last moment with a whirlwind finish to nip the leaders by an inch on the post.

"Don't draw your finishes so fine!" Jake complained. "Whatya tryin' to do, give me heart failure?"

The boy actually felt called upon to apologize for giving Devlin a few seconds of uneasiness.

"Tough journey, boss," he panted. "Got bumped twice! Rail horse tired and bore out—nearly spilled the bunch. That filly of Marshall's was laying on me all the way up the stretch—had to ride two horses! I thought I done pretty good to win at all."

Devlin grumbled: "Never mind the bouquets. Pretty near tossed off the race—that's all you done! Good boy would 'a' won in the clear. How many miles ya run this morning?"

Marty hesitated. "I laid off today," he acknowledged. "Leg hurts where I went into the rail Tuesday."

"Hurts you, does it? Lemme see!"

The jockey pulled up a trouser leg, revealing a calf that was black and blue. The human mountain grunted derisively:

"Huh! You ain't even scratched! Don't try to stall on me. You're down for 107 pounds tomorrow, so you can take your choice of hittin' the road tonight or goin' without scoffin's. If you wanta work for me, you gotta stay in the limit, understand?"

Marty understood and touched his cap. Too tired for road work, he went without supper, turning in early. The next morning, when the sun had warmed to its task, the boy dog-trotted repeatedly around the mile track, fortified only with black coffee. He was beginning to understand what older riders meant by a "college education." Marty was headed for a "jockey's diploma."

Without warning, fate sent certain things to wrench his soul in quick succession. The first, his mother's death.

Then there were 20 days of complete unconsciousness on a hospital cot, following another boy's blunder. It happened at Belmont Park. Marty was in front, setting the pace. Behind him a green boy came along the rail, tried to squeeze through, and discovered too late there was no room. He pulled his horse up sharply. The animal swerved and struck the heels of the one in front.

Marty went down in a cloud of dust, and the whole field passed over him. Crushed and senseless, he was hurried to the June, the month of romance and roses! It was 10 days before the Belmont Stakes, and Marty was down to 106 pounds, with still another pound to go. He was smiling across the lunch counter into the eyes of little Kitty Keller—Kitty, whose business in life was to pass out food, the one thing that Marty needed most and could not touch!

Now, Billy Ten Tupper had been caught short on the stock market, with the result that nothing stood between the family fortune and beggary save the dainty nostrils of Lady in Lavender. If Marty Kreuger landed that mare in front, it meant a quarter of a million in cash; and that in turn meant everything, including the hand of Miss Marilyn Vanderbeck, who was the "Lavender Lady" of Billy Ten Tupper's dreams. The young clubman faced the crisis gamely. "Rather a sporty sort of race," he admitted. "I think I shall have to go down and watch it!"

There were others to whom the race meant a great deal, notably a clique of New York operators, who stood to pay out a fortune if Ten Tupper's mare captured the Belmont. They had laid 50 to 1 against her during the winter, believing that she would never start. But here she was, fit as a fiddle, and with the best money rider in the country imported for the occasion. From their viewpoint, it was necessary to look for the weak spot, and they found it the night before the race, when they "put the works" on a starving boy.

Responding to a summons he thought was from Devlin, Marty found himself in the back room of a downtown cafe. But the man who rose from the table proved to be Silk Conlin, whose occupation was to outwit the Pinkertons.

"Sit down," said Silk. "Jake will be here after a while. We're havin' a little dinner. What can I order for you?"

Marty shook his head. "Ridin' light tomorrow," he explained. "Thanks just the same."

The other smiled. "Well, excuse me if I go right ahead. Hippo phoned he'd be late, and I'm kinda hungry."

It was a wonderful dinner. Silk Conlin had seen to that. He knew that the boy had not eaten in 24 hours, had not permitted himself a square meal in months. Wherefore he passed the steaming dishes under Marty's nose, commented on their excellence, and smacked his lips over each mouthful.

Suddenly the boy half rose, clutching at the tablecloth. "What's the idea?" he croaked. "Where's Devlin?"

Conlin got up, locked the door and returned to the table. "Don't get excited," he cautioned. "Jake ain't comin'. He's in a poker game uptown. This is just between you and me. Now, listen, my boy: I've got a hunch that you're too weak for a winning effort on Lady in Lavender."

"The devil I am!"

"Well," said Silk, "I may be wrong, of course—in which case you'll win a thousand bucks and glory that don't mean nothin'. But if Devlin has compelled you to ride so low that you haven't got the strength to win, whose fault is it? My boy, your alibi is perfect! And now look here."

Conlin reached under the table, produced a bundle done up in an old newspaper, opened it and counted out 30 package of bills. In each was a thousand dollars.

"Nice little stake for a fellow that wants to get married," commented Silk, "for a jock that's about through ridin'."

The boy dropped back in his chair, eyes closed and his head moving back and forth in a pleading negative.

"Lay off!" he muttered. "Lay off me! I never pulled a horse in my life, and I ain't gonna begin now."

"Who's askin' you to pull a horse?" Conlin demanded. "You got me wrong. I'm merely bettin' that you ain't strong enough to put it over in a nose-and-nose finish. If I should happen to be right, you can quit the turf, eat all you want, and have 30,000 bucks with which to set yourself up in a nice business. Here's a chance to ride for your own dough. What could be fairer?"

He rewrapped the money, tucked the bundle under one arm and unlocked the door.

"Better sit there a few minutes and think it over, kid. No use us being seen coming out of here together. If you're beaten tomorrow, I'll find a way to get in touch with you—and this dough is yours."

He nodded genially and left the room. Into the boy's mind came the memory of what Danny Hogan had said to him years before.

"Some day you may find out what beat me, but for your own sake, I hope you don't!"

Poor little Hogan! He was ruled off now, and his wife had left him.

Marty Kreuger felt himself slipping. By a supreme effort he lurched out of the room and made his way into the clean night air of the street. He had but one idea: Kitty would understand. She would pull him through!

Kitty roomed with an old widow in a cottage near Belmont Park. It was 10 o'clock when the girl heard someone hammering desperately on the front door. She hurried to open it. Marty collapsed at her feet in the hallway.

"Babe," he panted, "they put the works on me! Thirty thousand and a chance to eat! Aw, help me, or I'm done for!"

The little waitress dropped to her knees and put both arms around her sweetheart. "What's the dope, Marty? What did they do to you, honey?"

He told the story between gasps. "Babe, I can't make weight no more. I gotta eat. Silk's right. Thirty thousand cash and perfectly safe! Nobody'll suspect—— They'll blame Hippo"—

"Hush!" pleaded the girl. "Your stomach's talkin' now, and not your head! You're going to stay here tonight, dear. Whiskey and raw egg is what you need. You wait here, and I'll run down to the corner. I know the bird who runs the drugstore."

She was gone only a few minutes, but in her absence the little money rider lost all control of himself. She found him in the kitchen with his teeth sunk in a leg of lamb that he had located in the icebox. He was gnawing at the meat, tearing at it with the savage fury of a starving dog. Kitty flung herself on the boy, using all her strength to pry the meat from his hands.

"Marty!" she pleaded. "Marty, listen! There's three Pinkertons outside—track dicks! They've probably been shadowing you all evening. They always watch you kids before a big race. Gimme that grub, honey! You dassen't be beaten now, even on the square! Don't you see that you've gotta win?"

The boy stared at her stupidly. "I can't win," he mumbled. "I'm licked!"

"You ain't licked!" she flared. "Look at me, honey! You simply gotta salute them judges tomorrow from the winner's circle. If you don't land that mare in front, Silk will figure his dough turned the trick. He'll boast of it. If you lose, how can you prove you was doin' your best? Nobody'll believe you. Aw, honey, it kills me to take the food right out of your mouth when I know you need it, but it's for your own sake. I want the whole world to remember you as a good, square kid and a winner. Trust your girl, Marty. Here, take this whisky and egg. I'll go make up a bed in the front room."

"Gimme a kiss, first," he pleaded.

"You can have 30,000," she told him, "one for every dirty dollar that Conlin put up. Here's a couple on account. Now you go to sleep. I got a tough hour ahead o' me."

From Elfin Actress to Fairy Godmother

several plays were written for Lotta, of a higher order than the vehicles in which her chief roles had been those of tomboys, hoydens, schoolgirls and queer old women.

The first of these plays written specially for Lotta was a dramatization of Dickens' "The Old Curiosity Shop," done by John Brougham, a famous old comedian and author of numerous plays and burlesques. In it Lotta doubled the roles of "Little Nell" and "The Marchioness" in a manner which, contemporaries said, would have delighted Dickens himself.

When she played in St. Louis, according to the "Recollections of an Old Actor," by the late Charles A. Krone, "the street in front of the theater was often so densely packed that it was difficult for the actors to reach the stage door."

In 1867 she appeared again in New York at Wallack's Theater, and this time captivated her audience with her play, "Little Nell and the Marchioness."

From then on, it was triumph after triumph. She scored in "The Firefly," "Topsy," "Bob," "Musette," "La Cigale," "The Little Detective," "Mlle. Nitouche" and "Zip."

It was at the time of the renaissance of the American stage, and Lotta was adjudged the finest comedienne that this period produced; while she continued to be the reigning favorite of New York until her retirement in 1891. Although emotional, her acting was tinged with the whimsical and tempered with the humorous and pathetic.

She was but 9 years old when she was heading her own company in tours of the Rocky Mountain country, as well as the California gold camps and even San Francisco.

She could sing and dance divinely, and, though she was a clever actress, it was largely due to her personal charm, her naturalness and grace, that she won the hearts of her audiences. Once, in Chicago, at McVickers Theater, an enthusiastic admirer threw her a $500 watch, done up in a pocket handkerchief. Only in London did she meet with a cold reception, and after that she never ventured abroad again.

However, success did not turn Lotta's head. She was prudent with her earnings, and developed a wonderful business sagacity. She invested her large income in realty that increased greatly in value while she held it, and she showed much foresight in these purchases.

Her first venture was a piece of property at 125th street, New York, before the elevated road was built. Friends laughed at her purchase, but she maintained that rapid transit would make the street a great thoroughfare. Her prophecy came true, for the street became the Broadway of Harlem. The property cost her $2500 and she sold it three years later for $45,000. Similar shrewdness marked most of her other real estate ventures.

Only once did her business sagacity slip a cog, and that was more through the urging of friends than her own fault. She bought some uptown New York lots for $18,000, but friends told her she had been stung, and that the rapid transit development would never approach even near her property. Miss Crabtree sued the agent on grounds of fraud and misrepresentation, the jury finding for her and the agent being forced to return her money. Today that property is assessed at $7,000,000.

In later years she added greatly to her wealth by buying race horses, with which she won large stakes at big harness meetings. She was the owner of My Star, 2:03 3-4, once the world's champion green pacer, and had a string of other notable horses, in which she took a great personal interest, although the management of the stable was left to her brother, the late Jack Crabtree. In 1907 she startled the world by paying the unheard-of price, at that time, of $25,000 for Sonoma Girl, a trotter.

The size of her estate amazed even some of her closest friends, who believed that all of her fortune had been dissipated. It was known that in the last few years she pleaded poverty, and she frequently borrowed automobiles from those friends of other days, telling them she could not afford to own a car, or even to hire one. Although she owned the Hotel Brewster, and occupied a suite of rooms there until her death, she always went outside for her meals, saying that the hotel prices were too high.

Aside from these little things, however, she had no peculiarities, and it is likely to be hard for contestants of her will to prove her even mildly insane. Her attorney, William A. Morse, said that the aged actress was alert until the last day of her life, and discussed business matters with all the acumen that she had ever shown.

In the latter years of Lotta's life she devoted much time to the hobby of landscape painting, and to perfect her talent for it she went to Europe to study, living for a time in the artists' quarter of various art centers. In 1916 she took a studio with the art colony at East Gloucester. Even in that branch of artistic endeavor she excelled, and her paintings were considered marvels of artistic simplicity. Many of her studies were of little children, and she had a fine flair for depicting simple country scenes with a realistic touch.

She became interested, too, in birth control, though she had never married, and intended to make provision in her will for the education of American mothers. Close friends, who knew of Lotta's feelings regarding the development of the "flapper" type, say that the actress wished to set aside a fund for the mothers of girls, "in order to make them good home makers." Apparently death thwarted this plan, though she had prayed for a new lease of life during her last few days in order that she might carry out this plan.

Like most actresses, Lotta had her pet superstitions and little eccentricities. Before a performance, she slept three hours of daylight. If she woke up 10 minutes before the usual time—which meant 10 minutes before the hour when she rushed off to the theater—she knew she would not play well. And she lost her temper more than once when some other player whistled within hearing of her dressing room.

"He's whistling away my luck," she would cry. "The house is going to be bad."

Deshler Welsh, one of her warmest admirers, says:

"In all my recollections of the stage, my fondest hold up Lotta. She filled my boyish thoughts with healthy delight and most extraordinary sentiment. I could not imagine, for instance, that Lotta, as she appeared in 'The Firefly,' or 'Little Nell,' could eat a buckwheat cake in a commonplace way. Angel food, or bonbons and rose leaves, would have been all right.

"She was a remarkable picture then of mischievous femininity. She simply seemed to be having a grand good time.

"A plain poster with the simple announcement 'Lotta,' was electrical in its effect upon the theater going public in any playhouse throughout the country. These people did not discuss her performances critically, from the histrionic point of view any more than a mother would expect her child [illegible] to have all the accomplishments of society.

"Lotta's naturalness got into your heart, somehow, and she seemed as gentle and sweet and innocent as the bounding pink-eyed bunny in the fragrant caress of a clover bed.

"As for the critics who said she couldn't act—that she was merely herself——

"Well, that was just what we wanted. There is an opinion lurking somewhere among intelligent men that there is an undefinable art in being natural upon the stage, particularly when the naturalness is kept up to the bubbling point, and [illegible] Lotta's. 'The Little Detective' always remained in Lotta's repertoire and was an excellent medium to display her versatility. She acted half a dozen different characters in this with fascinating and charming grace.

"The leading man of the piece in those days was always the villain of the piece. But this accomplished the purpose of the author, by allowing Lotta to introduce her specialties—her songs and dances. In these she was unexcelled. The 'skirt dance' was unknown as a distinct attraction [illegible]. Lotta could kick as high as her head and play the banjo, and she did these as she did everything else—with charming naivete. She seemed to act with the same spirit of enjoyment that her audience manifested and she would tire out her little body by answers to encore after encore."

Many are the stories told of her early stage days in the gold camps, when the sweetly natural child danced [illegible] breakdown or sung a lullaby to the husky miners, who showered her with nuggets as testimonials to their delight, sometimes as much as [illegible] at one performance.

Did she ever have a love affair, this woman who could number admirers and loving friends by legions? Friends who knew her well tell of the great love of her life—a love that ended in disappointment and bitterness.

Although Lotta's mother kept men at a distance, there was one of whom she approved, and whom Lotta would have married. He was a [illegible] with his partner, was engaged in theatrical management. The two bought a Boston theater and a hotel, Lotta providing a great part of the money and taking a mortgage. This man went to Europe, and when he returned he brought a bride. Lotta and her mother foreclosed the mortgage.

atom to its normal condition. Whenever an electron drifts from an outer orbit to one closer to the nucleus, the energy previously absorbed is released and is given out in the form of light. The color, or wave length, of this light depends on the orbit into which the electron is drawn, and the position from which it fell. The spectroscope dissolves the light into a series of distinct spectral lines, each of a definite wave length, and the number and arrangement of these lines is characteristic of the element. Some of these spectra are exceedingly complicated, those of the heavier elements containing thousands of lines and running the gamut of colors from invisible ultra-violet, the shortest wave lengths of the spectrum, up to deep red and infra-red.

These invisible wave lengths are registered by photography in the Bureau of Standards laboratories so that an exact analysis is made of every element.

Here again is a possible paradox. By spectroscopic studies of the infinitely little, the physicists provide data for the astronomers to use in studying the infinitely great. For in determining the composition of distant stars the astronomers use that same spectroscope, analyzing the light cast off by the elements that make up the planet. They know what the star spectrum means by the tables made up from the study of the tiny solar systems of the elements.

Little more than a start has been made in the exploration of these unknown worlds of the infinitely small. The whole mystery of radium and radio-active substances, for instance, depends on electron activity. The atoms of the radio-active elements are by far the most complex of all, from 80 to 90 planets revolving around the central sun. They are so complex, indeed, that they cannot hold themselves together and are continually shooting off electrons. Thus uranium and its descendants gradually degenerate into lead. At this stage, it appears, they become normal, like other atomic planetary systems, and remain the same indefinitely.

Elements up to the lead stage in the periodic table have remained the same for millions of years and promise not to change for more millions of years to come, unless perchance somebody discovers how to split up their central masses artificially.

It is probable that the forces which bind together the components of the nucleus are exceedingly powerful and that consequently a large amount of energy will be required to disrupt the structure. The alpha particle, used by Prof. Rutherford, is by far the most concentrated source of energy known to man, and is the most likely agent to succeed on the strongly bound nucleus.

"If we had charged atoms available of 10 times the energy of the alpha particle of radium," Prof. Rutherford said in a recent lecture, "we could probably penetrate the nuclear structure of all atoms and occasionally effect their disintegration."

But where to find such energy?

Until it is found, physicists here say, there is little likelihood that anybody will blow the world up—or solve the secret of the utilization of atomic energy.

Life

MAN comes into this world without his consent and leaves it against his will. During his stay on earth his time is spent in one continuous round of contraries and misunderstandings.

In his infancy he is an angel; in his boyhood he is a devil; in his manhood he is everything from a lizard up; in his duties he is a damn fool; if he raises a family he is a chump; if he raises a check he is a thief and the law raises hell with him.

If he's a poor man he's a poor manager and has no sense; if he is rich he is dishonest but considered smart; if he is in politics he is a grafter and a crook; if he is out of politics you can't place him, he is an undesirable citizen.

If he goes to church he is a hypocrite; if he stays away from church he is a sinner. If he donates to foreign missions he does it for show; if he doesn't he is a tightwad.

When he first comes into the world everybody wants to kiss him—before he goes out everybody wants to kick him.

If he dies young there was a great future in front of him; if he lives to old age he is in the way—only living to save funeral expenses.

Life is a funny proposition, after all. —From the Los Angeles Times.

CHLORINE TREATMENT FOR COLDS INCREASES.

CHLORINE, the first poison gas used by the Germans in the war, has been discovered to be an admirable treatment for the relief and cure of a cold in the head. Only a very tiny quantity of the gas is discharged into the air of the treatment room, but that is enough to kill a large proportion of the cold germs in the nose and throat of the patient.

This treatment was devised originally by the chemical and medical officers of the United States Army, but following the successful use of chlorine on President Coolidge, clinics for its use have been established in a number of cities.

Chlorine gas is cheap and can be transported anywhere in steel cylinders with ease and safety. It seems probable that its use will soon become a recognized procedure in the treatment of colds. It is apparently the best treatment yet devised.

Wrangel's defeat the youth betook himself to Constantinople. There he posed as a famous poet. If a young man could be the son of a famous poet, why not be himself a famous poet? No sooner imagined than put into execution! Apparently he fancied a future career as official poet-laureate of Turkey, for he won himself into the best graces of the Turkish officials by composing a poem in honor of their regime. Definite information as to the upshot of that second literary imposture is not at hand, but it may be assumed that even the terrible Turks discovered at last that the divine afflatus resided not in the soul of the youth and that he was shown up as a mere proser—plus poser.

By hook or by crook—presumably by crook, chiefly—Otto managed to keep himself in funds for the successful practice of his profession. However, there were times when he found himself stone broke. At such times his nerve, to be described as nothing less than monumental, came usually to his rescue. But some months ago Stephane stepped on the brake instead of the gas and came to a sudden stop midway in his speeding. He was riding in a first-class compartment in a railway train, bound for Rennes. Otto had neglected to buy himself a ticket. When the collector came around he fished through all his pockets.

"Mon Bleu!" cried Stephane, or words similar. "Now what a predicament! Why, I have lost my purse and am without a sou."

In the compartment was a gentleman of benevolent aspect. Young Otto turned to him.

"Monsieur," he began, "as you see, I have lost my funds; and would you oblige me with the loan of enough for passage to Rennes? I am, sir, none other than"——

It so happened that the gentleman thus put to "the touch" was none other than a Police Inspector. That official did not wait for Stephane to identify himself as none other than the Prince of Wales, the poet-laureate of Turkey, the Ahkoond of Swat, or some other celebrity. The inspector put the fundless young man under arrest for attempting to defraud the railway company.

Otto was taken along to Rennes, all right, but once there he was clapped into jail. Ordinarily, for such an offense, there would have followed a hearing in court and a sentence to hard but honest toil for a period comparatively brief. But in the case of M. Stephane Otto no such humiliating denouement was on the program. Otto had the capacity for quick thinking, and he quickly thought up a scheme for getting himself out of jail. He got chummy with a fellow prisoner who was to be liberated shortly. When this man was released he betook himself to a telephone station and, acting upon instructions from Stephane, thus telephoned to the Central Police Commissariat:

"I am speaking for the Procureur of the Republic, and this is important, urgent, imperative. The Procureur orders that the Belgian citizen, Stephane Otto, arrested in error, be set at liberty forthwith. Be quick about it, too, and thus avoid trouble for us."

The ruse worked. Otto found himself outside the barred gates and breathed once more the air of freedom. It was necessary that he become somebody other than Stephane Otto the Belgian citizen, so he procured the uniform of a navy officer and donned it. He made an acceptable navy officer, invented for himself a suitable name and rank, and went gallantly about the exercising of his art.

A number of priests in the neighborhoods of Dinard and Saint Malo entertained for some time, and with great hospitality, a young and talented officer in the navy, who was a nephew of Cardinal Carrost—so, at any rate, he claimed to be. The priests revered the Cardinal, and quite naturally they felt highly honored in being hosts to the prelate's kinsman. Otto milked the credulous churchmen of money enough to pay many railway passages and have some left for future reference.

Last April the able impostor was arrested in Berlin as a "habitual criminal." That, however, was nothing extraordinary in his career, for in the past half a dozen years he had been apprehended in several European capitals on various charges. His ability to squirm out has been phenomenal.

It appears that in Berlin the young man represented himself as a member of the Interallied Commission of Control in Germany, and that he tried to obtain a high-priced automobile on that representation. In some way he squirmed out, but now in Paris he has not been able to escape imprisonment on conviction of beating his bill at the hotel. The sentence carries deportation at the end of the six months. There is also a year's sentence to prison in Belgium still unserved, and it is held rather likely that the authorities of the realm of King Albert will take possession of the person of the "Comte d'Artagnan de Sabrol," now that said person is known to be none other than M. Stephane Otto, formerly of Brussels.

But Otto is young, and everybody should be on the lookout, a year or two hence, for a handsome youth who may represent himself as Capt. John Kipling, reported missing in the World War, or the Duke of York taking a holiday away from the Duchess, or possibly the missing poet-laureate of Nebraska. One never can tell who's who in these days.

The Stenographer Dazzles Deauville

flashed through my brain. 'The most beautiful woman in Deauville, and the one I am most anxious to meet, actually taking my picture—or am I dreaming?'

"Another glance at the lovely creature who was manipulating the camera assured me that I was wide awake and very much alive. Yes, it was she of the wistful eyes and marvelous, transparent skin—the black pearls made her unmistakable. The gods and goddesses were ever kind.

"A moment later the camera clicked. As I stood up to bow my thanks for being so highly honored, the beautiful lady walked toward our table with her dog.

"'You're Mr. ——, aren't you?' she asked, in perfect English. And before I could stammer a reply she went on: 'Don't you remember me? I'm Mr. ——'s stenographer. You used to come to our office occasionally last winter.'

"'Why, of course I do,' I lied. And turning to my companions I said: 'This is Miss—Miss'——

"'Johnson,' she helped me out.

"'Yes, of course; my friend, Miss Johnson,' I went on, as she shook hands with them and accepted the proffered chair.

"'I thought I recognized you last night,' our fair companion began, 'but I was afraid to speak to you. But today I knew it was you.'

"'What brought you to Deauville?' I asked, as soon as the usual formalities about our health, losses at the Casino and mutual acquaintances were over.

"'Mr. —— thought I needed a sea trip for my health, so for my vacation he bought me a round trip on one of those cabin boats, $240 for the round trip, with food thrown out. Say, it was like an old ladies' home on that boat, and I've got to go back on her next Wednesday. Gee, day after tomorrow! That's why I'm treating myself to a bit of high life—but you're the only person I've met since I've been here at Deauville. I don't speak French out loud and these foreigners don't seem to understand my English. I was so lonesome in Paris, I bought this dress and buzzed up here yesterday morning.

"'But your wonderful pearls,' I protested.

"'Got 'em at the Bon Marche—they look beaucoup francs, don't they?' she laughed. 'About $2.98 in real money. Say, the customs authorities will make me pay a $100,000 duty to bring them in.'

"'And the Russian wolfhound, where did you annex him?" interrupted one of my companions.

"'I got him here in Deauville yesterday for 200 francs,' Miss Johnson answered. 'I was so lonesome that I thought I would go mad. So when this kiyoodle wagged his tail at me I bought him. The man who owned him wanted 800 francs, but I held out for 200. For $10 he's not bad—not good. I'm going to take him home to my boss—a souvenir of my trip abroad. He's always wanted a Russian wolfhound. I'll have to fake up a pedigree—he's really just a good-looking mutt.'

"'Well, it's one on me,' I admitted. 'I thought you were a Russian Countess, and I had a vague idea that I had met you in Monte Carlo or Cairo.'

"'Quit your kidding,' Miss Johnson admonished, slapping me on the arm. 'I met you at Coney Island—three waves from the shore. But I'm sure glad to see you and your friends. Say, it's a great thing over here to find someone from your own town who can talk your own lingo. These French people sure get my goat. Gee, give me Long Beach, instead of this place, any time.'" place on which the young couple might spend their honeymoon trip.

The Houseboat Which Became a Bungalow

So satisfactory, indeed, did this arrangement turn out, that the bride decided she would like to spend the entire winter on the "Driftwood." Accordingly the boat was pulled up on the lawn of the family residence, and after all necessary light and other service connections had been made, it proved, even in the severest weather, just as comfortable and convenient as any of the neighboring residences.

Finally there came a time when it was decided that the "Driftwood's" days as a water craft were ended and that it should be turned into a regular and permanent bungalow of concrete. This bungalow still retains all the outlines of the original craft, even to the paddle-wheel boxes at the rear and the curves of the prow and stern, the only substantial changes being the transformation of the forward deck into a sun parlor and the roof garden into a second story, and the addition of an entrance porch. The result is a structure which is at once convenient and artistic, and one whose counterpart probably does not exist.

The Money Rider

"What you gonna do?"

The little waitress smiled bravely. "Me? I'll tell the cockeyed world I'm gonna pray!"

• • • • •

It was post time in the Belmont. Here was color, confusion, gayety. A bugle sounded, and 80,000 people rose en masse to cheer that bravest of all spectacles—a string of thoroughbreds parading toward the post, with fame and fortune hanging in the balance.

Lady in Lavender was no longer a favorite in the betting. A mysterious plunge had developed at the last moment on Torpedo, the wonder colt of the Whitehall stables. Torpedo looked every inch a champion, tiptoeing into the sunshine under the guidance of Johnny Doyle, winner of the Derby.

The field straightened out. Then, from the man at the barrier: "You're off! Ride 'em, you little devils."

Marty got the mare off winging, but he was on the outside, and there was too much early speed in the race for him to cut across and take the rail. He worked in gradually, and as they passed the grandstand for the first time he was fourth. Alongside of him raced Johnny Doyle on Torpedo. The colt was under stout restraint. The two boys apprised each other with a swift glance, and each knew where the contest lay. The crowd knew, too, but only after the first half-mile had been run, for then the leaders weakened. Torpedo shot to the front, and Lady in Lavender went right out with him, measuring stride for stride. From then on, it was a two-horse race, such a race as Belmont Park had never seen. The field fell back, hopelessly out of it. The flying leaders raced on, apparently lashed together. Up in the judges' stand gray-haired officials leveled their glasses on the blur of color. The presiding Judge cried:

"My word, that's beautiful! All by themselves, and the two best riders in America! Wait until you see this stretch duel. I think Hippo's boy will hang it on the other."

"Not if what I heard this morning's true," said his associate. "Marty hasn't eaten in three days. Blast that fellow Devlin! I'll have his license revoked, if it's the last act of my life! Kid will be lucky to stick in the saddle."

Up in the grand stand Billy Ten Tupper, watching the race from a private box, became aware of a girl who stood on the crowded stairs close by, screaming above the roar of the crowd. "Come on, you Lady in Lavender! Bring her in, Marty! Show 'em up, dear! Marty! Marty!"

"I say," called Ten Tupper. "Come up here with me!"

He leaned over the railing, stretching forth two gloved hands. The girl caught them, and was drawn up to safety and a clear view of the stretch. Millionaire and waitress rooted together, one for the money and sport, the other for honor and love. Their voices were drowned in the rising boom of the multitude: "Torpedo, all the way! Torpedo's in front!" "There goes the Lady now! 'Atta boy, Marty! Come on, you money kid!"

They were swinging into the stretch, and it is here that many a race is lost or won. Johnny Doyle held Torpedo close to the rail and made the turn without losing an inch of ground. Marty tried his best to keep Lady in Lavender from running wide, but his strength was sapped. The mare bore out, giving her rival a length advantage. She closed quickly, nosing up to the saddle-girths of the flying leader, but there she hung, unable to do more. Nothing but horsemanship could save her now.

Down went the little money rider's head, and he doubled low in the saddle, prepared to give his owner all that was in him, and maybe a little bit more!

The crowd had gone crazy. Billy Ten Tupper, crushing his silk hat, screaming at the side of a little waitress, drank deep from the well of understanding. He knew now the value of a money rider. His happiness, his future, his fortune—everything—was in the keeping of a boy who was coming down the stretch astride a bay mare, booting her on while his whip cut steady circles in the sunlight.

"Marty! Marty! Marty!"

The boy was in a trance, sustained only by the subconscious suggestion that he must win! By heartbreaking inches, he regained the lost ground in that terrific drive up the stretch. A hundred yards from the wire, Torpedo still led by a nose. Fifty yards, and there was no change. Twenty yards—out of some mysterious source the boy drew upon a last reserve, to accomplish the unbelievable.

"Gotta win!" he gasped, and, gathering the tired mare under him for the last jump, he literally threw her into the lead!

Then it was over! A strange numbness enveloped him, utter exhaustion. Lady in Lavender, slowed down of her own accord, turned and came cantering back to the winner's circle. She liked flowers and cameras and music. The money rider stared up at the winning post and saw his own number displayed on top. He tried to raise his whip to the judges—and couldn't make it. There was a dull roaring in his ears. Someone lifted up a huge floral horseshoe and put it around the winner's neck. He heard Jake's gruff command: "Look pleasant, kid. Take your cap off!"

"Yes, sir," he answered—and came toppling out of the saddle, pitching headlong into the arms of Billy Ten Tupper. Even then the young millionaire did not divine the truth, but his education was completed a few moments later when they were weighing out the half-unconscious boy. Kitty Keller, guarding as best she could a bowl of hot soup, edged her way through the track police.

"Outta my way!" she shrilled. "Lemme do my stuff! Comin' up, Marty! Here it is, honey! Right off the old arm!"

She held the bowl to his lips. He drank greedily, gulping down the nourishment in a way that left nothing to the imagination. Ten Tupper turned pale. His eyes expanded.

"Good Lord!" he protested. "Is the boy hungry?"

The empty bowl fell from Kitty Keller's hands. She spun around. "Hungry?" she screamed. "Hungry? Oh, my soul, what a pip! What the devil do you know about hunger? What does Hippo know? The blood-suckin' murderer—look at him! Lemme alone, Marty—this is my race! I'm gonna tell these guys somethin' they'll never forget!"

And tell them she did—screeching out the truth so that all might hear, and shaking her fists in the face of Jake Devlin. The fat man tried vainly to stem the torrent of denunciation. Finally, purple with wrath, he struck at her; but the blow never landed. Ten Tupper shot out a gloved fist, and hit Devlin flush on the fat of his triple chin.

"That's your discharge paper," said Billy Ten Tupper. "And don't get up, or I shall have to knock you down again."

He turned to Kitty Keller. "I wonder," said he, "if you and Marty would honor me at a quiet dinner tonight? You see, I need a new trainer now, and something tells me we're all going to be very good friends."

• • • • •

It was a marvelous repast, and this time Marty Kreuger had no reason to hold back, for his host, with both hands on the boy's shoulders as he sat him down, whispered: 'Go to it, son! If it will give you any better appetite, you'll find under your plate a trainer's contract, along with a little wedding present." The "present" proved to be a check for $50,000, the entire purse of the Belmont Stakes!

The young millionaire made a charming host, laughing boyishly as he served his delighted guests.

Marty Kreuger looked up from his third helping of mashed potatoes. "Boss," he gurgled, "w-what's the matter? You ain't eatin' a thing!"

"Gee!" protested Kitty; "that's right. You ain't even started. I've been so deep in the nosebag I never noticed it. Play the turkey, mister; it's a winning bet!"

But young Ten Tupper shook his head disconsolately. From the pocket of a silk waistcoat he produced a small pillbox, extracted two black pellets, gulped them down with a mouthful of water, and then smiled ruefully at his guests.

"That's my dinner!" he moaned. "I've got dyspepsia! Had it for a month! Too many banquets! But go ahead, children—go ahead and eat! I'd give a million dollars, if I could join you!"

Long Lost City Dug Out of African Sands

end. The soldiers who landed at Leptis Magna, more than 21 centuries ago, and who streamed through the streets of that excited city, went forth to disaster. Because of their defeat, Carthage lost all her Spanish possessions and her protectorate over the Numidian sheiks. Carthage also was forced to surrender her whole navy, excepting 10 triremes, and all her elephants, and to swear that she never would make war either in Africa or abroad except with the consent of her vanquisher.

It was the wealth of Leptis Magna which led to the third Punic war. The riches, both of the city and of its whole surrounding district, were coveted by Masinissa, King of Numidia, who had fought as an ally of the Carthaginians in Spain, but afterwards became an ally of Rome and served under Scipio Africanus Major at Zama.

There is little doubt but that the Roman Senate encouraged and protected Masinissa in his aggressions upon the Carthaginians, and in his designs upon the riches of Leptis Magna. Finally, in resisting the encroachments of Masinissa, the Carthaginians attacked him. At once the Romans went to the assistance of their ally, and to the meting out of discipline for the disobedient Carthaginians.

The third Punic War began in 149 B. C. Scipio Africanus Minor, a grandson by adoption of Scipio Africanus Major, besieged Carthage by land and sea. For three years the place was invested by Roman troops and their allies, then they stormed, took and destroyed the city (146 B. C.). That was the end of the Carthaginian Empire. Rome was mistress of the world, but some historians declare that she never fully recovered from the ordeal of the three Punic Wars.

During Rome's war with Jugurtha, King of Numidia and grandson of Masinissa, in 109 and 108 B. C., the Lepitini appealed to the Roman Consul and General, Metellus, for a Roman garrison and prefect. The Ambassadors from Leptis Magna told Metellus that a revolution was being planned in their region and that unless the Consul complied with their request they, who considered themselves Roman allies, would be exposed to great danger. Metellus granted their request.

A few years after the famous coalition of Crassus, Pompey and Caesar, known as the first triumvirate (60 B. C.), Leptis Magna saw the great Julius himself. There had been a rupture between Pompey and Caesar, the latter had defied the Senate, had crossed the Rubicon and begun the civil war in the year 49 B. C., and had defeated Pompey at Pharsalia in the year 48 B. C.

But adherents of the Senate and the conservative party kept up the struggle against Caesar's dictatorship and the civil war was carried to Africa where, by the way, the Lepitini were the first who offered their free submission to Caesar against the Pompeians.

During this African campaign, while Caesar was encamped at Uzita, his fleet before Leptis Magna was surprised early one morning by the enemy's vessels. All of his transports that were out at sea were burnt, and two five-benched galleys were captured. When Caesar heard of this occurrence, he immediately took horse and went full speed to Leptis Magna, six miles distant. Embarking, he and the rest of his vessels pursued by the enemy.

The African campaign ended with Caesar's total defeat of the Pompeians under Cato, Scipio and Juba, at Thapsus, a town on the coast northwest of Leptis Magna.

Leptis Magna appears next in the important annals of history as the birthplace of L. Septimius Severus, who reigned from 193 to 211 A. D., and who was the third of the so-called "Praetorian Emperors." Born in 146 A. D. at the city now being excavated, Septimius Severus had been questor and pretor under the Emperor Marcus Aurelius.

The Emperor Pertinax, former commander of the Praetorian Guard, who was saluted with the new title on the morning after the murder of Commodus, had attempted to restore discipline among the troops quartered in Rome. The soldiers mutinied and Pertinax was slain after a reign of 87 days.

Thereupon the Praetorian Guard had the effrontery to put up the empire at auction. The highest bidder was the consular Didius Severus Julianus, who offered 6200 drachmas per soldier, and who now became Emperor by the will of the Praetorians.

But not for long. Pertinax, the son of a wood merchant, had done good military service and was highly respected in the provinces. When the armies in the provinces heard of the scandalous proceedings at the capital their indignation knew no bounds. Three great army corps at once proclaimed their respective Generals as Emperor.

Septimius Severus commanded the most powerful of the armies, and he was closest to Italy.

Marching without delay upon Rome, Septimius Severus received tidings that the Praetorian troops were ready to defend their Emperor. The Praetorians sallied forth, with a large band of camp followers, but they had become so effeminate as to be utterly unfit for real warfare. The hardy Illyrian legions of Septimius Severus met with practically no serious resistance. Rome was captured, and Didius Severus Julianus slain after two months of power.

Septimius Severus showed great energy as a ruler, and ability as a soldier. He organized his empire with skill. The old Praetorian Guard was disbanded and a new corps formed, in which the flower of the Illyrian legions was incorporated. Looking upon himself as a cosmopolitan Roman and also as one of Hannibal's countrymen, Severus raised monuments to that General, most dangerous foe of the Roman republic.

It is related that the Emperor's sister spoke nothing but Punic in the family and never succeeded in mastering Latin, so that Severus sent her back home to Africa.

The reign of Septimius Severus is memorable as marking the first real change in the attitude of the Roman Emperors toward Christianity. The new religion was beginning to make itself felt in the State; and Severus, who was a Carthaginian, while his wife was a Syrian, may have felt a special interest in a faith that like themselves was of Semitic origin. At all events, Christianity was taken under the imperial protection and began to make rapid headway.

Septimius Severus died at York during the military operations in Britain in the year 211 A. D.

Marvelous treasures of art and of historic interest continue to be found by the workers at Leptis Magna, under the direction of Prof. Bartocoini, the young archeologist. A recent cablegram from Tripoli tells of an important discovery. Beneath two splendid columns of cipolin marble, the stone in which green alternates with white, was found an exquisite statue of Venus, admirably preserved. It is of the type of the Venus dei Medici. Near by was the almost perfect figure of a Roman youth. Both statues evidently were part of the decorations of magnificent baths. These baths, in large measure, survive, and are being reconstructed.

Cool and smooth with graceful finger tips
these hands can be yours

YOUR hands are always conspicuous! How embarrassing they are if you neglect them—rough and ugly with dingy nails and dry cuticle. But when they are cool and smooth from a perfect manicure they are so pretty you actually love them.

Thousands of women keep them lovely with this manicure perfected by the greatest authorities on the care of the nails—the makers of Cutex.

FIRST shape the nail tips with a file, then smooth them with a Cutex emery board. Moisten the Cutex orange stick in the Cutex bottle, twist a bit of cotton around the end and wet it again. Now gently shape the base of each nail. Every little shred of hard skin is loosened and freed from the nail. Rinse the fingers and wipe each nail. All the dead skin, the ugly shreds wipe away. What lovely fresh cuticle is left—how soft and evenly it outlines the nail base.

For the lustre Cutex has four polishes to choose from: Cutex Liquid Polish for a very high brilliance, a wonderful Powder Polish for a shell-pink lustre, Cake and Paste Polishes for those who prefer these forms.

What a feeling of added poise and security this exquisite Cutex manicure gives. Now you are proud to show your hands.

Complete Cutex manicure sets are 60c, $1.00, $1.50 and $3.00 at drug and department stores or items separately are 35c.

How to take your daily life "on high"

Do you know the power of this amazing food?—the secret of its action?

Clearer skin · Easier digestion · Regular elimination

THESE remarkable reports are typical of thousands of similar tributes to Fleischmann's Yeast.

There is nothing mysterious about its action. It is not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense. But when the body is choked with the poisons of constipation—or when its vitality is low so that skin, stomach and general health are affected—this simple, natural food achieves literally amazing results.

Concentrated in every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast are millions of tiny yeast-plants, alive and active. At once they go to work—invigorating the whole system, clearing the skin, aiding digestion, strengthening the intestinal muscles and making them healthy and active.

Dissolve one cake in a glass of water (just hot enough to drink)—before breakfast and at bedtime. Fleischmann's Yeast, when taken this way, is especially effective in overcoming or preventing constipation. Or eat 2 or 3 cakes a day—spread on bread or crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or eat it plain.

Write us for further information, or let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Address: Health Research Dept. 535, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.

"A martyr to indigestion and constipation I was as thin as a rake with a complexion like mud. I had tried many different kinds of tonics and laxatives without permanent relief. I was advised to try Fleischmann's Yeast. In about four months my constipation and indigestion had disappeared. I am now in perfect health and look it. My complexion is clear and the envy of all who know me. I have more vigor and look many years younger than I did."

(A letter from Mrs. P. F. Robin, Mobile, Ala.)

"I was only 24 years old, my health, my good looks, and the old-time dynamic energy, which I had believed so permanently mine, were gone. A man of wisdom is my physician, but I thought him indeed crazy when he prescribed three yeast cakes a day. But at the end of a month I was surprised to find that the world looked much better to my tired eyes. For two months more I took the Yeast and now I am well and happy, the old-time buoyancy and energy are mine again."

(A letter from Miss Elva Tanner, Clover, Utah)

"Youthful freshness made way for lackadaisical indifference—headaches and constipation were my constant companions. Splotches appeared upon my face, and with seven large carbuncles, in a short time my neck and back resembled a shell-torn battlefront. When Fleischmann's Yeast was proposed I readily accepted it as a possible means of escape. The effect was miraculous. The invaders withdrew, and in ten days the last of the carbuncles was healing, and very soon my health was restored."

(Miss Lydia M. de Fuentes, Waukegan, Ill.)

"When I was constipated, I was always gloomy, melancholy, and unhappy. I got so I did not believe in any remedy at all. But I found on taking Fleischmann's Yeast that I did not have to have faith in it. It is one thing that will do its work whether one has faith in it or not.

"At the end of about three months I was as well as any man could possibly be. My constipation was gone, all my old headaches, listlessness and gloom left me. It does seem strange that these little yeast cakes can do this thing, but as sure as the sun shines, they can."

(A letter from Mr. T. C. Hinkle, of Baldwin, Kansas)

EAT FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST FOR HEALTH

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST FOR HEALTH comes only in the tinfoil package—it cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it. Start eating it today! You can order several cakes at a time, for Yeast will keep fresh in a cool, dry place for two or three days.

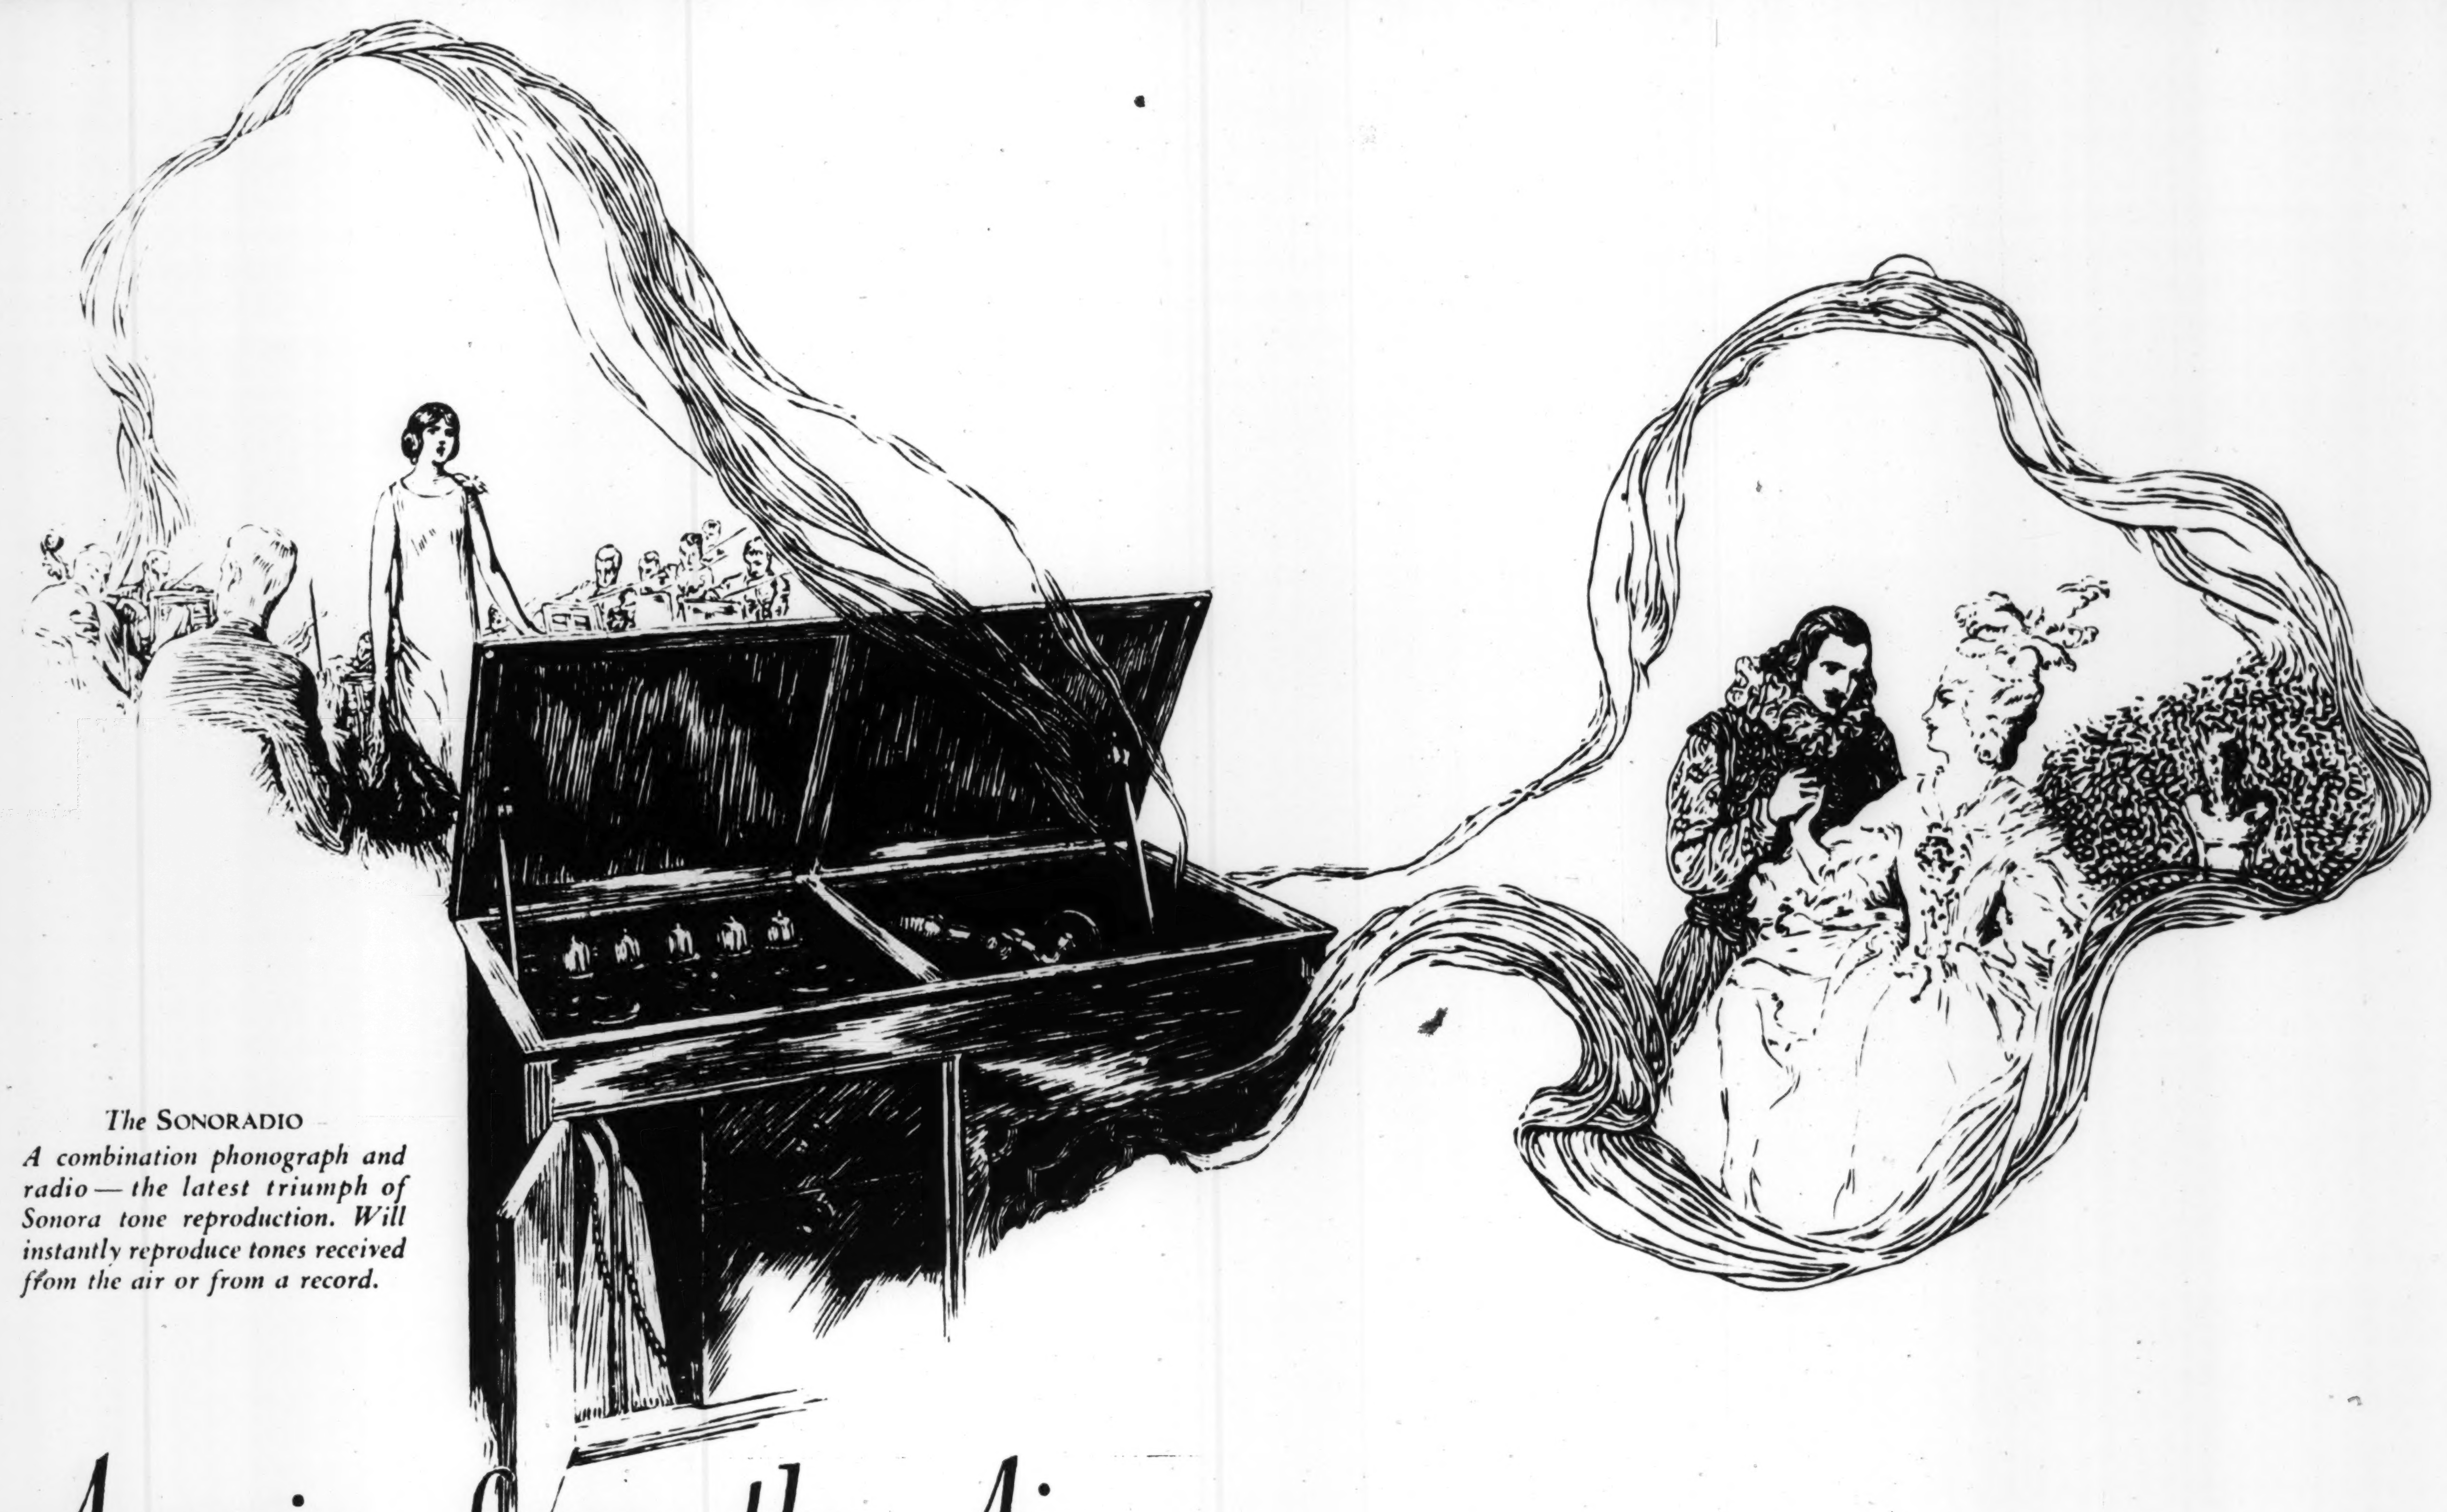
"One day the chef at the country club suggested that I try Fleischmann's Yeast. I was haggard, anaemic, and had lost all interest in life. I smiled, reminding him of my previous experiences with 'tonics.' He began serving me with what he called a special cheese sandwich daily. A month elapsed, and everyone marvelled at my complete transformation. One day I saw the chef spreading Fleischmann's Yeast on sandwiches and realized that I had been the butt of what he thought was a good joke."

(Mr. Herbert J. Hoffman, Philadelphia, Pa.)



The SONORADIO
A combination phonograph and radio — the latest triumph of Sonora tone reproduction. Will instantly reproduce tones received from the air or from a record.

A voice from the Air
A song from the Record - - reproduced with the same clear tone in all its original beauty

SOUND WAVES set up vibrations in solid wood or metal horns that produce discordant overtones. These are eliminated in the Sonora by making the horn of many thicknesses of wafer-thin veneer — laid in alternating grain to neutralize vibration.

THE air is full of music — countless waves darting over the world with the speed of light, bearing joy to those who can catch and guide them into their homes.

Science has done this — as it previously worked another miracle: compressing into "records" the music of the masters of song and string.

Yet the full glory of it all can easily be missed.

Sound and tone are delicate. To be perfectly reproduced, whether from record or radio wave, they must be freed from mechanical imperfections — made to flow forth again in all their original loveliness.

For eleven years Sonora has had one single aim — perfect tone reproduction. Into the heart of every Sonora instrument — phonograph, radio-phonograph, or radio speaker — is built the famous Sonora tone chamber.

This tone chamber is an exclusive patent — to build it requires over one hundred separate and distinct manufacturing operations.

The Sonora tone chamber is all wood — but not solid wood, for, like solid metal, thick or thin, solid wood will add vibrations of its own.

Instead, ply upon ply of thin, seasoned wood is moulded around a form as perfect as the science of acoustics can make it. Each wafer-thin layer is set at cross-grain to the next. Between each pair of plies are spread sheer films of gum which function like the quicksilver coating on a mirror, neutralizing vibration and reflecting every faintest sound — not a single tone is added — none taken away. Whether it be a symphony interpreted with the delicate beauty of stringed instruments — a marvelous voice or the exhilarating rhythm of a foxtrot — Sonora reproduces it in all its original color.

ONLY in Sonora instruments will you find this mellow beauty of tone. That is why Sonora is a favorite today among music lovers all over the country.

Sonora exclusively specializes in the making of sound reproducing instruments. There is a Sonora for every home — and to fit every purse: from the Radio Speaker for $30 or the compact portable at $50 to the most beautiful period models — gems of the cabinet maker's art. In every Sonora you find two things — matchless tone reproduction built into an exquisite piece of furniture.

Go to your music dealer and ask him to play the Sonora for you. You will find after hearing it that tone reproduction has taken on a new meaning for you. Sonora Phonograph Co., Inc., 279 Broadway, New York.

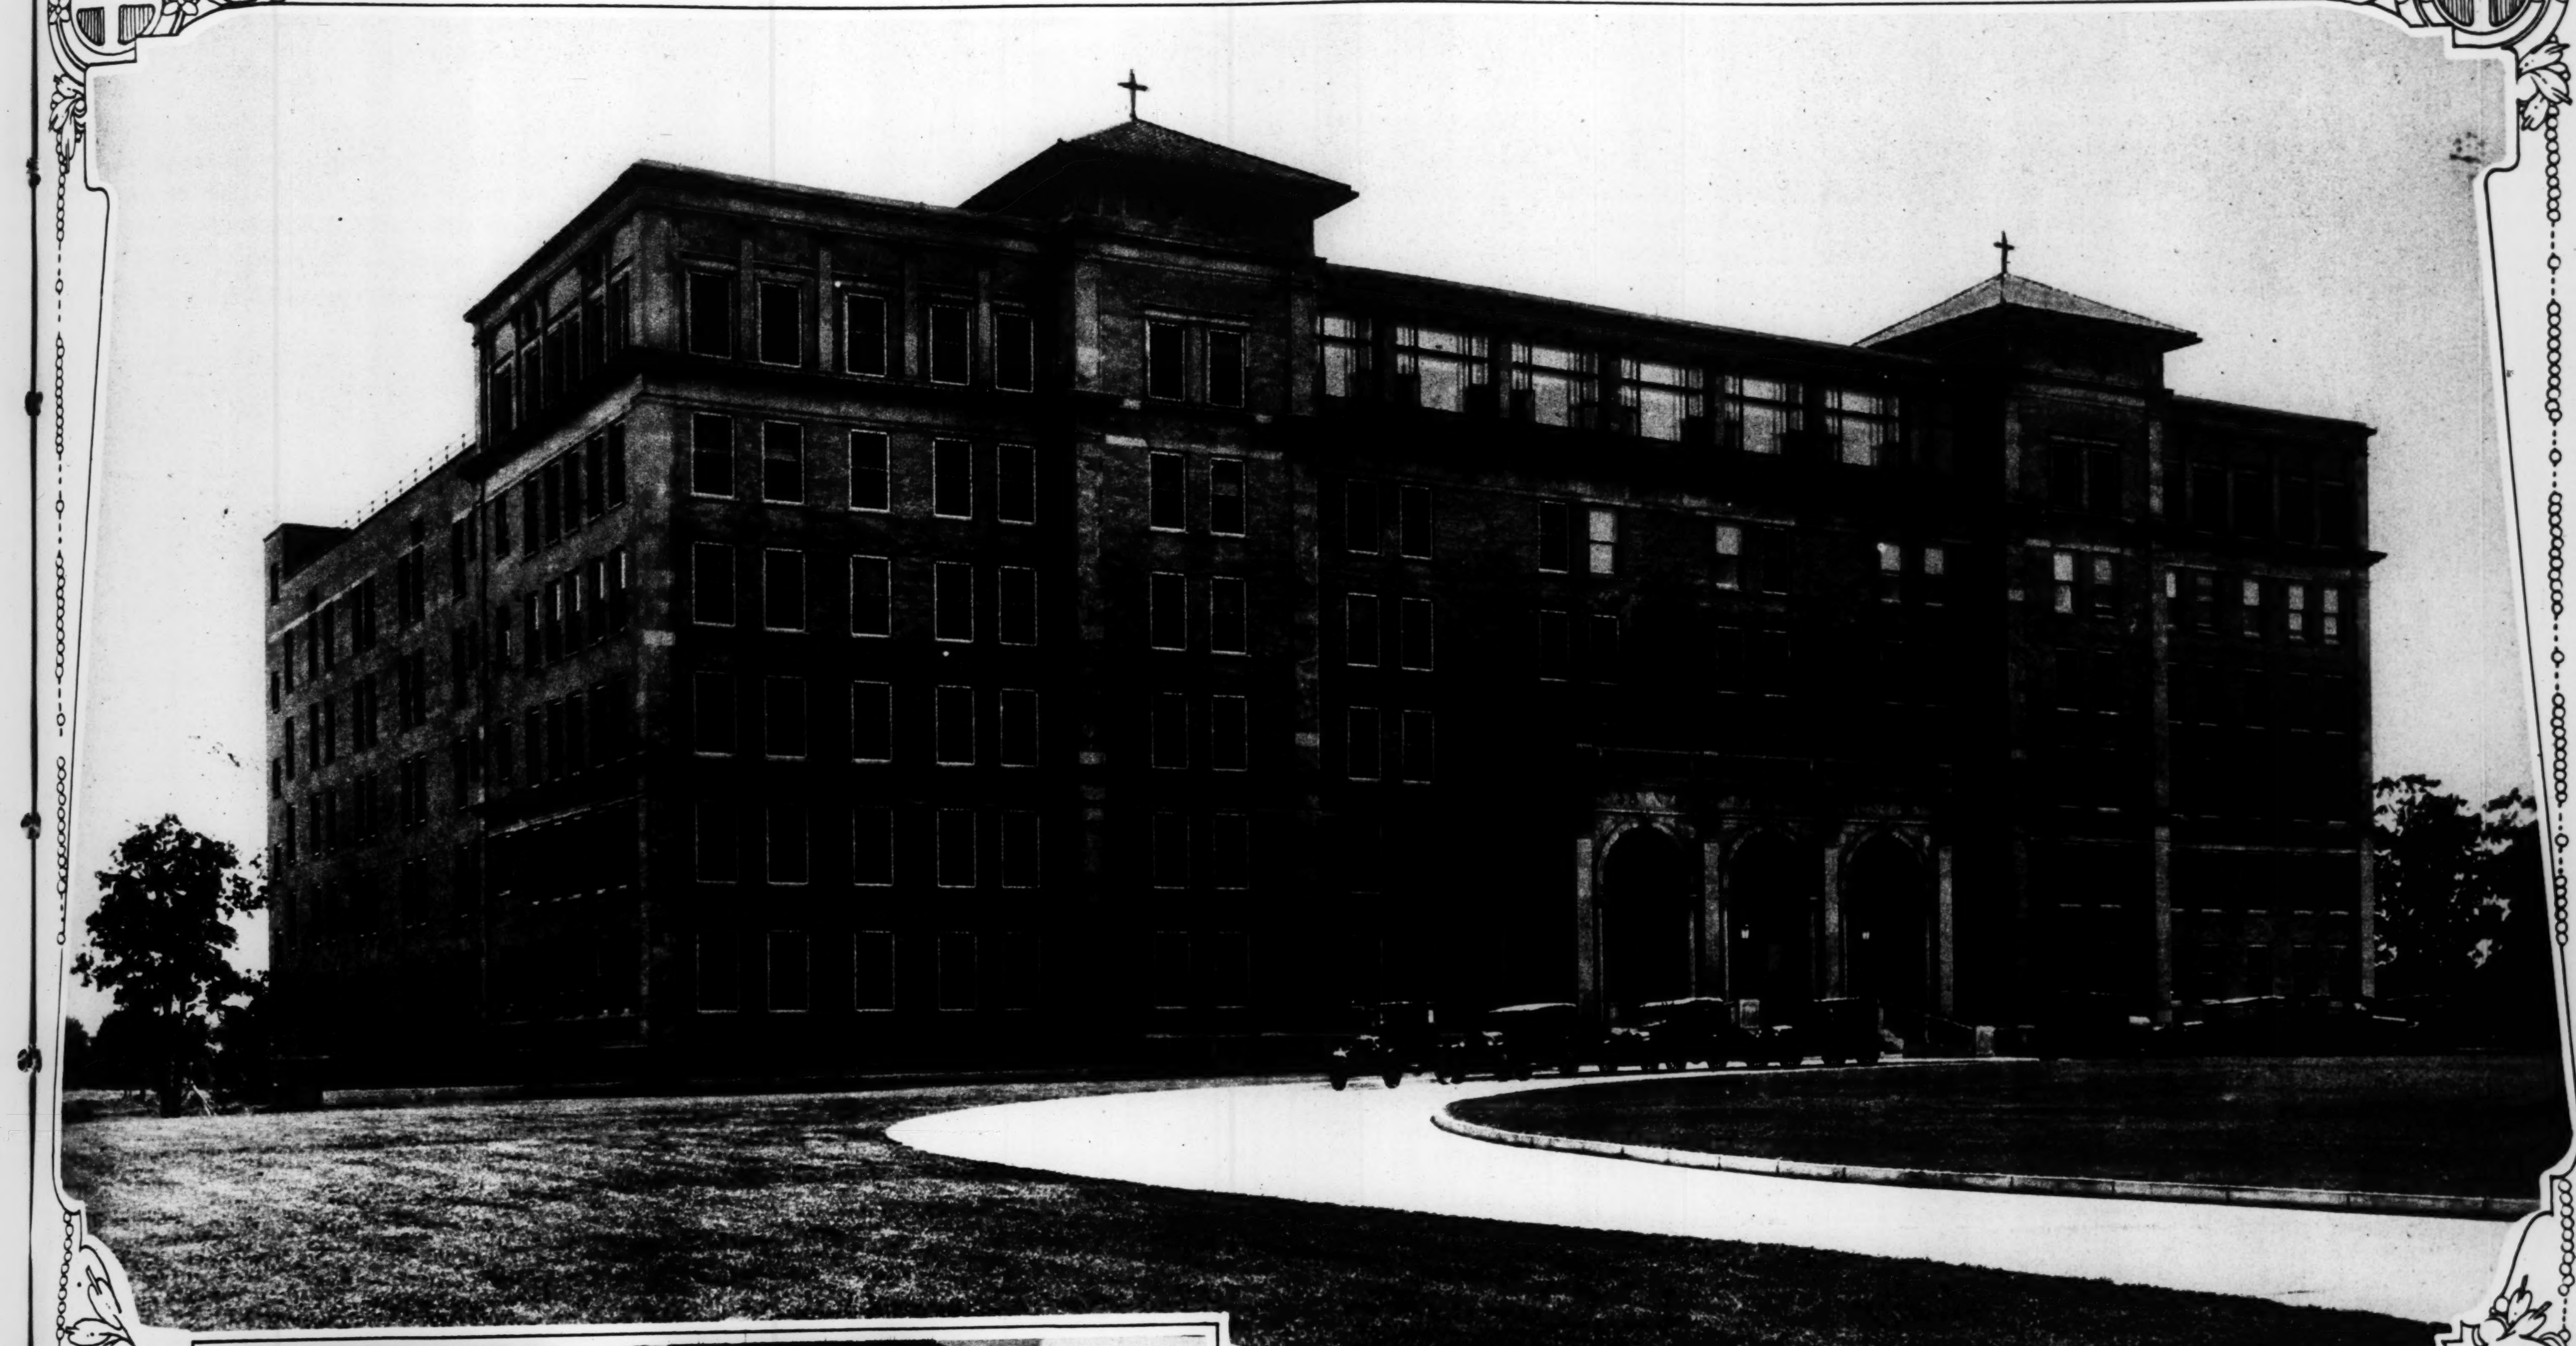
New Home of St. Mary's Hospital, Institution of Mercy and Healing



General view of the splendid new building of St. Mary's Hospital, situated on a tract of 17½ acres at Clayton road and Bellevue avenue, Richmond Heights. Built in the Italian Renaissance style of gray vitrified brick, trimmed with Bedford stone, it cost $1,500,000 and is absolutely fireproof. Albert B. Groves is the architect.

The beautiful main entrance has taken its place among the choicer bits of St. Louis architecture. Here the graceful arches are seen from inside the portico. This picture illustrates the sense of roominess and fresh air which characterizes the new St. Mary's Hospital.

Statuary group of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane, which adorns one end of the hospital's main corridor. It is known as "The Agony in the Garden." As one enters main rotunda from the portico, the hospital chapel is to the right.

The handsome front facade of St. Mary's Hospital gives no indication of the numerous service units which are necessary in such an extensive and fully equipped institution. These include a first-class laundry, a refrigeration plant, power house, rooms for 15 men needed for outside work, machine shop, carpenter shop, engine room, ice tank and storage refrigerator. The portion of the hospital plant containing these units is connected with the main group by a reinforced concrete tunnel, 10 feet wide and 8 feet high. All of the laundry and other material for the main building passes through this tunnel. The clothes chute for soiled linen is lined with glass. The hospital has a steam heating plant and a chimney 200 feet high. On the ground floor of the main structure, beneath the first floor, is the main kitchen, with walls of white enameled brick and ceiling of white enameled tile. Here, as everywhere throughout St. Mary's Hospital, there are terazzo floors. The plant is absolutely fireproof, being reinforced frame throughout. On the ground floor also are the morgue, mortuary chapel and receiving rooms.

FILIPINO ATTACKS ON CHINESE IN MANILA SUBSIDE

Gen. Wood After Tour of Disturbed Area Believes City Police Can Control the Situation.

TROUBLE STARTED ON WATER FRONT

Policeman Trying to Quell Fight at Srore Door Was Cut and Shot; Riots and Fires Followed.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Oct. 20.—Race feeling betwen Filipinos and Chinese here had so subsided tonight that Governor-General Leonard Wood, after a tour of the disturbed districts, decided that the police could handle the stiuation, and said the constabulary would not be called out, unless further rioting occurred. Trouble started Saturday night when a Chinese merchant was killed by a Filipino folowing a business quarrel.

Nearly a thousand Chinese stores were closed today fearing further clashes. The closing, it was feared, it continued, will work a hardship on the poorer classes of Filipinos, who daily buy their supplies in small quantities from those stores. Chinese transact a large percentage of the business throughout the islands.

Departures of ships were thrown off schedule today by failure of Chinese longshoremen to report for work. About a hundred Chinese passengers arriving in three steamers from Southern Islands ports remained aboard, fearing to land because of the riots.

A local dialect newspaper caused comment by printing an extra in which it was stated that 80 Filipinos had been killed in Shanghai by Chinese, in revenge for the attacks upon Chinese here. No authority was given for the story, except that the news had been received by private cable advices from Shanghai. The Attorney-General is investigating the source of the news story. He declared he believed the item was without foundation of fact.

Sporadic cases of attacks on Chinese continued throughout the morning. Two Chinese were stabbed and mortally wounded by Filipinos when a crowd gathered near a railway station. Police, armed wit riot guns, so far have been able to disperse the crowds before they could take concerted action.

Chinese Merchants Barricade Themselves in Ships.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News; Copyright, 1924.

MANILA, Oct. 20.—Business in the city of Manila is paralyzed this morning, as a result of rioting against the Chinese during the last 48 hours. Goverenor-General Wood personally inspected the situation to ascertain whether the native police, under an American Chief, actually are unable to handle it.

The Chinese all over the city are locked up in their shops, small and big alike, which is putting business at a standstill and making it impossible for neighborhoods to buy even table supplies, and the Chinese cooks in hotels, restaurants and private houses are unable to get to the markets for necessary purchases. Hence, prices are soaring for all commodities. If the terrorism continues, the whole city, and especially the poorer class, among whom the rioters are included, will feel the pinch of hunger.

Chinese firms, having general stocks amounting to millions of dollars housed even in the best modern concrete buildings, have them all completely barred and barricaded, awaiting the outcome of the rioting. Their proprietors believe that the most effectual step would be to call out a small detachment of American troops from the Thirty-first Infantry, because they realize that the native policemen, as well as the constabulary, share the bitterness against their race, but Gen. Wood desires to make sure before resorting to extreme steps.

Mob Spirit Grows Rapidly.

Meanwhile, half a dozen Celestials are either dead or fatally wounded, and the mob spirit is growing rapidly, and likely to spread into the provinces, where the Chinese will be still more at the mercy of the worst elements.

The trouble began in the water front district, where the natives include a large element of Visayan sailors and longshoremen who have throughout their history engendered strife between the Chinese and the Filipinos in Manila. A Filipino storeman on Saturday afternoon delivered two cases of "Pancho Villa Pomade" to
